The Sale of Robinson's Pictures. The advertisement of Mr. B. Scott, Jr., on our last page, will attract attention and excite interest among lovers of the fine arts. He will this evening commence, at A. S. Robinson's store, 910 Chestnut street, the sale of one of the finest collections of paintings ever offered to the public in America. There are specimens of many of the most distinguished artists of Europe, besides many of this country. Some are rare works by famous men now deceased. They have all been selected by Mr. Robinson with great care, and his well-known taste is a guarantee that nothing inferior will be offered. The collection has been visited by many of our readers, and there are hundreds visiting it to-day. This makes it unnecessary that we should refer to many of the works in detail. We may instance No. 174, "The Road," by Calame, one of the few undoubted originals in this country by that famous Swiss landscapepainter, now deceased. No. 169, "The Hireling Fleeth," by J. C. Morris, is a splendid animal painting by one of Landseer's best pupils. No. 179, "Winter in Holland," by T. Shurt, of Amsterdam, is fine in tone and atmosphere. No. 160, "The Soap Bubble," by Seignac, of Paris, is an exquisite little genre painting. T. Duntre, of Düsseldorf, is represented by several splendid landscapes, which will make a reputation for the artist in this country. There are two good examples of the eminent English landscape painter, Bodington. Nos. 40 and 41, "Black Grapes" and "White Grapes," by Mario, of Paris, are splendid specimens of fruit painting. Fragneau, Bouchez, Vanseverdonk, Litschauer, Von Seben, Rossia, Pichel, Meyer of Bremen, and other celebrated French and German artists are well represented.

Among the American artists who have works in the collection are Haseltine, Hamilton, T. Moran, E. Moran, B. D. Lewis, Geo. F. Bensell, Brown, of New York, H. C. Bispham, Paul Weber, and others. We may expect that the sale will attract as large an attendance as that assembled at the recent sale by Messrs. Earle, which, under Mr. Scott's direction, netted over thirty thousand dollars.

Bierstadt's Great Picture. The exhibition of "A Sterm in the Rocky Mountains," the last great work of Mr. Bierstaldt, has already been announced. With much liberality and patriotism, the artist has made this contribution to the Lincoln Institution, the new Home for the Orphans of our Soldiers and Sailors, just opened in our city. Very few of our citizens have yet had an opportunity to inspect ms superb work of art, and as it is soon to go to its purchaser in England, this will probably be the only chance to see it. Messrs. Wenderoth, Taylor & Brown have fitted up a gallery for its exhibition, and the exquisite beauty of the picture, combined with the excellence of the object for which it is to be exhibited, will, no doubt, attract crowds of visitors. It is universally conceded that in grandeur and tenderness of expression, the "Storm in the Rocky Mountains" excels either of Bierstadt's preceding works. The subject is a scene in Colorado, about eighty miles from Denver City. No description can give any adequate conception of the grand combination of cloud and mountain and valley; of lake and grove and cascade that enter into this magnificent landscape. The dark thunder-clouds are sweeping across one portion of the scene, while birds and flowers are rejoicing in the sunshine which has not yet been obscured by the coming storm. The picture must be seen, to be at all appreciated. The exhibition will be opened on the 21st inst., and will continue open for a few weeks.

Mr. Jarvis's Last Matinee.

The programme for the Concert of Thursday afternoon comprehends three of the most noted compositions of the modern classical school—Mendelssohn's Trio for piano, violin and violincello, opus 49; Hummel's Grand Concerto for piano, opus 113; and Schumann's Quintette, opus 44, for piano and string instruments. Mr. Jarvis, on this occasion, will have the valuable aid of Messrs. Gaertner, Kammerer, Plageman, Schmitz and Albrecht, all excellent executants on their respective instruments, and conscientious musicians. In recalling to memory the five preceeding concerts of this series, it is pleasant to dwell in thought on the many gems of high art that have been presented. The musical taste for this style of compositions is not so general as the true lover of art might wish; but still the number grows, and it is mainly owing to Mr. Jarvis' indomitable energy, excellent judgment and inimitable skill, that the good work goes on, picking up adherents, "here a little, there a little!" We hope Mr. Jarvis will continue his annual series of classical concerts, for they offered an admirable and most agreeable school of instruction.

Sale of Italian Statuary.

