NAUGHTY NELLY.

So sweet is she, so sweet and fair, Such glow and glory grace her hair, I often used to wish she were A little more divine.

T sadly wished in her to see A little less of giggling glee, A little less of coquetry, And pertness and design.

I wished that she had learn'd at school, Not how to win men and to rule By making wise ones play the fool, And foolish ones adore—

But how to use the charms she had In cheering hearts that else were sad And making one heart always glad, And blest forevermore.

I wished—but wishing is a trade For boys and simple maidens made; And if I tried it, I'm afraid I could not set her free

From all the tricks and trumperies That keep her nature in disguise, And will not let her cast her eyes On quiet folks like me. [Shilling Magazine.] ARTHUR MUNBY.

ART IN NEW YORK.

ence of the Phila. Evening Bulletin.] NEW YORK, Jan. 27 .- I can count on my fingers as many as five good sculptors at work in the city, reckoning Mr. Palmer, of Albany, who has been working on a portrait commission in a temporary room, adjoining that of Mr. Church. Mr. Launt Thompson is settled in the same (the studio) building, on the ground floor. He is the author of the beautiful little profile medallion of Red Riding Hood, a photograph of which is in every young lady's album. He has been very busy with portrait orders. and at the time of my last visit was superintending the phrenology of a good looking gentleman in marble. His best energies are now directed towards enlarging the fine head of the poet Bryant, (just returned from exhibition in your city), to collossal proportions for the Central Park. Mr. E. J. Kuntze, of 749 Broadway, is a clever and intelligent artist, whose statuettes and reliefs form quite a gallery of men of letters; his latest, and one of his most successful works is a little figure of Longfellow, sitting in his scholar's robe and surrounded by emblems of literary toil; the likeness is very happy, and the cast entirely worthy of a post on the library desk. Mr. Rogers, of the wellknown "Groups"-and Mr. J. Q. A. Ward, are laboring side by side, in contiguous rooms at Dodworth's Hall, on Fifth Avenue The last-named gentleman will probably receive the compliment of a commission to cast his admirable "Indian Hunter" in bronze for the Park-about half the requisite funds having now been subscribed. As the progress of this work is rather a notable event in American art, let me breathe myself with a fresh paragraph and see if I can

A study in miniature for the "Indian Hunter" was shown in the Philadelphia Art Academy some years back, from which the present group has been developed without material alteration. The completed plaster model was placed early in the winter at Snedecor's Gallery, on free exhibition, for the American people at large to see and estimate. A good cut appeared in Harper's Weekly some weeks ago. The "Indian Hunter" represents a youthful savage and ais dog, stealing along upon the track of some imaginary prey. The scale is larger than life. The head is lifted, with a sudden action; the torso is stooped forward; the legs have the attitude of the Fighting Gladiator, but the large motion of that antique is here modified with a kind of crawling action; one foot is planted far behind, to give a push to the figure, which is indicated with great force; the muscles yielding and working around the articulations of the bones with admirable expression. Feet and hands have the small proportions noticed in the Indian tribes. You see in this creation the primal man, the hunter, whose intellect, differing from ours, is educated strictly for the chase. A suggestive spectacle, this competent, mental machine directed absolutely to rapine Distinguished from the clothed races, what mental powers he has are expressed about equally in every part of his body; each muscle is as eloquent as the mouth or the eye. Beside him is his wolfish-looking dog, with his own doggish faculties in the highest development, but yielding an amazing superiority to man, even man as a brute Although murderous, excited, and straining at the leash, he is but a dog, while his master, though only another beast of prey, seems to combine the sweep of the eagle, the curve of the constrictor, and all the faculties of the menagerie combined. On the whole, the statue, the most intelligent and successful attempt hitherto made to represent the Indian, is of national value. When we consider how swiftly the whole supplanted race is fading out, we will not tality in the shape of bronze. Ward, a fresh and delightful man of the West, with the simplest manners and the most unconscious modesty, talks about his powerful works as if it would have been impossible to make them less excellent. I asked if the Indian's face were greatly idealized: it is not without a wild element of beauty; in reply the artist produced a curious box, in which a quantity of small wax heads, modelled on the ends of sticks like fancy stoppers, were secured so as to travel safely. They were portraits of Western Indians, and an average taken from them would pretty much resemble the "Hunter;" the one most closely imitated in the statue was mislaid. Ward quietly mentioned this as his authority, without seeming to have the least consciousness or memory of those slight, creative touches with which genius redeems her work and makes it large, typical and immortal. The same exquisite self-ignorance was noticeable whenever he spoke of his own works. The very noble figure of Simon Kenton, which would be a proud monument for his State, has a massive, powerful face, ennobled with a slight Greek inclination, and chiselled with all the statuesque breadth of Napoleon's. It was modeled with great advantages among the descendants of the pioneer, and a grandson in particular, who preserved the traditiona likeness of the old hero, sat for the face. Mr. Ward seems quite unconscious that he has done anything more than make a portrait of this youth in hunter's dress. Likewise in the "Freedman," the least poetical of his statues, but an invaluable academic study, and an authority for the ethnologists. Mr. Ward had caughta negre teamster from begrudge to the portrait a bit of immor-

