UNION STATE CONVENTION.

CLOSE OF ITS PROCEEDINGS.

Nomination of General Geary for Governor.

The Resolutions, &c.

The Convention having reassembled at Harrisburg, at 5 P.M. yesterday, took up and adopted the following resolutions reported by the Committe

ported by the Committee:

Resolutions.

1, Resolved, That this Couvention, representing the Union-loving and loyal people of Pennsylvania, who never despaired of the Republic, and who poured out millions of treasure, and devoted yet more precious blood for the rescue of their country from the felonious attacks of a wicked and causeless rebellion; whose sons fought on every battle-field and suffered in every Southern prison pen of torture and starvation; whose noble dead lie on the soil of every State, where they fell under the folds of the National banner, here renew their pledge of unfaltering devotion to the Federal Union, and conset their determined. and repeat their determined purpose that it shall be preserved.

2. Resolved, That the most imperative duty of the present is to gather the legiti-mate fruits of the war, in order that our Constitution may come out of the rebellion purified, our institutions strengthened, and our national life prolonged.

3, Resolved, That failure in these grave duties would be scarcely less criminal than would have been an acquiescence in seces sion and in the treasonable machinations of the conspirators, and would be an insult to every soldier who took up arms to save the 4. Resolved. That filled with admiration at the patriotic devotion and fearless cour age with which Andrew Johnson resisted and denounced the efforts of the rebels to overthrow the National Government. Pennsylvania rejoiced to express her entire confidence in his character and principles, and approved of his noble conduct by best wing her suffrage upon him for the second position in honor and dignity in the country His bold, outspoken denunciation of th crime of treason; his firm demands for the punishment of the guilty offenders, and his expression of thorough sympathy with the friends of the Union secured for him the warmest attachment of her people, who remembering his great services and sacrifices while traitors and their sympathizers alike denounced his patriotic actions, appea to him to stand firmly by the side and to lean upon the support of the loval masse whose votes formed the foundation of hi promotion, and who pledged to him their unswerving support in all measures by which treason shall be stigmatized, loyalty recognized and the freedom, stability and purity of the National Union secured. Resolved, That the work of reorganizing the late insurrectionary States to their proper relations to the Union, necessarily devolves upon the law-making power, and that until such action shall be taken no State lately in insurrection is entitled to representation in either branch of Congress; that as primary to such action is, the right of Congress to investigate for itself the condition of the legislation of these States, to inquire respecting their loyalty, and to pre-scribe the term of restoration, and that to deny this necessary constitutional power is to deny and imperilone of the dearest rights belonging to our representative form of Government, and that we cordially approve of the action of the Union Representatives in Congress from Pennsylvania on this

6. Resolved, That no man who has volunheld office under the rebel organization should be allowed to sit in the Congress of the Union, and that the law known as the test oath should not be repealed, but should be enforced against all claimants for seats in Congress.

7. Resolved, That the national faith is sacredly pledged to the payment of the National debt incurred in the war to save the country and to suppress the rebellion and that the people will not suffer this faith to be violated or impaired; but all debts incurred to support the rebellion were unlaw ful, void and of no obligation, and shall never be assumed by the United States, nor shall any State be permitted to pay any evidences of so vile and wicked engage-

Resolved. That the public faith is not less solemnly pledged to the protection in the enjoyment of all their natural rights of their persons, proper and domestic relations, of the colored population who have boen emancipated by the fiat of the people under the providence of God, and who de served liberty by their kindness and fide lity to our soldiers in prison, or wounded, seeking escape from their tormentors; by their own courage in bearing arms for and fighting the battles of the Union. Even as man is more precious than money in every just account, so the honor of the nation is more sacredly engaged to these humble but never treacherous friends, than to those who hold its bonds stamped with the broad seal of the United States; that their free dom shall not be a mockery nor their just hopes of security, education and elevation in intellectual and moral improvement disappointed, and this faith must be kept