Mr. B. Scott, Jr., will have another art sale on Friday morning, at his store, No. 1020 Chestnut street. He will sell a fine collection, imported by Viti Brothers, of Italian marble parlor and garden statuary, vases, monumental figures, &c. There is an exquisite reduced copy of Power's Greek Slave in the collection, which is now on exhibition and attracting many visitors to the Destruction of the Haytien Capital by Fire—A Terrible Scene—One Thousand Houses Destroyed—Eight Thousand People Houseless. [Correspondence Cleveland Herald.]

[Correspondence Cleveland Herald.]

POET AU PRINCE, March 27.—The steamer for New York has not yet arrived, and I have time to write you a brief account of the dreadful misfortune which has befailen these poor people—the aimost entire destruction of the city of Portau Prince by fire. It happened on Monday morning, the 19th Inst. We had just arrived in the city from our little country place, about 7 o'clock in the morning, when the alarm of fire was raised, and before we could run to the scene, it was weeping with terrific furry right through the heart of the city. It broke out in the most thickly setted district and a strong breeze from the land awaptitoward the see.

trict and a strong preeze from the land swept it loward the sea.

The houses were as dry as tinder, parched for many months by the hot tropical sun, it being the dry season at this time, and the least spark on the shingle roof, was sufficient to set them in a blaze. Such ascene of confusion and terror I never before witnessed. The inmates had barely time to catch a few articles and run for their lives. Many were still in bed, and escaped with nothing but their night clothes. The work of the strong strong through the streets acreaming many of them half clothed, and the men were entitlely incapable of doing anything to arrest the itlames. One many of them half clothed, and the men were entirely incapable of foing anything to arrest the slames. One or two broker down engines were found, but not oxe could ra'se a stream higher than the saves of the houses, and there was no water to feed them, except the contents of the gutters in the street.

There was no system or order: a great many generals, decked out with gold face spatiets, were riding furiously around running over people, and telling our orders that were not heeded in the least. Many of the men were engaged in piliering the houses, and getting drunk on the liquors which they found. Not a few sumbled into the fire, and were claser burned to death, or crushed by falling timbers. One poor woman had lost everything, and in the frenzy of the moment rushed into the slames, and was dragged out a blackered corpse.

death, or crushed by falling timbers. One poor woman had lost everything, and in the frenzy of the moment rushed into the fiames, and was dragged out ablackened corpse.

In other parts of the city that were threatened, and, in fact, all over the city, the confusion was almost as great. The streets were crowded with people, carrying their furniture and valuables where they thought they would be secure, and rushing here and there with panic-stricken faces.

Many of the merchants took their money and most valuable things to the ships in the harbor, or to fire-proof buildings, and many of them took their money on their shoulders, in coffee bags, and held it there for lack of a rafer place.

In the meantime the fire ran with marvelous swiftness, and before ten o'clock it had gone from almost track to the sea. More than two hundred houses ere in ashes already, and we hoped that it would rest hera. Every one believed that it had fairly spent itself, but we were doemed to bliter disappointment.

The land breeze died away, and before long in came the sea breeze, and fanned the smoldering embers into flames once more. A few houses that had been saved by great exertion had to succumb to the terrible returning wave of fire which now, came over its former training wave of fire which now, came over its former training wave of fire which now, came over its former the limits of the city, and swept on with fearful rapidity. I was struck with the seeming eagerness with which it would leap over/some houses and burn those beyond irra. The people were now absolutely wild with terror, for it seemed 23 though every house in town would be in ashes before night.

Swarms of men were drunk with stolen liquors and lying helplessly in the streets. The women, shrieking with fright, with their children, and huge bundles on their had one fearful work. More than two-thirds of the city was in sahes, many house for want of fresh fuel. It had done fearful work. More than two-thirds of the city was in sahes, many house for want of fresh fuel. It h

A Soldiers' and Sailors' Mass Meeting at Washington.