Reading, and when hard pressed about the particular excellencies of his work, would still skirmish from behind his model; as-"Yes, that's a good back, pretty much like John's; John had a nice triangle-shaped back;" or "I took his face without any great alteration; John has the real negro mask." I have been greatly entertained by hearing Ward go over this figure in detail, pointing out the African characteristicsmuscles with short bellies and elongated tendons; lack of adipose around the joints; little, half-rudimentary ears, and so on. Anthropology books, as far as I have observed, are just a little tedious; but a lecture on anatomy from Michael Angelo is different: something of the great creative breath, perhaps, comes out with the words, and keeps you awake.

It is striking that Ward has not modeled female figure. Considering the culture and refinement of his style, it is singular that these qualities have always been expended in representing masculine energy. There is nothing in him of the womanhater, and yet his great works have always been tributes of sympathy to some phase of the manly forces. I once had the curiosity to ask him about it; but Ward is not one of your dreary, self-eating fellows, who is used to poke about in his own interior—he has the outward, objective. "Greek" spirit. and I got no satisfaction whatever.

Mr. Ward has just been modeling a very fine bust of the late eminent surgeon. Dr. Valentine Mott. It is a magnificent piece of character, the result of a complete understanding of the subject. I have taken the greatest pleasure in examining the details with the artist, and having him expatiate on the qualities that go to make a great surgeon, and their external interpretation in the skull and features.

CITY BULLETIN.

THE BILLIARD CHAMPIONSHIP OF PENN-SYLVANIA.—The billiard tournament for the championship of Pennsylvania (lately resigned by Victor Estephe, of Philadelphia) commenced yesterday afternoon at Concert Hall, in presence of a large number of per-sons, including a fair sprinkling of ladies. Several celebrated billiard players from other cities were also present. The con-testants for the champion cue are Robert T. Ryali, James Palmer, E. J. Plunkett, John B. Bruce and Henry W. Hewes. Pierre Carme, the renowned French player, and Michael Phelan opened the tournament in the afternoon by a friendly game in which Carme scored 200 and Phelan 196. The first game for the championship then followed, the players being Henry W. Hewes and John B. Bruce. The game consisted of 500 points, and was won by Mr. Hewes, the score standing, Hewes 500; Bruce 279. The highest runs made were—Hewes 31;

In the evening at 8 o'clock, James Palmer and E. J. Plunkett entered into a trial of skill. Push shots were permitted and the game was 500 points. After a well-contested game Mr. Plunkett was declared the victor, the score standing Plunket 500, Palmer 402. Mr. Plunkett's success lay principally in his skill in keeping the balls together. A number of very brilliant shots were made by Mr. Palmer, which were warmly applauded. The highest runs made were as follows: Plunkett,89,61,70; Palmer, 1, 46, 36; Plunkett's average for each in-14, 46, 36; Flunkett's average for each innings was 15½.

At the close of the contest, Pierre Carme and E. H. Nelms played a game of 300 points for the amusement of those present. The game was won by Carme, the score standing: Carme, 300; Nelms, 187. Mr. Carme then treated the audience to an exhibition of very wonderful fancy shots, which astonished all present. This afternoon Messrs. Hewes and Palmer will contend for the championship, and in the evening Messrs. Ryall and Bruce will try their espective powers. During the Tournament, John Deery, the champion of America, Pierre Carme, Dudley, Kavanagh, M. Phe-lan, John McDevitt, William Goldthwait. Melvin Foster, E. H. Nelms, and other billiard notables, will daily contest with each ATTEGED SWINDLE -- Refore Alderman Beitler, yesterday afternoon, a young man named Raymond Gutgesel, was charged with obtaining by false representations, goods valued at $300. He had been in the employ of Mr. Henry Duhring, dealer lin hosiery, but left him a year ago. He raised money by going to different houses and buying goods in the name of the firm. Being acquainted at Mr. Duhring's he used to visit the store very early in the morning, when the porter only was there, and would then slip upon the file upon which were kept all the thirty day bills the bills for the goods of which he had wrongfully obtained ossession. It was supposed that these bills were correct, and some of them were paid; but inquiry soon showed the fraud, and led to the discovery of the perpetrator. The accused was held to answer at court.