9. Resolved, That protection to all branches of productive industry is the only wise policy in our present national condition; is the true plan of restoration of the losses and ravages of war, of advancing the national property, increasing the national wealth and supplying the means of maintaining public faith with the public creditor and ultimately wiping out the national debt; that in the provision of internal revenue and the laying of duties on importations from foreign nations, the object should be to cause the former to press as little upon, and the latter to protect as fully as possible, our own citizens who are engaged in works of labor, of mining, manufacturing, and every other province of home industry, against inequal and unfair competition with foreign capital and policy, which neither contribute to develop the resources of our country, assist to pay our taxes, nor are conceived to maintain our Government. 10. Resolved, That the administration of the public affairs of Pennsylvania by Governor A. G. Curtin during the years of trial, toil, responsibility and anxiety which trial, toil, responsibility and anxiety which have recently passed over us, has been marked by such patriotic devotion, unyield-ing courage, constant watchfulness, un-wearied labor and shining ability as have made his name illustrious in the annals of this Commonwealth, and given him a place in the memory and affections of the people which cannot be lost. His enviable title of the "soldier's friend" is itself expressive o the highest eulogiums which could be pronounced on any public officer, and when his term of honorable, useful and most benefi-cial service shall close, he shall not be forgotten, but honor, love and affectionate remembrance, and the plaudits of a grateful public shall cluster around his person and make his name memorable.

11. Resolved, That this convention congratulate the people of the State of Pennsylvania on the passage of the law relieving the real estate of the Commonwealth from taxation forState purposes and tender to the members of the General Assembly their thanks for their considerate attention to relieve the popular burdens; while they confidently refer to it as a proof of the superior capacity of the Executive offices and a General Assembly chosen by a Union party.

12. Resolved, That the loyal people of Pennsylvania having steadily manifested through the war with the rebellion their warm regard for the rights of the gallant defenders of the Union, and never having voted to refuse them the right of suffrage when in the camp or in the field—a right inestimable to them and formidable to traitors and their symmethicars only we take pleasure in an expension. sympathizers only, we take pleasure in ex-pressing, not now for the first time, their gratitude for their gallantry and devotion, and declaring again a long settled purpose to appropriate the means and resources of the Government to the comfort, consolation and support of the disabled survivors, o widows and orphans of those who fell in the conflict. 13. Resolved, That the services, labors, consummate ability and unyielding faith in the destiny of the country manifested by the Hon. Edwin M. Stanton as the head of the War Department during the rebellion, have been of inestimable value to the country, and entitle him to the warmest commenda tion of the people.

14. Resolved, That Congress should not fail to make an equitable adjustment of bounties and allowances to the brave men who were engaged in the military service of who were engaged in the military service of the country, and that we heartily approve of the liberal appropriation now pending in the Legislature of Pennsylvania for the care and education of the orphan children of the soldiers who gave their lives for the salvation of the Republic.

15. Resolved, That in this crisis of public affairs, full of grateful recollections of his marvelous and memorable services on the marvelous and memorable services on the field of battle, we turn to the example of unfaltering and uncompromising loyalty of Lieutenant-General Grant with a confidence not the less significant and unshaken be cause at no period of the great struggle has his proud name been associated with doubt ful patriotism, or used for sinister purposes by the enemies of our common country.

16. Resolved, That any attempt by foreign nations to establish a monarchical government on this continent is evidence of a de sign to destroy republican institutions. Regard for our own safety and for the future gard for our own safety and for the future security of the republic demands that no such attempt should be permitted to suc-

17. Resolved, That Hon. Edgar Cowan, Senator from Pennsylvania, by his course in the Senate of the United States, has disappointed the hopes and has forfeited the confidence of those to whom he owes his place, and that he is hereby most earnestly requested to resign.

18. Resolved, That the State Central Committee be constituted by the appointment of a Chairman by the President of this Convention in consultation with the Union candidate for Governor, and that the remainder of said committee shall consist of one meni ber from each county in the State, except the city of Philadelphia, which shall have eight members, and the counties of Lancas er, Berks, Dauphin and Allegheny each two members, to be named by the represen ative delegates from the said counties in this convention; and that the association of loval Pennsylvanians resident at Washington hall also be allowed one member, to be appointed by their delegates present.

