WEST PHILADELPHIA.--Certainly the most unpleasant of our reportorial duties, is our morning visit to the Police Station, Thirty-seventh and Market streets. Independent of its difficulty of access, perched, as it is, in an out of the way third-story as it is, in an out of the way third-story room, it has an air, not to say, a smell, of positive discomfort. You mount several steps, and your ears are delighted with the delicious discord of over two hundred pupils, of both sexes, on its first floor, as-sisted by the blasphemous and obscene sisted by the blasphemous and observed language of the over-night prisoners in the black-hole below. Surely the innocent children are made acquainted with matters and things, whose filthy recitais bring a blush even to those who are daily and nightly ac-customed to such ribald language. The black hole below, the little, filthy cellar, with its few dormitories, or, more properly speaking, pens, with their decayed walls, rotten floors, from which what a Scotchman would called a "reek" insults the next la of usinted with from Mexico and kindred topics These are interest ing matters, but not more interesting than the state. would called a "reek" insults the nostrils of the hundreds who are hourly compelled to pause at that point to take passage in the Market street cars. market street cars. If the Foite Depart-ment can so disregard the wants of their offi-cers where the labor, from the extent of their detail, is so severe, the Board of Health should examine the concern and demand its removal. Since attention has been called to this matter in the EVENING BULLETIN, there is some talk of erecting cells in the yard. This would, necessarily, cause the removal of the school which ought to have a purer locality than this nest of dissipation and crime. The apartment occupied by the pupils would make an unexceptionable roll room, where the officers could be instantly approached, without the danger of breaking a neck, or a leg, in climbing to a sort of a semi-attic. The business yesterday, was not very large. Four persons, principally females, indulged themselves in a family fight, pos-sibly on account of some love affair. We sibly on account of some love affair. We purposely withhold their names, at the re-quest of the officials, who think they have had enough of police experience to last them a lifetime. A man, named Lewis Kessler, haling from Newmarket street, in this city, was arrested near Haddington, as the sup-posed Jacob Ganter, the accomplice in the Deraing murder. He was found to be an insane man, and was committed to prison to await his delivery to his friends, who were already in search of him. Samuel Loflett and Robert Walker paid their fines for drunkennees, and were discharged. THAT ALLEGED ACCOMPLICE.-Nothing has yet been developed to confirm the statement of Anton Probst, that he had an ac-complice in the murder of the Dearing family. Chief Franklin has received a letter from the Captain of Company I, 11th Pennsylvania Cavalry. The writer states that no such man as Probst describes ever belonged to that company. Yesterday the drinking saloons and several sugar houses in the Eleventh and Twelfth Wards were visited to exercise if to ascertain if any information could be obtained to corroborate Probst's story as to his having worked at a sugar-house with Ganter, seven or eight months ago, and boarded at one or two German houses meanwhile; but none of the boarding-house keepers, nor the workmen in the sugarhouses had any recollection of either Probat or Ganter.

Probst has written to his parents in Germany, informing them of his situation, and admitting the killing of Cornelius Carey. In the letter he repeats the story of an ac-complice. He also wrote that he expected to be hung for the crime he had committed, and hoped they would forgive him for what he had done.

ROBBING EBRAND BOYS .- A young man, Robbing EBRAND Boys.—A young man, who gave the name of William Dehaven, was before Alderman Beitler yesterday afternoon, upon the charge of robbing errand boys. Hisplan was to stop a boy and sena him into a store or some other place with a triffing message, agreeing to hold his bundle until he returned. When the youth got back neither the man nor bua-dle could be found. Dehaven, whose opera-tions appear to have been carried on quite extensively, was arrested through Mr. Geo. E. Franklin, whose errand boy had been extensively, was arrested through Mr. Geo. E. Franklin, whose errand boy had been swindled out of a pair of boots. At the hearing he was fully identified by the lad; also by John E. Watts, a lad in the employ of Mr. John Kuhn, tailor, from whom a pair of pantaloons had been obtained in a cimilar manner. The arguing was hald in similar manner. The accused was held in $4,000 bail for a hearing on Thursday.
