Condition of Florida, Texas and Louis iana—the Testimony of "Cavalry" She ridan.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The testimony to-day reported by Mr. Washburne, of Illinois, from the Committee on Reconstruction; relative to the States of Florida, Texas and Louisiana, presents no new facts of importance, and mainly embraces the various heretofore expressed by other witnesses. It includes the examination of Major General C. C. Andrews, during a por-tion of 1865 in command of the District of Houston, Texas; Colonel Israel Vodges, until recently in command of the Eastern nntil recently in command of the Eastern District of Florida; B. C. Truman, correspondent of the New York Times; Stephen Powers, correspondent of the Cincinnati
Commercial; De Bow, of De Bow's Review;
Dr. J. M. Turner, editor of the Nashville
Gazette and correspondent of the Washington Union; Caleb Forsey, Superintendent of the Texas Military Institute, and during the war a Confederate engineer; Adjutant General Thomas and Gen. Pallin Sheridan

General Thomas and Gen. Philip Sheridan. The testimony of General Thomas relates principally to the localities of Natchez and New Orleans, in which places he has spent a large portion of the time since the war in connection with a cotton plantation, owned by his son. It represents the people, so far as he came in contact with them, anxious for the restoration of the Union, and favorably disposed towards the Federal Government and towards Northern men.

The testimony of Generat Phil. Sheridan, forwarded by mail to New Orleans, in response to interrogatories sent to him by Senator Williams, as chairman of one of the sub-committees, is given fully, as fol-

HEADQUARTERS MILITARY DIVISION OF THE GULF, NEW OBLEANS, LA., March 31, 1866.—To the Hon. George H. Williams, Chairman of the Committee for the Investigation of Affairs in Louisiana, Texas and Flo-rida, Senate Chamber, Washington, D. C.— DEAR SIR: Your communication of the 23d DEAR SIR: Your communication of the 23d ultimo, requesting certain information as to affairs in Louisians, Texas and Florida, came duly to hand; but owing to my absence in Florida I have been prevented from responding at an earlier day. In compliance with your request, I have the honor to submit herewith my opinions on the sub-jects therein particularized.

Q. What are now the feelings of those who took part in the rebellion, and sympathized with it, towards the General Government? A. I believe they accept the situation, and have an earnest desire for the restoration of a perfect Union, but exhibit, at the same time, an unsubtlebel desire to the same time, an unmistakable desire to

Q. What has been the effect of the unstinted exercise of the pardoning power upon such persons; has it made them more friendly or otherwise towards the Federal Government? A. I have noticed no particular change in sentiment on account of the demency of the Executive.

Q. What would be the effect, in your opinion, upon the State organization if the people were left without control to act for themselves?

A. I believe they would quarrel among themselves, and the sensible and substantial people would regret the absence of the military force.

Q. Are the affairs of the State now in the hands of loyal or disloyal men? A. A very large number of the officers of the State are in the hands of returned Confederate sol-diers and other active participants in the rebellion; I am unable to say what their actual sentiments are in reference to the General Government, but think their outspoken entiments depend to some extent to what is their best policy in order to hold the office.

I have seen those high in authority in a

q. What are regarded as the chief recommendations for office, and what sort of persons would be elected without any outside influence? A. The inclination of belief in the preference for election by the people, and appointment by those in power.

Q. What would be the condition of the loyal men if they were left without any protection by the Federal Government? A. My impression is that for the present they would impression is that for the present they would from any great political end, as I believe, proposes to burn the property and destroy the towns along the sea coast, as far as she influence? A. The inclination to glorify re-bellion gives those who were active partici-

Q. State your opinion as to the necessity for the continuance of a military force in your department, and your reason for this opinion. A. I consider it necessary to maintain a military force in my division for the following reasons:—To give security to Northern capital and Union people, and to give an actual and moral support to the freedmen until he has time to work out his social status. I also believe its presence ne-

Southern people themselves.
Q. What is your opinion as to the necessity and expediency of the Freedmen's Bureau gives that security to the freedman which arises from having some one their effect arises. from having some one to look after and advocate his interests. A change might be made by appointing an inspector-general of freedmen, with the necessary number of as-sistant inspectors, under the charge of the department commander, which would be much more economical, but it would be imposing duties on the military which I do not recommend, as I think it should have as little as possible to do with civil affairs.