Proceeding to Hallot.

Mr. Dickey then moved that the Convention proceed to ballot for a candidate for Governor, without the formality of nominations. Agreed to.
Mr. Cessna then announced that he did not desire to run, and that he released the delegates instructed to vote for him, so that they might vote for whom they pleased. [Cheers.]

During the calling of the roll there was expressions of approval or disapproval, as he various votes were announce Mr. Cessna voted for Gen. Geary.

Nomination of General Geary.

When General Geary's tally reached 67, giving him the nomination in advance of the result, there was loud cheering. The result of the first ballot was—General John W. Geary, 81 votes; W. W. Ketcham, 30; J. K. Moorhead, 19; and General Harry White, 3. General John W. Geary was then deleved to be the province of the Republication. clared to be the nominee of the Republican Union party of Pennsylvania for Governor The nomination was made unanimous, and the Convention pledged the nominee fifty thousand majority.

A resolution commending General Geary to the favorable consideration of the people was adopted, and a Committee was pointed to invite General Geary to address e Convention.

Before the General's arrival, Mr. Marshall, of Allegheny, addressed the people: Although his friends had presented Mr. Moorhead, yet Allegheny had never repelled a soldier of his country who had served gallantly.

An allusion to Thaddeus Stevens was greeted with wild applause, and three cheers were given for Stevens. He said General Geary had endorsed Stevens, and Allegheny would support Geary heartily.

Mr. Cessna pledged himself to work for the nominee. He said the Democrats were insolent and defiant on Monday, because they thought their sun was rising, but they misapprehend the sentiments of the Union party. He did not think that President Johnson would prove treacherous, but if he did, we would go to the soldiers and the people; we would turn our backs upon him and push forward to victory without him.
[Applause.] Treason is a crime, and traitors must and shall be punished. The Democracy say we cannot obtain legislation through Congress, and yet on Monday they said we owe allegiance to the Constitution, together with the amendment abolishing slavery. [Laughter.] It was an old maxim that it was dangerous to stand on the platform of a car. Now the Democratic platform was framed by one named Carr. It was dangerous to stand on this platform, and they know it analysis. platform, and they knew it, so they manufactured a sort of a Clymer. [Laughter.] If we are deserted, though it was hard to tertain the idea, the loyal people of Penn-sylvania would roll up such an overwhelm ing majority in October as must teach traitors a lesson. [Cheers.]

Colonel McClure said though General Geary was not his choice, yet there was no man in Pennsylvania who would support him with a greater zest and good will than Galusha A. Grow spoke eloquently. The war of ideas was still going on; right against wrong; truth against error. Eternal justice must prevail. Slavery had chilled the hearts of the people and deserved to die. The last shackle had fallen.

General Geary then appeared, accompanied by a large delegation of the Geary Legion and other organizations, with bands of music. His appearance was hailed with applause.

General Geary's Speech.

He said he was deeply affected by this strong evidence of the people's confidence in him. He readily recognized among the crowds present in the streets and in the Hall many of those who had braved the storms and perils of battle in the service of their country. He was profoundly sensitively applied their country. their country. He was profoundly sensi-ble of the responsibilities resting upon him. He would help to maintain the principles equal justice that underlie the foundation of our Government. He heartly indorse devery word of the platform adopted at this Convention. He would be true to the three hundred thousand soldiers of Pennsylvania. The coming contest shall be fairly and honestly conducted on his part.

After music from the bands, the Secretary read a despatch from General Joseph read a despatch from General Joseph Hooker, endorsing the nomination, which was greeted with tumultuous applause.

