TO CLOTHIERS. Our purchases for this season baving been delayed, waiting the expected decline in goods, we have now on hand the largest and best assorted stock of Clothing in Philadelphia, purchased for cash exclusively, at the very lowest rates of the season, which enables us to realize a fair profit and sell at prices less than the east of same goods in most other establishments. We can supply Clothiers doing a fine city trade with goods adapted to their sales at nucleas so much lower than the adapted to their sales at prices so much lower than the cost of their present stocks, that, by making an averag-of the whole, they will be enabled to dispose of their goods at prices covering the average cost, and even paying a profit. EVENING BULLETIN.

SATURDAY, APRIL 14, 1866,

ABRAHAM LINCOLN. The year has rolled around and we have come again to the Saturday that marks the terrible tragedy which took from us Abraham Lincoln. The impress which that dark day made upon the hearts of the whole American people was a deep and lasting one, and all over the land, men, women and children are living over again, to-day, that which they heard and felt and saw when it was first told them that Abraham Lincoln was dead. The profound solemnity of that day will never be forgotten. The first wild, fierce wrath, the sense of solemn awe that followed it, the strange Heaven-sent patience that spared these who were felt to be the indirect participators in the crime, the funeral change that passed over us, as the banners of victory faded away into the sad draperies of mourning, all come back to us to-day. Not to remind us of the nation's loss, for it is never forgotten. The work of the year has been to deepen, day by day, the strong hold which Abraham Lincoln had already laid upon the affections of the people of this country, before the hand of the miserable assassin took his life. The events which have transpired in the nation's history during these twelve months past have all tended in one direction, so far as his memory has been concerned. Loving hearts and hands have been busy in laying before us the story of his life, and the people have already become familiar with the details of his eventful career, and begin, at least, to comprehend the depth and height and breadth of that pure and noble character, which is to be for the future, the type and model of the true American man. And as we have thus studied him, in this first year of our loss, we have been continually reminded of the immeasurable distance that seems to separate him from the statesmen, politicians and great men who have survived him. Again and again our need of just such a man as Abraham Lincoln comes back upon us with all the painful consciousness that we can scarcely hope to see that need supplied. The qualities that made his character peculiar, and that won for him his extraordinary power are so rare among public men, and indeed, as they existed in him, so rare among any men, that we were not wise in our expectation that those who survived him might take up and wear his mantle. He stood so above them all, even while his lowliness kept him so close to the common people; he lived by rules and principles so foreign to the maxims and ideas of ordinary politicians or statesmen; he accomplished his work in such strong, rough, unpolished fashion; he counted himself so truly the servant of the people; he so spent him-self, soul, body and spirit for the country and not for himself, that it would be as strange to find his counterpart coming after him, as it would be for the people of this country ever to forget, or cease to love him. Year by year, this dark day will come back to us with its sorrowful memories, and long after we who now live are turned to dust, the gen-

will continue to "arise and call him THE MURDERER.

erations that are to come after us

Many of our German friends complain of the remarks of the BULLETIN concerning criminals from abroad, and several take us to task for calling the murderer of the Deering family a German. If he is not a German, it is hard to say what he is. He says he is from Strasburg, which is in French territory, but his discharge papers as a United States soldier say he is from Baden, which is German. He said yesterday morning that his name was "Ganter," but he signed himself "Probst" at the prison, and his discharge papers call him 'Prepost." The language he speaks is German; not the purest, perhaps, but it is the only language he knows well. He does not speak French at all, and most Strasburgers have some knowledge of that language. The man has already given such contradictory accounts of himself that it is hard to believe anything he says. It matters little what country he comes from. But it is to be regretted that some means cannot be adopted for checking the indiscriminate emigration to the United States of scoundrels like him from every country in

MAGNESIUM

SPIRAL LIGHTS!

This form of BURNING THE WONDERFUL METAL, MAGNESIUM, has been devised as the most converient method of gradifying the public interest in ONE OF 'I HE MOST REW ASKABLE DISCOVER. To see a Metal burn is an astonishing sight to any one, except the few who are familiar with the secrets of the Laboratory How much more astoniding to see a fittled with a common match and burn with a fit lighted with a common match and burn with a fit as one or ribbon deszles like the sum; and yet with a diffused light so soft and beautiful that it is exceedingly pleasant to the eye, and brings out every delicate shade of color in the carpet, drapery. works of art, and plants in the conservatory or greenhouse, as perfectly as the light of he morning sau That this is no exeggration of the quality and effects of the light from this Metal, will be instantly seen on lighting it.

Besides the interest that attaches to the Magnesium Light as one of the most wonderful and beautiful actentific novelties of the age, it has the additional interest of being a very useful and important practical discovery—already employed in Photography, and for various special purposes of illumination, requiring a very pure and brilliant light.

The SPIRAL LIGHTS are designed chiefly for a delightini and interesting source of amusement; and, as such, they are not only most beautiful and attractive, but perfectly harmless. The Metal itself, and the formes and sahes (magnesis) produced in the burnalne, are entirely are also a very constant, the SPIRAL LIGHTS are also avery constant.

quality and resigned for amusement, the SPIRAL LIGHTS are also a very convenient form in which to apply the light to several practical purposes. They are also admirably suited for use in SCHOOLS and in THE LECTURE ECOM, for the lighting of PRIVATE TABLEAUX, &c.
