EVENING BULLETIN.

MONDAY, APRIL 30, 1866.

THE RECOASTBUCTION PLAN. The confidence of the intelligent masses of the people in the wisdom and patriotism of Congress has been unshaken by all the clamor and bluster of the Copperhead press and its few and feeble allies who still "profess and call themselves" Unionists. The people of the loyal States have learned the lessons of the war literally "by heart." The main, radical issues which it involved, the relations of the rebels to the Union, the deep-dyed guilt of the leaders of the rebellion, the necessity of protection in the future for ourselves and for the freed millions of the South, have all been thought out and reasoned upon, until they have taken definite shape and form. Congress is rarely in advance of the people. There may be occasional instances of a representative separating' himself from the ideas of his constituents, either lagging behind or shooting ahead of them. But, as a rule, representative and constituent move hand in hand and step for step, and so we see Congress, through its Special Committee, evolving out of the tangled and conflict ing opinions of various sections of the country, a simple, well-digested, intelligible policy of reconstruction, that will meet with the cordial support of the whole loyal North.

The almost unanimous agreement of the Commi tee indicates the speedy adoption by Congress of the proposed amendment to the Constitution. It was, of course, unders'oud that Me-srs. Johnson, Grider and Rogers would not agree under the protection of the old flag, and every obstacle is removed from the way of those who really desire to become useful, quiet and prosperous citizens of the United States. For the hungry politicians and scheming demagogues who plunged the country into such a bloody war, the bill provides a wholesome check. They will have to feed elsewhere than at the public crib, and if their necessity should teach them the useful lesson of working for their living, and really earning their daily bread, neither they nor the country will be much the worse for it.

THE CONVICTION OF PROBST. We are quite sure that there can be no diversity of opinion in the public mind as to the justice of the verdict rendered against the butcher of the Deering family, on Saturday afternoon. The short time that elapsed between the period when the jury left the box and their return to it with a verdict (only fifteen minutes) showed clearly that there were no lingering doubts in the minds of the jurors remaining to be dispelled. District Attorney Mann determined at the outset, in the management of the case, to discard, in toto, the prisoner's pretended confession, and by trying him upon the bill charging him with the murder of Christopher Deering, the merits of the case were alone depended upon to insure a conviction. No word of self-accusation that fell from the lips of the murderer, after his arrest, was used against him upon the trial. The District Attorney threw all the resources of of his fine judicial mind, his thorough legal knowledge, his earnest eloquence and his indomitable energy into the case, and every citizen will breathe freer now that this monster in human shape has been brought under the ban of the laws which he outraged. A speedy sentence and a prompt execution of the judgment of the Court will tend to quiet the popular feeling of indignation against the guilty wretch, as well as to the vindication of law and humanity. Messrs. O'Neill and Welbert, who had been assigned by the Court as counsel for the prisoner, had a hopeless task before them, and they discharged it to the best of their abilities. They did their full duty and nothing more than their duty, as officers of the Court, in conscientiously performing a difficult, an unpleasant and a bootless task.

THE FENIAN FIZZLE.

As we feared, the large sums of money contributed by poor Irish men and women for the liberation of their counson, Grider and Rogers would not agree to anyt' ing short of an unconditional surrel der to the South; but the other twelve members unite in approving what will hereafter be known as the
