In a fine suit, at Bennett's made Our stock of Clothing is the largest and most complete is. this city, surpassed by none in material, style and ju, and sold at prices guaranteed lower than the lowest. TOWER HALL. No. 518 Market Street. BENNETT & CO.

ECONOMY IS WEALTH. To those who wish to practise economy we would say, that they can do so by purchasing their Clothing at the "STAR," 669 chestnut street. Having disposed of most of the stock on hand at the time of the fire, at yery lowerices, and replaced it with new goods, bought since the decline in prices, we are thereby enabled to sell lower than can those who had on hand such large stocks at the time of the decline, and who will very princantly reduce their prices to the present STOCKS at the time of the decline, and who will very RELUCTANTLY reduce their prices to the present standard. Our stock embraces every variety of piece goods and every style of garments now worn, and we sell at lower prices our fine fashionable Clothine than do those houses whose garments are so badly cut and so indifferently made and trimmed. N. B.— Being determined to close out our stock of Overcoats we have marked them so far BELOW THE ACTUAL cost, that they would be a desirable investment for those who expect to purchase next winter. ## EVENING BULLETIN. THURSDAY, MARCH 1, 1866.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

We are glad that the Board of Health have taken such action as will enable the public to judge of the responsibility which will rest upon some branch of the City Government, if the cholera should visit us and find us unprepared. It did not need the official announcement of the Board on Tuesday last to apprise us of the fact that our streets are in a state of filthiness alike disgraceful and dangerous. That the streets of Philadelphia should ever be any other than faultlessly neat and clean is an inexcusable dereliction from public duty: but that at a season like this, with the terrible warning of a possibly approaching pestilence before us, the neglect becomes absolutely criminal. We care very little, just now, where the immediate blame lies. If the pestilence falls upon us, the reckoning with those who have charge of the sanitary interests of the city will be sure to be so know precisely who has been responsidepartment of the government will be able to plead that it was taken unawares. The timely warning which we have had has been amply sufficient for every - practical purpose, and yet, what has been done? The first appearance of frost appears to be the signal for a total cessation of all care of the public highways, and not until the warm Spring sun begins its process of decomposition, is the work of removing the whole accumulation of the winter months resumed.

During this period of fatal inaction, turesque to have captivated the heart of a Dickens, but not of a style to delectate ports of their sanitary inspectors, they They notify. Councils that unless measures are promptly instituted for the immediate removal of the nuisance comfor proposals and proceed forthwith to effect this work of necessity.

Councils meet this afternoon and we trust that they will take prompt and stringent action upon this most important subject. We trust that they will not fall back upon their dignity and quarrel with the Board of Health upon any technical ground which may seem to be involved by the late action of the Board. There is a distinct repudiation by the Board of Health of any Councils. There is nothing in the action of the Board that will not meet the heartiest approval of the community. We want clean streets. That proposition is simple enough for everybody to appreciate. If red tape is on the side of dirt and filth, the public will unanimously decide against red tape. The people will not regard any explanation or difficulty or delay as valid that leaves us with dirty streets to invite and breed a pestilence. We have to-day entered the first day of Spring, and a few weeks more will give us a temperature that must be detrimental to the public and, at the same time, to restore the damaged fame of our beautiful city

CITY BAILWAY GREED. A bill in equity is now pending before to restrain the Lombard and South Streets Passenger Railway Company from ruining Delaware avenue. This greedy corporation is endeavoring to obtain such legislation at Harrisburg as will enable it to do pretty much as it pleases with the eastern front of thecity; and not content with obtaining, free of cost, the right of way on three of the principal thoroughfares of the city, and with having ruined, for any travel but its own, the lower end of Dock street, it now seeks to destroy an important portion of Delaware avenue. The state of the case cannot better be described than by giving the words of a portion of an ordinance recently enacted by City Councils by way of protest against this scandalous outrage. The ordinance says:

Whereas, A bill purporting to be a sup-plement to the acts of Assembly incorpo-rating the Lombard and South Street Passenger Railway Company is now pending in the Senate of this Commonwealth, which authorizes and empowers, amongst other things, the said Company "to extend their railway along Dock street from Front street to Third street, along Third and Second streets from South to Market streets, along Front street northward to Vine street, and upon any other street from their present line to Market street which is not now occupied by a railway track, to extend their track to the Eastwick Skating Park, and to carry marketing, vegetables, fruit and light freight on said railway, between Broad and Prime streets and Delaware avenue," all of said unlimited powers and franchises to be exercised without the consent of the Councilsof the city of Philadelphia being first had and obtained.

And whereas, In accordance with manifest propriety and public expediency, the present charter of the aforementioned company requires the consent of the Councils of Philadelphia to any further extension of their railway along any street of the said in the consent to reneal such salucity, and any attempt to repeal such salutary provision in said charter should, in discharge of an imperative public duty, be resisted by the Councils of the city of Philadelphia to retition of the city of the delphia by petition or remonstrance, addressed to the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The ordinance then goes on to urge upon the State Legislature the propriety of first obtaining the consent of the Councils of the city before any such wholesale appropriation of the streets shall be made.

