AN EFOQUENT ADDRESS.

CHARGE OF JUDGE ALLISON. THE FINDING OF THE JURY.

Bearing of the Prisoner.

[Continued from the Second Editton.] He is brought face to face with the mother of one of the murd red once, who recognizes the very nextifie he-had on as one made by her eli for Christopher Deer-ing, and who identifies upon the prisoner the very abir he wears, as one stolen from Mr. Desring's house. Eubsequently investigation discloses the fact that the two watches, the two pistols, the converting and who identifies upon take prisoner the very abir he wears, as one stolen from Mr. Desring's house. Eubsequencity investigation discloses the fact that the two watches, the two pistols, the converting and the scene by the guilty one were traced to the possesion of this man, who was alone when he was arrested to Market street, alone at Levinia's, alone at Deering's, alone at Moore's, alone at Deering's, alone in prison, alone in that dock, alone, without coulfederate or accom-pitce in the world-for how idle would it be to suppose interary one had shared the danger and the horrors of that scene, and would not have shared the plunder ior which all this was performed and endured. Tou mort have noticed, denticement of the Jury, that I have not offered any proof of statements or confes-sions made by the prisoner. In so conducting the case I have acted according to the best of my judg-ment. I was fully conscious that the er-it or which all this eas performed and the faciliti s afforded by the citizens had collected a mass of evi-dence that fired the guilt of this prisoner beyond all doubt. I care nothing, and I imagine you care no-tibirg, as to what he said or could asy about it, as af-fording an light in the case or enabling us to arrive at ary correct collision in its decision who could expect truth from the ligs of such a man us this prisoner is p oved to be. Did ever any crimi-nel, hardened enough to take the life of even one man, the then can it be expected that the murderer of right human beings, the murderer of a mother, with her fitte children ub her side; the murde

The very purpose for which this murder was accom plished indicated that the wretch who did it did it fo the purpose of acquiring the means to gratify his low and brutal institucts, and the officers did well to make instart search at Leckfeldt's house, and among havnis of vice and dissipation frequented by the very outcasts of society.

of vice and dissipation frequented by the very outcasts of society. They showed their discrimination to search wher-they found the brute had been, consorting with their norant and degraded Lavinis; none but a fiend in wh s-beart had expired every spork of his celestial origin could have contrived, piotied and planord such -marder. This man, Anton Frobstoccupies the highes pinnacte of wickedness. His name will be written the darkest in crime's dark annals. The records of ou an investigation of who here as the time, but it was as the time, but it was because it became necessary that the jury should have, through the mouths of the witnesses, as true and veritable account of the circumtrances as far as they could be testified to by which must have occurred when Christopher beering lost bis "ife. When you were called to the stand as jurors for the purpose of settling the question rate do you and each of you were saked an opinion of the guilt or innocence of the prisoner. Most of you had formed or expressed an opinion of the guilt or innocence of the prisoner. Most of you had formed or expressed an opinion of the guilt or innocence of the prisoner. Most of you as a you had formed an opinion from the accounts of this transaction you read, or irom the statements you head, formed an opinion from the accounts of this transaction you read, or irom the statements you head, but each of you answered upon your eaths that notwithstanding this impression or opinion, you could enter that box as impression or opinion, you could enter that box as impression of pointon, you could enter that box as impression to entire of your mind, and I do this now when the testimony is closed, and when you ere about to enter upon that deliberation which must determine for the prisoner the question of the solution of your mind, and I do this now when the determine for the prisoner the solen in ity of that loath, and to say that you are obout to exten upon soure a bout to easy that you are bout to be acced and when not to decide the case according to the evidence. It is the glory of the law that it will not permit the life of any man to be taken unless there be full and sufficient you that you are to by the influence of the homese. Indignation which has claimed your attention for the laws are by the sole of the homese indigend when the you may feel at the horrid atrocity of the marker, you are about to experime the case. ording the your are about to say whether a unofer has been commin duty to say that this prisoner any ther consideration or motive or infinence than the evidence which the Commonwealth has submitted to you in this trial. Judge Allison then reviewed the testimony at great length, and the case was given to the jury at RALF-rast 2 O'CLOCK. The jury then retired to deliberate upon a verdict. The Court did not adjourn, but re-mained in session in the expectation of a speedy de-cision on the part of the lurors. During the entire session of the Court to day the crowd inside the building was dense. We have never in all our experience seen anything to approach it. Every spot except the bench and the prisoners door was densely packed with people. Even the space in-side the railing appropriated to the officers of the Court was crowded, many ladies beingpresent to listen to the closing efforts of the counsel engaged in the ab-sorbing case. It was utterly impossible to work one's manages, it was utterly impossible to work one's manages of the bystanders to messengers who communi-cated with the scribes inside by means of notes passed in the same way as "copy" was conveyed out. At fifteen minutes before three o'clock the furry returned into Court. As soon as the flurry occasioned by their entrance had subflurry occasioned by their entrance had sub-sided, Judge Allison addressed the persons present, urging them to abstain from any demonstration of approbation or disapprobation. This was a solemn proceeding, and those who should so far forget themselves as to do anything offensive to the dignity of the Court or the solemnity of the occasion would avoid the numerical would surely be punished. The roll of jurors was then called. The jurors were then directed to stand up and to look upon the prisoner. The latter was di-rected to stand up and look upon the jurors. The Clerk, Mr. George H. Moore, then inquired if they had agreed upon a verdict. The response was in the affirmative. The foreman, in a clear voice then said, that they found Anton Probat, the prisoner at the bar, GUILTY OF MURDER OF THE FIRST DEGREE.

At the request of the prisoner's counsel, the jury was then polled, and each man answered GUILTY OF MURDER OF THE FIRST DEGREE.

District Attorney Mann then gave notice that on Tuesday morning next he would move the judgment of the Court; and the sentence of the law upon Anton Probst, the prisoner.

Deportment of the Prisoner. As the jury re-entered the Court-room, we sat within half-a-dozen feet of the prisoner closely scanning his countenance. His usual stolid aspect did not evince the slightest change, but a beaving of his chest showed that he realized, at least to some de-gree, that the crisis had arrived. After the jury had taken their places and
