BUSINESS NOTICES. A SPOILED MAYING.
The flowers that meant to welcome May
Were all prepared to "come out"
In light and delicate array.

But shrank backward with a pout When they felt such rough edged breezes And heard fewer songs than sneezes. But now their dainty heads they raise,
And their rosy smiles recall;
And now each well-dressed youth displays His Spring suit from Tower Hall.

hing as these prices may seem, compared with they are not pictitious—we have the goods in QUANTITIES AT THE PRICES MENTIONED. We make up no trash-they are all serviceatle goods. Advancing n these rates we have goods of all grades up to the very finest fabrics, in large supply at a proportion reduction from former prices; comprising BY FAR the largest and most complete assortment of Clothing in Philadelphia (Len's, Youths' and Boys'), surpassed by none, and equaled by few, in style, make and fit, at prices guaranteed lower than the lowest elsewhere, or Gentlemen who usually have their clothing made to measure, can be as well or better fitted from our stock in garments equal in every respect, at from 25 to 50 per cent. lower prices. Those who prefer can have their goods made to measure in the best manner, with a fine assort ment of price goods to select from.

Our purchases for this season having been delayed waiting the expected decline in goods, we have now on hand the largest and best assorted stock of Clothing in Philadelphia, purchased for CASH EXCLUSIVELY, AT THE VERY LOWEST BATES OF THE SEASON, which enables us to realize a fair profit and sell at prices less than the cost of same goods in most other establishment We can supply Coothers doing a fine city trade with goods adapted to their sales, at prices so much lower than the cost of their present stocks, that, by making an swerage of the whole, they will be enabled to dispose of their goods at prices covering the average cost, and ever paying a profit. REMOVAL OF THE BULLETIN OFFICE. On and after Monday, May 7th, this paper will be published at the New-BULLETIN BUILDING, No. 607 Chestnut street, above Sixth. In consequence of having to print our issue postponing the ordinance which was deof to-day upon another press, as an has so often scared the town from its proincident of the removal, several adver- priety, when there was not the slightest netisements have been unavoidably left cessity for such a scaring. But the law under which voted during the worm to the work to the desirous of having their Lungs examined, can have it done free occurance. "rental value" of the homestead occupied by the tax-payer. But the law under which the tax is levied is not thus silent. Section 117 of the amended internal revenue laws of March 3, 1865, contains a clause, that in estimating the annual gains, profits and income of any citizen, shall be deducted "the amount paid by any person for the rent of the homestead used or occupied by himself congratulate the University on this most

This is certainly very plain language, and it was framed in order to explain away the vagueness and indefiniteness of the original law, which was construed to discriminate between the citizen who lived in his own homestead, and the person who rented his dwelling, to the prejudice of the former.

These officials had better study the law before attempting to make decisions under it, and they should scrupulously avoid doing anything that is calculated to bring an annoying system of taxation into worse odor than it really merits.

THE NEW ARMY GRADE. The nearest approach which has been made to unanimity in the present Congress.

made to unanimity in the present Congress, was the vote yesterday upon the bill reviving the grade of General in the army. With only eleven dissenting voices the House conferred this new distinction upon the man whom the people delight to honor. Lieutenant General Grant is not named in the bill, as the appointing power is vested in the President, but it is, of course, understood that it is for him that the grade has been revived. In a speech of great eloquence and ability, Mr. Deming reviewed the glorious career of onr American Captain. We read with just pride this glowing tribute to a man who, four or five years ago, was a quiet, unknown farmer in Missouri, and who to-day stands confessed the greatest and the most successful soldier.

M'CALLA'SNEW HAT STORE, 618 CHEST. NUT, 1920 All-wool good style Fancy Cassimere Suits, to match those to which we have been accustomed for several years power is vested in the President, but it is, the greatest and the most successful soldier of the age. It will be as gratifying to the country at large, as it must be to General Grant himself, that our Representatives have conferred this new honor upon him, under circumstances of such almost unpredented cordiality. No pecuniary emolument that could have been bestowed upon could have had any such value in the eyes of this most modest of soldiers, as this expression of the unbounded affection and confidence which he has won by the persistent courage, the distinguished ability and the lofty devotion which he has given to the cause of his country. Congress has another duty to perform in his same direction, which we trust will be discharged without delay. As there was no possible grade of army rank from which General Grant could properly be excluded, so there is no promotion in the navy which the name of Farragut would not honor and adorn. His present rank of Vice Admiral is a most distinguished one, but it is not high enough. The services of a naval commander involve the exercise of some qualities and the possession of some talents in higher measure than are ordinarily needed in the direction of military operations on land. The personal risks of an admiral are precisely the same as those of the commonest seaman in his fleet. He is always "at the front," and whether engaging an enemy or battling with the elements he and his crew must share all dangers alike. His responsibilities also, are of the most trying nature. The emergencies of naval service occur, ordinarily, at points remote from home, where every officer is expected to act promptly and wisely under every difficult and dangerous And yet there is a singular disposition, on contingency, often involving the most delicate diplomatic questions, the wrong decision of which may plunge his nation into war. We remember once to have heard Admiral Farragut himself laughingly remark: "I have never yet been able to find out what a sailor is not expected to know." the part of Western men especially, to underrate the services of the Navy, while they justly extol the prowess of the Army. "This they should have done, and not gress should create the grade of Admiral, and confer it upon the weatherbeaten here of Now Orleans the weatherhave left the other undone." Conbeaten hero of New Orleans and Mobile. For fifty years—a whole life-time—he has carried our flag gallantly in all quarters of the globe, and General Grant, with all his glorious record, has displayed no quality of bravery, patriotism or ability that does not find its counterpart in the splendid achievements which have linked the name of Farragut inseparably with his own.

LAID AT REST. In Common Council, on Thursday, the Chairman of the Committee on Fire and Trusts presented an ordinance requiring the State House beil to be rung for all alarms of fire. This bill was, we presume, prepared to meet the views and wishes of a convention of firemen held recently. The convention referred to utterly failed to give any satisfactory reason why the rule of silence established by Mayor Henry should be interfered with, and the experience of almost every day demonstrates the wisdom of the arrangement. Common Council, we are satisfied, simply followed in the wake of enlightened public opinion by indefinitely signed to re-arouse the "dreadful bell" that town turned topsy-turvy whenever a fire,

THE INCUMETAC.

A morning cotemporary, of large circulation, in a recent article upon the interesting subject of the Income tax, says:

"Rent of homestead actually paid may be deducted, but the rental value of the property owned by the tax-payer is not a subject of deduction."

We are inclined to believe that our ususually correct neighbor is in error in respect to taxpayers who live in their own houses. The printed blanks that have been circulated among citizens the present year have a space appropriated to deductions for house rent; but they say nothing concerning the role as pace appropriated to deductions for house rent; but they say nothing concerning the man well known in this community" or his live in their says and sandars and the house circulated among citizens the present year have a space appropriated to deductions for house rent; but they say nothing concerning the man well known in this community for his community for hi

The honey-suckles clung:
But still flove the cottage, where
I passed my early years
Though not a single face is there
That memory endears.

It is not as it used to be!
The moss is on the roof,
And from their near beneath the eaves,
The swallows keep aloof.
The robins—how they used to sing
When you and f were young:
And how would filt the wild bee's wing
