WHO WROTE SHAKESPEARE'S PLAVA? WHO WROTE SHARESPEARE'S PLAYS? A doubt has recently been raised as to who was the nuthor of that very popular book generally known as "The Dramatic Works of William Shakespeare." Some think it was Lord Bacon, and that Lord B. didn't consider it worth while to mention the fact, be-cause he knew that the people of this century would find out the whole truth, and more too. Perhaps there never was any such person as Shakespeare; and, in that case, it would seem very probable that be never wrote those plays. These are important denotes but luckily there is no doubt about the best and cheapest Clothing in the city being sold at TOWER HALL, No. 615 Market Street,

STEPHENS, THE HEAD CENTRE.

The English are beginning to admit that Stephens, the Fenian Head Centre, has really escaped out of Ireland, the only disagreement being as to whether he has gone to France, or America, or somewhere else. The fact of his escape does not seem to create much distress in England; indeed all parties, throughout the United Kingdom, appear to be rather well pleased. He would have been a troublesome man as a prisoner, and Her Majesty's Government would probably have been as reluctant to try him for treason as President Johnson is to try Jefferson Davis. With Stephens out of Ireland, the Fenians of that island are without a leader, and there is something peculiarly Hibernian in the fact that they are rejoicing at the escape of the chief of their proposed revolution. But, after all, Stephens, if he has the Fenian cause out of Ireland than in it. Their secrets and plans were exposed so early that the British Government was able to place such a force in the island as is able to keep down a revolt, or to suppress it if it broke out. The only apparent chance of success is in Canada, and the same folly that was enacted in Ireland is going on in that province. The leaders in New York have not had the wisdom to keep their projects secret, and the provincial anthorities have had ample time to prepare to repel an invasion from our borders, or to suppress outbreaks at home. Still there is a better chance of success in Canada than in Ireland, and if Stephens is the right man for a leader, Canada is the best place for him to operate in. In this view of the question there is reason for rejoicing among the Fenians that he has quitted Ireland. If he should come to this country, however, they ought to keep his arrival secret, and this we hardly expect them to do.

Colonel Page is entitled to public thanks for introducing the resolution for a committee of Select Council to overhaul the Gas Works. That abuses exist somewhere in that department of the City Government, there can be little doubt. While other cities are enjoying the blessing of good light, at moderate prices, we have imposed upon us not only the worst gas but the highest rates that have ever been known. We agree with Mr. King that "everybody, the newspapers included, is in the dark concerning the management." Worse than this we are in the dark, every way. We not only cannot see how the gas should cost so much and burn so badly, but we cannot see at all. At such prices as we have to pay, prices that are enough to excite the wrath even of a calm and dignified Vandyke, poor men have to reduce the quantity of gas consumed, until they are almost brought down to the standard of the old tallow dips. In the course of the debate on Colonel Page's resolution, Mr. Gray introduced an idea which we should be very sorry to see put in practice. Mr. Gray said:-"Gentlemen should remember, how-ever, that this trust is a self-sustaining in-stitution, and that, like the business of a private firm, there are many things con-nected with their affairs that the public business firm have no right to know. No business firm would like to hold a counting-house con-sultation with open doors." We regret that Mr. Gray did not explain himself a little more clearly. If delphia correspondent of the Times the Gas Works are designed for the public benefit and are managed with the integrity and ability that is asserted for the Gas Trust, there should be the fullest exposition of the whole business before the public eye. Every consumer of gas Pennsylvania and New Jersey is doing be made to suffer a few preliminary cramps in the event of a visit from the cholera, in consequence of dirty streets. we are quite sure that the people of Philadelphia would be perfectly willing that they should be permitted to try the virtues of their pet prescription of "an injunction" by way of cure for their afflictions. We trust that the Act of Consolidation may be so amended by the Legislature forthwith, as to enable the city authorities to push through the work of cleansing before the hot months are upon us. And if the labor cannot be completed before the thermometer gets up among the nineties, we would suggest that the ultimate heaps of savory scrapings might be left at the doors of "Mc-Kinley et al." both as an act of simple justice and in order to enable those public spirited citizens to try the virtues of an injunction, and of a few boluses of red tape in the deodorizing of stench and the dispelling of the seeds of disease.

A FANCY PICTURE. The Philadelphia correspondent of the London Times is a man of vivid imagination. He writes, under date of February 27th, a most brilliant and picturesque account of the effect in this country of the President's veto of the Freedmen's Bureau bill. He sets out with saying that it had caused "an excitement unequalled in intensity since Fort Sumter was bombarded in 1861!" He goes on as follows:

"This great revolution in sentiment has only been accomplished by the great mass of the people neglecting their business for a week; thronging the streets of the cities; or week; thronging the streets of the cities; or-ganizing monster meetings; compelling by main force State Legislatures and city gov-ernments to endorse the President; firing carnon; mobbing newspapers that sympathize with the Radicals; and in a general way de-claring that Radical fanaticism shall no longer imperil the peace of the country. The remedy is a severe one, but the only one that could have conquered the disease. For five years past it has been the custom to see sympathizers with the South mobbed and beaten. Now the tables are turned. To and beaten. Now the tables are turned. To point out a man as a Radical, an Abolttion-ist, or a 'negro worshipper' will bring down the mob upon him and compel him to run for his life. The 'Copperheads' walk about cheerfully, holding up their heads as they have not done for many a long day; they gather enthusiastic meetings to sustain the President, and, strange transformation for them, have all suddenly become 'loyal' men and supporters of the Government." Was there ever such a lot of lice activity and beaten. Now the tables are turned. To