Hon. W. W. Ketcham said he was a good deal in the position of Mr. Lincoln after his defeat in Illinois. He felt like the boy who had stumped his text it was a little too much of the Union organization for the beneficial had stumped his toe; it was a little too much conduct of public affairs, that, after a long to laugh over, but not enough for a man to and exhausting war, the debt of Pennsylvania is reduced, and the taxes imposed in a time of peace by their political managers.

The Convention had chosen a man to bear the standard of progressive liberty to victory, and he would follow. Though defeated himself, he was proud of the spirit that nominated General Geary. Copperheads who had been grinning and carping around the streets of Harrisburg in the hope that there would be dissensions in the Hope Convention, may take this result to bed with them to-night. [Cheers.] General J. K. Moorhead spoke at length, promising to go with General Geary and fight with him until the battle was fought out. [Great cheers.] We are going to have a very fierce campaign. Every man mus do what he can, but the hero would be elected by a triumphant majority. General Colonel Mann, and others spoke, when, after selecting the State Central Committee, the Convention adjourned sine die.

Meeting of the Friends of Irish Indepen-

A meeting of the friends of Irish independence was held last evening at the National Guards' Hall. There was an immense attendance, the hall being densely crowded. The General Sheridan Circle marched to the meeting with martial music. The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock, and Mr. John A. Keenan was apchosen for Secretary.

Hon, V. H. Worthington, a member of Congress, from Nevada Territory, was introduced by James Gibson, who, in doing so, remarked that the people must not expect long speeches from any of the gentlemen who should speak. The time for speaking had passed, and the time for action had arrived. chosen for Secretary.

pointed to preside. Mr. Michael Nash was

Mr. Worthington began by congratulating the friends of Irish nationality on the arrival of the time when the prospect was most cheering for the success of the cause. He reminded the assemblage of what the American colonies has done—that they had forced from Great Britain the acknowledgment of their independence. The wa of independence was begun when the colonies had no army and no navy; and suppose, said he, the colonists had waited until they got both an army and a navy, their independence would never have been achieved. The freedom of Ireland was to be won by the bravery of ber sons, and, in working it out, England was to be struck at those points in which she would feel the blow most sensibly, whether it be through Canada or upon Irish soil Irishmen could look with confidence for sympathy from the people of the United States. Even the Government of this country could aid the Irish people in the great cause in which they are engaged and yet pre serve as much neutrality as Great Britain had done in the late war. The Government could make an order that no gunboats should leave the United States to aid in se curing Irish independence, but it could take good care that the order was not issued until after the vessels had departed. It could pretend to keep a sharp lookout to prevent arms and ammunition being sent abroad, yet take good care that they should not be stopped in transitu. Mr. Worthington hoped to see the independence of Ire-land secured at no distant day—to see the green flag of Erin and the stars and stripes floating side by side, both alike re-He was followed by Captain Edward Power who urged his countrymen to immediate action in the cause of down-trodden Ireland. Mr. W. F. Carlin made an eloquent appeal in behalf of the cause—Ireland. Beore closing, he called upon the assemblage to come forward and contribute to the caus which a number of them did. The Chairman, Mr. Keenan, recited, with fine effect; a poem descriptive of the rebel-

General Sweeny, who was announced to be present, did not arrive till after ten o'clock. His presence in the hall was the signal of the wildest enthusiasm. The entire assemblage arose, and cheers burst from every lip. The cheering was continued until the General reached the stage, and when he was introduced to the meeting the enthusiasm was renewed. Order being re-tored, he said he did not appear to make a speech, as speech-making was not his business. He must, however, thank his friends for the cordial welcome he had received. He had not words to express his feelings, which were of the most grateful character. A crisis had arrived in the affairs of Ireland, and a blow must be struck at once. All that is now wanted are arms and munitions of war, and contracts had been made for them. The General hoped that the people of Ireland would not at this time rise, though he was afraid that the suspension of the habeas corpus act would lead to an uprising of the people. England must, he said, be struck in her weak point, and that point is Canada. He knew every fort in Canada, and every gun in those forts, and he was satisfied that the effort would be successful if rightly directed. At the close of his remarks the meeting