A despatch from Washington dated yesterday says:
A mass meeting of soldiers and sailors took place to night at the Assembly Rooms, which was densely crowded. The chiect was to promote such measures as will secure the equalization of bountles, just pension laws, appointments to positions under the Government, and other matters sflecting the rights and interests of the soldiers and sailers of the country. Generals Garfield and Smith, of the House of Representatives, having made speeches in furtherance of these objects, General Schenck responded at length to the first, until now he would not compromise with traitors. The rebels were down, and he would keep them so until they gaye some evidence of repentance, and united in upholding the flag in defence of which there had been so much sacrifice of loyal life and treasure. He characterized as miserable geoundrels those who had attempted to overthrow the best Government on earth. Jefferson Davis was 10 be remembered and and punished as one of the leaders of the rebellion, he would not forget that class of traitors who were educated at West Point; and if there was a second sour apple tree, he did not see why Robert E. Colonel Mckee, of Kentucky, a member of the House, said there should be no compromise with traitors who had perimed the House of loyal men. Calais, Me., Tuesday, April 17.—A large Fenian meeting was held at St. (rolx Hall last night, and was addressed by Messirs Killian and Shnott. The former spoke for an hour on Ireland's wrongs, but declared that in the efforts of the Brotherhood to free Ireland they would respect the laws of the United States. He said the Americans owed the Irish a debt of gratitude for their assistance during the late struggle, and now was their time to assist Ireland in her hour of need. They could do this by sympathy and by furnishing arms or the means to buy them. The Brotherhood now embraced a million of men. It was the true policy of the American pation to prevent the establishment of a monarchy north of them, as was fore-hadowed in the Hritish scheme of Confederation. If those opposed to the measure in the Frovinces were to revolt on account of it the Fenians were ready to assist them, and in doing so would be carrying out what was the true American policy. If the Americans wanted to removemonarchy from Merico how much more careful ought they to be that there is not one now established at Ottawa. He declared it to be the intention of the Fenians to continue holding a convention on the border until the confederation question was settled. Every difficulty that aross under the British flag gave hope to an Irish rebel, and every man that had sucked an Irish mother was a rebel against British tranny. The fishery question was another which the Fenians would see justly settled, which could only be when Great Britain gave up her unwarrantable claims. He dwell largely upon British neutrality during the late war, and made a strong appeal to the sympathies of the people of Calais on this point.

The applause proceeded chiefly from a lot of Fenians in one corner of the hall, who received the signal from the platform.

Mr. Sinnett made a long and ranting blood-and-thunder speech, which amounted to nothing. Both seeks emphatically stated that they did not intend to invade the provi ces.

EASTPORT. Me., Tuesday, April 17.—Hucch of the parties, and the arrest of all implicated will probably soon take place.

TOBONTO, C.W., Thesday, April 17.—Another Fenian arrest was made yest reday at Oakville of a man named Welch. He was sent to Cornwall for trial. The examination of the Fenian prisoners will begin to-day. It is thought probable the result will be the committal of all of them for trial at the next assizes.

CITY BULLETIN.

A VERY HANDSOME IMPROVEMENT.—We recently passed through the new and beautiful residence of Mr. James Evans, the well-known brick manufacturer on Broad street. about two squares south of the Baltimore railroad depot. The front which is offour tories, is composed of pressed brick from the establishment of the owner, and it is chalmed that no such perfect ones have ever been used in this city. The front is ornamented by dressings of marble over the doors and windows, simple but very tasteful it design. These continue to the very top of the brilding, and have a very pleasant effect in breaking the monotopy of the whole. The doors and windows are of solid olled walnut—massive and elaborate. The building is finished with an ornamental cornice of extreme beauty, and the arched doorway is an artisit gem. The entrance is into an ample hall, magnificently fitted up. The walls are hing with paper of pearl color, broken by borders of blue velvet. Upen the left a door opens into a spacious parlor, which fills up our idea of perfect neatness. It is thirty feet long by fourteen in breadth. The mantle is of pure white Veryonderbilt, of this city. This is, perhaps, the most elaborate parlor ornament in the city. The wall paper is of pearl and gold.

The cornice is of heavy moulding, supported by a rich gold band. Immediately in the rear of the parlor is the private office of Mr. Evans, a small, though very neat apartment, with a door opening into the grounds. The dining room is finished in oak, with solid oak furnitive and a mastel-pice of less ornate description than that in the parlor. The two kitchens, one for summer use, are fully equipped with Chelson's ranges, sinks, cupboards, closets, and dumb walters, no expense having been spared to make the building absolutely perfect. The front of the second story contains two spacious chambers, a store-room, and a sitting room, as by 17 feet, the finest soariment in the house. The papering is a delicate buff, with pillars of green velvet and the ceiling in enriched with a magnifice A VERY HANDSOME IMPROVEMENT.-We