How this reasonable request of the city authorities has been regarded, or is likely to be regarded at Harrisburg, may be inferred from the proceedings before Justice Strong, reported in the BULLE-TIN yesterday, upon the same pages with the advertised proceedings of Councils in relation to the same matter. The bill submitted in the Court of Nisi Prius sets forth that the railway company is proceeding to remove the paving stones upon Delaware avenue without regard to law or to the views or wishes of the constituted authorities of the city and in contempt of public convenience. Like the boy in the story, who took a pinch of salt to be in rea should have an egg offered him, it is tearing up the street so as to be all ready when the bill before the Legislature becomes a law, and like the aforesaid boy, these impudent railway managers deserve to have their knuckles rapped for their pains.

There are some of the readers of the BULLETIN who will remember Delaware avenue, or "the Wharves" as it was then called, thirty-five years ago. It was much in the predicament that the eastern front of the city is now in from below Almond street to the Navy Yard. Boat-sheds were run across the passage way, compelling a detour into Water street at every block or two; wood yards or spar houses lay squarely in the way of the pedestrian or the drayman, and compelled him either to go around a square or two out of his way, or, if he preferred it, to make a short cut by jumping overboard and swimming around the obstacles. Tumble-down rookeries of houses jutted out upon the wharves in a manner sufficiently picturesque to have captivated the heart of have been awake to the state of affairs, the lover of good order and ship-shape and now, as the result of the official re- streets and structures. Water street and the wharves in 1831 were, in short, as are compelled to make the humiliating | crooked as the doings of the "ring" in and alarming report that the condition the State Legislature, and as void of of the streets of Philadelphia is a grace and decency as the Managers of nuisance, prejudicial to public health, the Lombard and South Streets Passenger Railway Company. About the time we speak of, one Stephen Girard died. This "merchant and mariner," plained of, the Board will advertise as he delighted to call himself, was a Frenchman who had settled in Philadelphia many years before, and who had amassed what was then deemed a very large fortune, and what would even now be considered a pretty "snug thing" in the money line. Mr. Girar ', although a foreigner, had a good deal of love for Philadelphia, and having never had his heart hardened by becoming a stockholder and a manager of a city railway company, he had much public spirit, which exhibited itself in various ways, desire to interfere with the action of among which was the bequest to the city of five hundred thousand dollars, the interest of which was to be expended in the improvement of Water street and South. The very next section of the Will which provides so munificently for this grand public improvement, gives to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania the sum of three hundred thousand dollars towards the internal improvement of the State; provided that the State Legislature should pass such laws as would enable the city authorities to carry this if it finds us in our present filthy state.

We cannot doubt that Councils will promptly and efficiently respond to the call of the Board of Health, and if this is done the Augean task may yet be judged to the city has been expending thirty is done the Augean task may yet be judged to the public destricts and the money of the Company of the Company accomplished in time to preserve health | thousand dollars per annum, the interest on the Improvement bequest, in carrying out the views of the benevolent and public-spirited Girard. How well the work has been done is apparent at a glance; what a ruin this Lombard and Justice Strong, in the Court of Nisi Prius, South street railway company would make of this thirty years of labor and of lavish expenditure must be equally apparent to every person who has occasion to pass by their present terminus at the eastern end of Dock street.

The portion of Delaware avenue which this greedy corporation proposes to bestride with its iron rails, is the busiest along the front of the city. It is now almost impassible at times, and a railway track there would be as much out of place as it would in a crowded market We trust that Mr. Justice Strong will exercise his accustomed clear good sense, and not only decide that the proposed railway extension is illegal and improper, but that legislation at Harrisburg, in which Philadelphia alone is concerned, and which Philadelphia is obstinately opposed to, shall not be forced upon Philadelphia without her having first been consulted and her consent obtained.

We have made no reference to the modest proposition of these railway collossi to be allowed to carry "light freight" upon their road. "Give them an inch and they will take an ell," and if this cool demand is allowed we may, soon look to see them running regular burden trains through the streets. It is high time such outrageous aggressions were stopped by some means or other.

PAYMENT OF CITY WARRANTS. By an advertisement elsewhere it will be seen that the City Treasurer, Mr. Bumm, gives notice that on and after the 10th instant he will be prepared to pay all outstanding warrants issued previous to the year 1864. It is estimated that these obligations amount to about one hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars. We are glad that Mr. Bumm has taken this step. It has been humiliating to think that the obligations of the city to its creditors have, to a large extent, been hawked around as if the corporation were almost insolvent, and any move that looks towards regularity in the payment of the warrants is to be commended in the highest degree. Frequently parties holding warrants for small amounts have suffered greatly by delay in payment, and any measure which will obviate this trouble will be a great public benefit. We honor and applaud Mr. Bumm for his new move, and we hope it will be followed up steadily and persistently.