riow I. A Concert Saloon.—Last evening U. S. Deputy Marshals Godwin and Werlham, having occasion to go into a concert saloon on Chestnut street, above Sixth, in search of a prisoner, were assaulted by two men named John Cahill and James Riley. The latter struck Godwin a blow in the face, while the former made several attempts to strike him. It seems that Riley attempts to strike him. It seems that Riley was in custody some days since for passing counterfeit money, but there not being counteriest money, but there not being sufficient evidence against him, he was discharged. In consequence of his being arrested by the government officers on the charge, the assault is supposed to have been committed. The two men were arrested by reserve officers Crout, Hess, Finley and Smith, and were locked up for a hearing.

CHARGED WITH BURGLARY, - Three colored youths, named Henry Trusty, Samuel Bass and Samuel H. Lane, were samuel Bass and Samuel H. Lane, were charged before Alderman Beitler, yesterday, with having entered the dwelling of Mrs. M. H. Stevens, on Rittenhouse street, west of Green, Germantown, on the night of the 2d of January, and robbing the same of a lot of clothing. The defendants acknowledged having committed the harder committed the ledged having committed the burglary, and informed the officers where the goods could be recovered. Sarah Cole and Edward G. Clarion were charged with receiving the stolen articles. The accused were com-

THE SCHUYLKILL DROWNING CASE,-Coroner Taylor held an inquest yesterday afternoon upon the body of the young woman who was drowned on Tuesday afternoon, by the breaking of the ice on the Schuylkill, near the Girard avenue bridge, It was shown that a party of five, of which the decreased was a set amounted to gross the the deceased was one, attempted to cross the Schuylkill (not on skates), and that all of them were precipitated into the water. ARRIVAL OF TROOPS,-The 412th Regiment P.V. (2d Heavy Artillery) reached the city yesterday afternoon, from Fortress Monroe, and was marched to Camp Cadwalader. This was one of the largest regiments which was in the service, and returns with 1,400 men. It was organized in the latter part of 1861 and the early part of 1862, and dwing the west heavy rendered regiments. latter part of 1861 and the early part of 1802, and during the war has rendered valuable services. Chas. Angeroth was the first commander. He resigned in June, 1862, and was succeeded by Cols. A. A. Gibson, Jas. L. Anderson and Wm. M. McClure. The present Colonel is S. D. Strawbridge, whose commission is dated March 8, 1865. Benj. F. Winger is Lieutenant-Colonel, and

F. Winger is Lieutenant-Colonel, and David Schooley and Wm. S. Bailey, Majors. The men will be paid off and discharged at Camp Cadwalader in a few days.

The 195th Regiment P. V., arrived in the city this morning by way of the Baltimore Railroad and proceeded to Camp Cadwalader to be paid off and discharged. This regiment has been in the service in Virginia for saveral months hast. It was originally for several months past. It was originally organized July 25, 1864, for service of one hundred days. Subsequently three companies re-enlisted for a full term and seven other companies were assigned to the organization. The regimental officers are: Colonel, J. W. Fisher; Lieutenant Colonel, Wm. L. Bear and Major H. D. Markley.

SUPPOSED SUICIDE.—Charles H. Beachell, twenty-five years of age, said to have been a student in the office of David Paul Brown, Esq., was found dead in his room at the Allegheny House, Market street, above Eighth, yesterday, and under circumstances which induced the belief that he had committed suicide. He had entered the room on the afternoon previous, and not making his appearance yesterday suspicion was excited, and upon the door being forced open, he was discovered dead in bed. On a stand near the bed were two bottles labeled chloroform, with which it was supposed life had been destroyed. No cause is assigned for the act of self-destruction.

LA COTERIE BLANCHE.—The third annual fancy dress hop of La Coterie Blanche will take place at the Academy of Music. on Wednesday, the 7th, inst.