LITERATURE FOR THE INSANE.—A visit to the Insane Department of the Almshouse, a day or two since, exhibited to us how important a means of management of this unfortunate class of society is the perusal of the current news of the day, and the enjoyment of a well selected library. That of the Insane Department sadly needs replenishing. It has received very sew additions since the breaking out of the war, all contributions of that kind having been sent either to the military hospitals or to the soldiers in the field. The death of the Rev. Edward C. Jones was severely felt in this respect, that much lamested gentleman losing no opportunity of obtaining accessions to this interesting means of relief. The volumes now in the institution have been read and re-read, again and again, and of course, are somewhat the worse for the wear. Almost every family has some spare volumes about the house, magazines or pamphlets, that they could very well dispense with, and the disposal of them is this direction would do an infinity of good. Any contributions of the kind, or any means of diversion, may be addressed to Fr. S. W. Butler, the superinement, and left at the office of the Guardians of the Poor, 42 North Seventh street, or a note to that gentleman, through the Post Office, will receive immediate attention. We hope our charitable readers will make a note of it. LITERATURE FOR THE INSANE.-A visit

An alarm of fire about 8½ o'clock this morning, was caused by the burning of some cotton at the woolen mill of Parrish & Waiters, on Chestnut street below Thirty first. Damage trifling.

FIRE.-An alarm, shortly before three o'clock yesterday afternoon, was caused by the burning of the roof and upper portion of the three-storied brick building, corner of Front and Margaretta streets, occupied as a dwelling by a lady named Ann Dacosta, whose loss on furniture will amount to about $200, which is fully covered by insurance in the America Fire Insurance Company. Mass Meeting at Calais, Maine.

WEST PHILADELPHIA. — Tuesday was another quiet day, only two arrests being made during the twenty-four hours; a man, bearing the classical name of John Jones, vas committed for varancy, and a weman, calling herel! Ann Judg, for drunkenness. Three additional arrests were made early this morning, two men and a women, likewise cases of vagrancy.

After obtaining our report we were earnestly soll-clied by the efficers in charge to make a personal examination of the "lock-up," trusting that through the influence of the Fyening Bulletin something may be effected toward its amendment. The place of business occupied by the officers, with the telegraphic operator, is located in the northwestern third-story room of the building, to which you have fairly to climb, and is altogether insufficient for the very large an ount of business transacted in the district-the Sixteenth Police District, Twenty-fourth Ward; but the cells below begger description. The Black Hole of Calcutta was a Paradise in comparison. The cells were only four in number, with the plastering faiten from the walls, and the floors rotten with dampness, which was steaming from the walls. The floor, outside, was in even or worse condition, everywhere, through large apertures, exhibing the moist earth beneath, while the rat boles were innumerable. A more squalid arrange ment we never looked upon. Some idea of the number of its humates may be gathered from the fact, that this pestiferous hole, during the year 1865, accommodated no leas than 1.201 odgers, while 1,750 prisoners, on various charges, were immured within its walls. Councils should look into this matter.

CONFECTIONERY ALWAYS IN SEASON.—
There is a delusion, in some weak minds, that Confectionery is never seasonable, except when there is snow upon the ground, and when the Christmas King is about with his sleigh and "tiny reindeer." The best medical authority holds that good Confectionery is a very good thing at all times, and popular usage sanctions its use at all seasons. At all events, Mr. George W. Jeokins, at No. 1037 Spring Garden street (Union Square), offers at each succeeding season such a tempting display of choice sweetmeats that his per ons are always pleased, while health is subserved by the total exclusion of all deleterious compounds in their manufacture. New Jersey Matters. SANITARY PRECAUTIONS.—The Sanitary Committee of Council has taken the presteps in the matter of rotifying housekeepers and property holders, that they must, by the first of May next, have all unisances, fifth, garbage, &c.; removed from their premises; also, that all places where water accumulates and becomes stagrant, shall be filled up, and their places otherwise kept clean. If it is not done by the time specified, the ciry authorities will have it attended to at the expense of such property owners.

CLEANING THE STREETS.—The process of cleaning the streets has again commenced. Workmen are engaged in scraring the dirt up in little heaps, but the practice heretofore has been to let it thus remain until the wind and passing vehicles scatter it about ygain, and making it fit for another scraping. If the committee would see that it was carted away as soon as scraped, the work would be of some use to the city, and more acceptable to the tax payers.
