WAS IT THE FIRST SCREW STEAMER?

A contributor to the Providence Journal relates the particulars of the building of a screw steamer at Providence sometime from 1807 to 1809. It was constructed by the industry of Jonathan Nichols, blacksmith, a native of Vermont, and David Griffo, tailor, from Nantucket, and was about forty feet long, and worked by four horses. A small model boat had been before successfully worked. On 24th June, 1807, the craft went to Pawtucket with a party to attend a Masonic gathering, and a happy couple to be married at that place. The trip to Pawtucket was made in about two hours, but on the return the vessel being driven by a keel, drifted ashore in a thunder squall.
