SAGE QUESTION You who are at figures quick, Brush up your arithm Can you count the drunkard's ills, Or vonne Skin'em's unpaid bills, Or the young skin em's impaid onto, Or the young that lovers make, Or the oaths that black-legs break, Or your Sallie's host of charms, Or your nervous aunt's alarms.

Or mosquitoes in the Fall, Or customers at Tower Hall? We have the largest and best stock of CLOTH nve in Philadelphia, all FRESH, FASHIONABLE SI SOUND, which we are selling at prices guaranteed to be lower than the lowest elsewhere, for either SOUND OX DAMAGED goods.

TOWER HALL, No. 518 Market Street, BENNETT & CO.

ADVICE We could name dozens, in a trice, Who lay great stress on their advice, And, when they an opinion give. Think other folks on that can live. Those who advise, we often find, Have got an axe of theirs to grind, And he who takes advice is prone To turn the kind adviser's stone. There's some advice, however, good, And more especially, that which would Lead us to that bright orb to shine Whose number is Six Hundred Nine

We have an immense stock of FINE, FASHIONABLE WE HAVE CLOTHING, which, having been made up from goods bought since the decline in prices, we are enabled to sell much lower than those who are merely disposing of their old stock, and who will very rel ently reduce their prices.

EVENING BULLETIN.

MONDAY. FEBRUARY 26, 1866.

PROTECTION AT THE WEST. The Free Trade League, whose head quarters are in New York, and whose treasury is largely supplied by English capitalists, is making very energetic efforts to gain supporters in the West. Emissaries have been sent to Chicago, St. Louis, and other important cities, to teach the people that the best way to get along is to admit foreign products free of duty, and thus destroy American manu factures. Thus far they have not been at all successful. The people of the West will not be persuaded against their own convictions. They happen to have

The Free Trade lectures and essayists have met with signal failure wherever they have appeared in the West. But they have effected one good thing: they have aroused the people to a counter movement, in favor of protection to American industry. At Chicago, en Thursday evening last, there was a great mass meeting, for which the largest hall in the city was much too small, thousands, according to the Journal, having been unable to obtain admittance. The speeches, letters and resolutions that are reported in the proceedings, all breathe the true spirit. They show that the people of the growing metropolis of the West see through the fallacies of the free-traders, and are proof against the cajoleries of their emissaries. They see that their future permanent prosperity cannot be secured merely by agriculture and commerce, which have been their chief sources of wealth; but that these will be largely dependent upon manufactures, and that these cannot be established or maintained when the fabrics of foreign countries, where labor is As theap, are admitted free of duty. The great fundamental idea of protection minds of the Western people. The free-traders have done a rash and foolish thing in selecting this period in our history to try to make proselytes at the West. With an enormous national debt, we need not only a large revenue from customs, but we need encouragement to home industry more than ever before. We want population, too, and we should especially encourage the immigration of laborers and artisans . from Europe. A reduction of the tariff would, by depressing home labor, put a check upon such immigration. There is an enormous unoccupied field for industry in this country. There is a demand for manufactures, for which we have to home labor is fully developed in the

all the materials at home, which is daily increasing. It would be suicidal folly to be bringing in foreign manufactures free of duty, and we are glad to see that the people of the great city of Chicago appreciate all these facts as fully as do the people of Philadelphia.

The object of the Free Traders is first to benefit Great Britain, our worst and most insidious enemy. A secondary object is to promote the interests of the importers of New York, many of whom are foreigners. Free Trade would benefit that small but wealthy class, while it of the city. It would, at the same time, accord with the Middle States and with | cepting the issues of the war, strive to New England on this subject, and we perform their part faithfully and loyally, hail the foundation of "The Industrial Union of Chicago," which was organized at the late meeting, as a new guarantee that the designs of the New York and British Free Trade League will be frustrated.

BECONSTRUCTED LOYALTY.