Q. What would be the condition and the fate of the freedmen if left without protection and the exclusive control of the white tion and the exclusive control of the white people there? A. I fear there would be a great deal of trouble; a large number of the people would act in good faith towards them, but there would be many who would not, under a war of races to some extent would probably be a consequence.

Q. State fully your opinion as to the capacity of the colored people. What do they know and to what extent can they exercise the rights of freemen? Are they ergise the rights of freemen. Are they willing or unwilling to work without physical compulsion, with kind treatment and fair wages; and state what, in your judgment is the best course for Congress to pur-ment is the best course for Congress to pur-sue in reference to these people? A. The colored race, like all other races, have dif-ferent degrees of intelligence and capacity. In New Orleans, where colored people are better treated than any other city in the United States, there is an excellent colored society and a very high degree of refinement exists in it. Starting from this, you can go into the State of Louisiana, and find colored man about as ignorant as it is possible for any human being to be. The freedmen, so far as I am informed, have a great desire to learn; I cannot say whether they learn rapidly or not; I believe they are learn rapidly or not; I believe they are willing to work because their necessities compel them to do so. In this they are like all other races. I have never known a white or black man who was performing manual labor for the love of it. I believe that the best thing that Congress or States can do is to legislate as little as possible in reference to the colored man, beyond giving him security to person and property. His social status will be worked out by the logic of the necessity for his labor; it is the only labor that can be obtained in the Southern States for some time to come. States for some time to come.

Q. Please to make such suggestions as occur to your mind as to the most judicious and efficient remedies for the evils that exist and efficient remedies for the evils that exist in your Department, growing out of the late rebellion. A. The feeling and sentiment of those within the limit of my command is as good, perhaps, as could be expected, still not satisfactory. The people of Louisiana are poor, and to the best of my knowledge, heavy constrages exist more perhaps, the heavy mortgages exist upon, perhaps, the majority of plantations in the State, for debts contracted before the war. In many instances those plantations will fall into the hands of Northern people, who, from present appearances, will at no very distant period control. Language of the second control. control Louisiana, even in sentiment. Having this prospect before them, it is not surprising that a spirit of bitterness and discontent should exist. I believe that a majority of the people are not opposed to the General Government, and, in fact, ear-done or offered to do, he has been consulted nestly desire to be restored to a perfect union with the other States. Still sufficient time has not yet elapsed to efface the recol-lection of their having been raduced from affluence to limited means, the chagrin of being conquered, and to submerge the idea of glorifying rebellion and its representa-tives. This latter idea and its consequences prevail to so great an extent, that I consider the retention of the military in Louisiana for some time as necessary for the rana for some time as necessary for the security of emigrants, freedmen and capital. Florida is not poor from old debts and havoo of war, like Louisiana, and the tone and sentiment of the people is very fair, and a great desire manifested to restore the old Union. Texas has increased in wealth by the rebellion. the rebellion. Among the best people there is a very good feeling towards the Government. There is a class of lawless people there, however, which this sentiment does not control, and which cannot be controlled but by the military. The senti-ment in this State will not change from the influence of Northern emigration and Northern capital, as in the State of Louisiana. It is essential that the military in considerable force be maintained in the Department of Texas.

I have the honor to be, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant, P. H. SHERIDAN, Major General Commanding.

BOMBARDMENT OF VALPARAISO.

Official Report of Commodore Rodgers.

The following despatches relative to the bombardment of Valparaiso, have been received at the Navy Department:

U. S. STEAMSHIP VANDERBILT, VALPA-RAISO, March 31, 1866.—Sir: I have the honor to announce that upon my arrival in this port with the squadron under my command, I called upon the English Admiral, who informed me that he intended to prevent any sudden bombardment, and would only suffer it after ample notice. To this I made no reply, but having considered the matter, sought occasion the next day to say that I would join him in preventing any sudden bombardment, and that I would also go as much further as he chose. I assured him that the Monadnock could take care of the Numancia; that from target experiments I had witnessed, I was absolutely certain that in not less than thirty seconds and not more than thirty minutes, the Monadnock herself, entirely unscathed, would leave only the mast-heads of the Numancia above water; and that our wooden vessels. English and American, could look out for the wooden vessels of the Spaniards.

