SPECIAL NOTICES.

UNION STATE CONVENTION.
A Stated Convention will be held in the Hall of the House of Representatives, in Harrisburg, Pa., on WEDNESDAY, THE SEVENTH DAY OF MARCH, A. D. 1866, at 10 o'clock, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Governor, to be supported by the friends of the Union.

The order of war has tried the strength of our Government. Its fire has purified the nation. The defence of the nation's life has demonstrated who were its friends. The principles vindicated in the field must be preserved in the councils of the nation. The arch-enemy of freedom must be struck once more. All who were loyal to the cause of the Union in our late struggle are earnestly requested to unite in sending delegates to represent them in said Convention.

By order of the Union State Central Committee.
JOHN CESSNA, Chairman.
Geo. W. HAMMERSLY, Secretaries.
A. W. BENEDET, Secretaries.

A despatch from Florence, Feb. 12 says: "The Commission of Inquiry upon the route selected for the railway through the Helvetic Alps have almost unanimously decided in favor of Mont St. Gothard. No vote was given for the Luninarian route. The session of the Chambers has been prorogued until Feb. 15. The committee on the provisional exercise of the Budget have accepted the proposal of the ministry, extending its duration until the end of April next."

Letters from Rome to the 7th inst. give the speech of the Pope at the English College, in which his Holiness mentioned the prosperity and greatness of England, but regretted that she should have been forgetful of her glorious title of the Holy Island. The Pope hoped that her immense possessions and sacred institutions would serve the cause of the true faith.

Several English Catholic prelates and other distinguished persons were present. A telegram from Brussels, of February 11, says: "Viscount Sydney arrived here last night to visit King Leopold II, with the possible exception of Monday evening received in solemn audience, at the Royal Palace, all the members of the mission deputed by Queen Victoria to invest his Majesty with the Order of the Garter."

In the Chamber of Deputies on February 10 the debate was resumed, on the motion of the American flag were hung in great profusion, and shields, stars and stripes, were lavishly displayed. The national colors were hung in the form of festoons from the upper tier, and the stage was carpeted in the same manner. The chandelier over the centre of the stage was handsomely ornamented with flowers; while the scenery in the rear represented a tent, in front of which were piles of drums, and two or three stacks of arms.

In front of the proscenium box on the right of the stage a kind of breastwork had been erected, extending to the dress circle on one side, and almost to the rear of the stage on the other. An elegant carpet was laid behind this protective work, and the box itself was filled up for the use of the General and his attendants.

It had been announced that the General would arrive promptly at 7 o'clock, an hour much too early for the fashionable; but for this occasion the goddess was compelled to forego her habit and change her hours. At 9 o'clock he was to be delivered into the hands of the Brooklyn Club, and the 23d Regiment was under the necessity of compressing all their pomp into the narrow space of one hundred and twenty minutes. Brooklyn took an exceedingly early dinner, and the families of the denizens of that goodly city who held invitation and admission tickets, evidently made hasty toilettes that they might not lose one of the one hundred and twenty minutes; but he determined to spend in the presence of the Lieutenant-General.

At seven o'clock carriages began to arrive and deposit their delicate freight at the door of the Academy. The dress circle—the parquet had been floored over—and upper tier of boxes were soon filled and the alighting of the guests began. At eight o'clock, Gen. Grant made his appearance, escorted by the Committee of Arrangements, and took his station in the box prepared for him.

It is still believed by the people of Dublin that Stephens, the Fenian, is concealed in that city. Considering the hotness of the chase, he is certainly successful in Dublin.

The wearers of numerous fine suits of Canadian manufacture in Chicago have come to grief. Officers of the Customs have seized the smuggled clothes, and the wearers have to fork over the duties. The officers enter the suits and the wearers of course are trotted out.

Two settings of eyes were sent last spring a long distance to England. Both were packed with care, one in bran, the other in hay. Of those in bran not one eye hatched, while every one packed in hay produced a chick. Bran-did hen-trait is now.