We all want the Southern States restored to their proper relations to the Union. Not to their old relations, for the rebellion has demonstrated that those were hollow and unsound, but to the same relations which have always been occupied towards the Government by the Northern States. We all want to see, in the people of the South, a determination to be what Mr. Johnson calls "loyal and willing supporters and defenders of our glorious 'Stars and Stripes.'" Whenever the first dawning of such a determination shall break over the aspect of Southern society; we shall hail it as the precursor of a glorious day. We stand looking for it, as they that watch for the morning, but as yet we see no honest token of its existence. The false lights of enforced submission, the flickering 'will o' the wisp" of hungry politicians eager to regain place and power, will not stand in the place of an honest repentance for a great crime. We are yet to hear of the first prominent rebel who has complied with Mr. Johnson's "Let them repent." The difference between submission and repentance, every child understands. The South submits, it does not repent. It justifies the rebellion and glorifies the leaders and actors in it. It asks for power, only that it may assert the claim that it has done nothing wrong. Whether we take the evidence which we derive from the tone of the thousands of Southerners now in our midst, or that which is furnished by the Southern press, or whether we judge by the commonest principles of human nature, we are brought to the same conclusion. The South cannot reasonably be expected to be yet in a condition to resume its place in the family of the States. The Prodigal Son, who is being so largely drawn upon to establish the opposite theory, is dead against it. His father did not go down to the "far country' and whip him into obedience and drive him away from his husks by force. Not at all. It was when "he came to himself;" when he said "I will arise and go to my father and say, 'I have sinned' make me as one of thy hired servants," that he was restored to his old seat at the family board. It is just here that those who prefer a reasonable delay in the re-admission of the Southern representatives make their point. We all agree that the South has been a sad prodigal. Let us see some clearer signs of cheerful and willing loyalty, such as will encourage us to entrust the management of a portion of our common estate to Southern hands, and we will hail the prodigal's return with delight. Until

The Macon, Georgia, Telegraph proposes a plan for the settlement of the vexed question of reconstruction that is almost worthy of Alexander, Cromwell or Napoleon, although it is not an original one. It is nothing less than a proposition that the President shall invite the representatives of the eleven 'reconstructed" States to Washington and then call upon Congress to admit them to their seats. In case the present majority should continue obstinate, then the President is to march in a regiment of soldiers and with a show of bullets what ballots had failed to accomplish. This ingenious editor seems to have been reading up in European history to come at this mode of cutting the Gordian knot of "reconstruction." Napoleon, with a regiment of veterans, bundling the Council of Five Hundred out of their hall; and Cromwell marching his grim-booted and buff-jerkined soldiers into the House of Parliament, and dismissing the members in a very great hurry, with a very uncomplimentary allusion to "that bauble," as he styled the speaker's mace, seem to have been the models of the Macon fire-eater. But circumstances alter cases, and there is no more probability of such a condition of things arising in our own country, and in our own times, than there is of Congress putting itself in the position of the Long Parliament, which had but little right to complain of the act of the Protec tor when it had itself set an example of disregard to constituted authority by deposing and beheading the king. When a revolutionary tribunal, like the Council of Five Hundred, takes the place of the American then we feel as if we can afford to wait.

A COUP D' ETAT PROPOSED.

of the legislature at the point of the bayonet. President Johnson is not going to try any such foolish or treasonable experiment as the Macon man suggests, so there is an end of that. And were it not for the fact that the recommendation shows the temper and the spirit of the unrepentant rebels, his suggestion would not be worthy of notice. Therebellious South tried to overturn the Government by force of arms, in 1861, and although they devoted four weary years to the task, they had to give it up for a bad job finally. It is an evidence of the extent of their "reconstruction" that they are now endeavoring to persuade the President of the United States to renew the precise experiment in which they failed, and to renew it by precisely would injure the bulk of the population | the same means, to wit: armed resistance to the laws. It would be far better operate most injuriously upon the people | for the people of Georgia, and of the all over the country. We are glad to late (?) rebellious States, to take the adfind that the great Northwest is in vice of Alexander H. Stephens, and ac-

Congress, it will be time enough to discuss the probability of whoever may be uppermost in the executive department of the government, usurping the powers

than to continue to indulge Quixotic dreams of recovering by the strong hand the control of the Government which they endeavored to destroy by the same agency. The United States are not the stage, nor 1866 the time, for the successful imitation of Cromwellian or Napoleon coup d' etat.

THE GREAT BAILROAD CASE. Justice Read this morning decided the important case that was argued before him some time ago, to test the validity of the contract by which the Catawissa Railroad was leased to the Atlantic and Great Western. He declares the contract null and void. The opinion is one of great length and shows a vast amount of research. It is understood, we believe, that an appeal from this decision will be taken to the Supreme Court in banc. THE GERMAN OPERA COMPANY will begin their season at the Academy of Music this evening. Gounod's Faust will be the opera, with Mme. Rotter as "Margaret," Mlle. Dziuba as "Siebel," Himmer as "Faust" and Hermans as "Mephistopheles," The latter is one of the finest personations ever seen on the lyric stage, and the other parts are also well cast. Tomorrow evening Fra Diavolo will be produced, with Mmes. Rotter and Johannsen, Habelmann, Hermans, Armand, Weinlich and Steinecke in the principal parts.

Mr. Wolfsohn will give another of his delightful Beethoven matinées in the Foyer of the Academy of Music to-morrow after. noon.