In thus offering to go beyond the letter of my instructions to observe a strict neutrality, I acted upon the supposition that neutrality among the nations did not pre-clude all well-directed efforts to keep the peace among them; that as a peaceable citizen is not obliged to stand by inert while another is suffering from the unlawful violence of a third person, but may justly in-terfere with force to prevent an infraction of the laws (a murder for instance), so a nation, witnessing the like disturbance among her sister nations, need not rest absolutely impassive, but, with a sincere mutrality, might interpose with force, if necessary, to keep the operations of belligerents at least within the laws for the protection of neutral persons and neutral property.

I considered that Spain had left her colo nies under a stringent colonial policy and religious intolerance. In the course of time encouraged by the more liberal laws of a state of freedom, foreigners had been in-duced to settle in the country, and to embark their capital in commerce and other industrial pursuits. Towns had sprung up along the coast; railroads had been built, and other material interests developed, Ideas, as well as manufactures, had been introduced; the wealth and intelligence,

Is it right that she should thus exercise her power of destruction unrestrained along the shores of this continent? The mode of warfare which Spain proposes is terrible, but it seems to me such as will provoke aumosity rather than coerce national will and therefore was not directed to its legitimate end. Consequently such warfare might be resisted.

I am aware that action in the premises, on our part, involves great responsibilities but I had reached the conclusion that win England as an ally it was my duty not to shirk them. I told the English Admiral what I have here written, and frankly added that his commerce was more extensive than ours, and more convenient to the coasts of Spain: but as he had more to suffer in consequence of a rupture with Spain, he had also more to preserve by interference. His interests in Chile rose to thousands where ours were only hundreds. The Euglish Admiral said at first that he would go with me, for I plainly declared that I would not take a step without him. I said that I had no intention of becoming a catspaw to draw back European chestrate out at the draw back European chestnuts out of the fire, and then have the powers I served laughing at my singed paws while they enjoyed the fruits of my temerity.

The English Admiral finally determined to throw the responsibility upon the English Minister, who did not choose to act in the premises. English co-operation having failed, no separate action on my part was taken as wear had her property. taken, as none had been proposed. I have used such measures as I could to bring about an accommodation, but without

This morning at nine o'clock, the Spanish Admiral opened upon the town with shotand shell, directing his fire principally against public buildings and storehouses. After a continuous bombardment of two hours and fifty minutes the firing ceased, and the Admiral withdrew his vessels. Four of the store buildings connected, with the customstore buildings connected with the customstore buildings connected with the custom-house were entirely destroyed with their contents. Other adjoining buildings used for the same purpose were very much injured. The value of merchandise de-stroyed in these was vaguely estimated at some twenty-two millions of dollars. The Intendencia, or Government house, the Bolsa, or exchange, and railroad buildings were damaged to a considerable extent. Boisa, or exchange, and railroad buildings were damaged to a considerable extent. Naturally and inevitably parts of the city which the Spanish Admiral declared he did not intend to injure received many of his missiles. Several blocks of private buildings were destroyed by fire and churches. ings were destroyed by fire, and churches and convents and hospitals were not exempt from injury. Few lives were lost—not more than eight or ten. More than eight or ten.

I enclose herewith copies of the letter addressed to me by the foreign residents of Valparaiso, representing the interests of nearly all the nationalities of Christendom, mearly all the nationalities of Christendom, most of them bearing an official character, with a copy of my answer, also, copies of the manifesto and letter of the Spanish

When I was assured that the British Adwhen I was assured that the British Admiral was determined not to resist a bombardment, I called upon him and said that as he did not intend. I should not do so, and that as I did not choose to drift into a collision where I had no purpose to collide. I should move my vessels to get out of the Spanish way. This intention I communicated verbally to the Spanish Admiral. Thrust by circumstances into a position in which it became necessary to take some part I feel a natural anxiety to know whether the one I took meets the approbation of the Government. In my whole course I have conferred freely with our Minister, Genera and he has fully concurred. If his name has not been mentioned before, it was to avoid breaking the continuity of my narrative, and not because I am with strong sense of obligation for his co-opera-
