

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE WEST INDIA TELEGRAPH BILL. "What Bill is that?" "Oh, yes, my dear, I know him well. It is a young fellow. Just arrived from Jamaica's side. Where the son, with his burning smile, turns folks rather yellow. In a neighborhood office clerk, he takes his nickname from his work; And, doubtless, like smart fellows all, He buys his clothes from Tower Hall!"

EVENING BULLETIN.

MONDAY, MAY 7, 1866.

RECONSTRUCTION. After some vacillations, the chief of which was caused by a conflagration on the night of January 1st, 1865, the EVENING BULLETIN is at last established on a new and commodious quarters at No. 727 Chestnut street. The building is in some respects still unfinished; but the arrangements necessary for the publication of a newspaper are fit for use, and in a very short time the whole structure will be completed. In this property, owned by the present owners of the paper, it will probably be printed during the lives of them. With one exception, it is now the most Western newspaper office in the city. Future BULLETINS may be printed by future owners for future generations of readers, West of Broad street, or indeed across the Schuylkill, when the centre of population and business shall have travelled so far. But it is not likely that many of the present readers will know any other abode of the paper than that to which we have just removed. The convenience, the comfort, the light and ventilation of the new establishment are in such marked contrast with the place to which we have removed, that it may be expected that all hands engaged on the paper will work with better spirit, and make it more worthy than ever in the public favor so liberally extended to it.

THE EUROPEAN WAR-CLOUD.

Austria and Prussia have very wisely concluded not to go to war. Each power has resolved to disarm, and the question of the Duchies is to be referred to the German Diet, which will probably assemble at Frankfurt without delay. But a little war-cloud has arisen, and it appears that the latter power, hoping to be able to take advantage of a rupture between Austria and Prussia, has been seeking for an alliance with the latter power, and has been increasing its forces in Lombardy, with a view to stirring up a rebellion in Venetia. Of course, Austria at once sent more troops to Venetia, and adopted strict police regulations all along the frontier. A pretty sharp feeling existed, at the latest accounts, and there were some apprehensions of war. But it is said that the Emperor Napoleon, whose views must have been consulted by Victor Emmanuel, has declared that he will not assist Italy in any attack on Austria. Therefore, it is not likely that there will be a war, for Italy could hardly attempt one, single-handed, with any chance of success. This pacific settlement of the Austro-Prussian difficulty, at which every humane creature must rejoice, will, we hope, be followed by a like settlement of the Austro-Italian difficulty. Much as we should like to see Venetia incorporated into the Kingdom of Italy, we have had such horrid experience of war on this continent, that we deprecate it in all other countries.

THE INCOME TAX AND HOUSE RENT.

We have received the following communication from Mr. Southworth, the Assessor of Internal Revenue for the Fourth District: "You have fallen into an error in your article of Saturday about house rent, in connection with assessment of income. Below is a correct copy of that portion of section 117, to which you refer. You will observe it has no such meaning as you give it. It prohibits an assessment of the rental value of the property, but gives no authority to take the rental value out of other income. Drop the word 'not' and you will instantly realize the effect."

The law says: "And the rental value of any homestead used or occupied by any person, or by his family, in his own right or in the right of his wife, shall not be included and assessed as part of the income of such person."

The explanation made by Mr. Southworth gives a construction to this clause different from what it would receive at the hands of most persons who would read it. He is, we believe, right, however; and we have fallen into an error as he says. As laws are made for the government of citizens, they should be written in an intelligible form, and no law should be framed in language that is so readily susceptible of a double meaning. It has long been the fashion with legislators that each law requires half a dozen explanatory enactments, until at last the title of the law stands somewhat in this wise: "An act entitled an act amendatory of an act explanatory of an act entitled an act to correct certain inaccuracies in an act entitled an act to regulate the said fisheries."

The income tax law is getting into much the same predicament, and between laws that would puzzle a Philadelphia lawyer for returns that are understood by nobody, the poor taxpayers are in a bad scrape.

PROGRESS AT THE SOUTH.

The South is rapidly reconstructing itself. The people are busily at work filling up all the local offices, and care is taken that they shall only be filled with ex-rebels. A well-established rebel officer finds in the fact that he fought against the Government and that he acted the North sufficient recommendation to enable him to override any antagonist who dared to be loyal during the rebellion. But there must, of course, be a choice even between rebel and rebel, for there are always more "pegs than holes to put them in," as Mr. Lincoln once said of the aspirants for Brigadier-ships. In all such matters of choice, the preference is given to the man who can show the bitterest hostility to the Government, or who was guilty of some particular enormity in the prosecution of the rebellion. One of the latest illustrations of this fondness for making treason and murder fashionable and popular, is to be found in the release on parole of a guerrilla named Gurley, who was one of the murderers of General Edwin McCook, near Murfreesboro'. Gen. McCook was captured while lying sick and helpless in an ambulance, and murdered in cold blood. A gallant deed like this could not be allowed to go unrewarded, and after undergoing a brief imprisonment, such as might be inflicted on a moderate recreant, Mr. Gurley is released by the President and promptly elected Sheriff of his county. Two important points are thus gained. Treason is once more "made odious" by Executive clemency, and a desperado is secured to administer civil law, which occasionally requires the destruction of human life.

The policy which thus punishes treason on the back and ignores the loyal sentiment of the country, is as popular with the South and with Southern sympathizers as its author can possibly desire. Such extreme specimens of its practical working as the one we have just quoted, serve the good purpose of confirming the weak faith and strengthening the feeble knees of timid though really loyal people, by showing them the results which this policy is actually producing. People who cannot see the odiousness of treason, when it walks in high places and distinguishes itself by the magnitude and variety of its crime, may be able to comprehend it, when it assumes the simple form of the cold-blooded assassination of a sick Union officer. The guerrilla Gurley belongs to the same class of traitors with Mudd, Spangler and Arnold, any one of whom could probably be elected to-day to respectable offices at the South, if the President would release them from the Tortugas on parole.
