The Reported Massacre at Fort Goodwin. SAN FRANCISCO, May 15.—The military authorities have information from General Mason, dated April 25th, who says nothing about the massacre at Fort Goodwin. letter, with late date from Gaina, discredits the report. It is now believed here that the 14th Regulars could not have reached Fort Goodwin before April 29th.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—A letter from Charles Hamilton, dated Williamsfork,
Arizona, April 30th, seems to confirm the massacre at Fort Goodwin. He states that massacre occurred ten days previous, and that of the two companies of regulars, 3d battalion, 14th regiment, consisting of one hundred men, only seven escaped, the remainder being murdered and scalped. The Apaches reaped a rich harvest, carry-ing off arms, ammunition, commissary stores, etc. A number of supposed friendly Indians had been admitted into the fort, and surprised the garrison. A tribe called Houlapes had murdered one man and committed other outrages in the vicinity of Williamsfork. Lieut. Cervantes, Co. A, with twenty-six men attacked the Apaches, forty-five miles east of Camp Lincoln, about March 24th, killing twenty-two, wounding five and capturing two. National Bank Notes. The following letter contains an important decision:

TREASURY OF THE UNITED STATES, WASHINGTON, May 16, 1866.—Dear Sir: Your letter of the 10th inst. has just now been received. You ask to what extent is the Government liable for the redemption of the notes of the I answer to the full nominal face value of every note issued by the Comptroller of the Currency to a bank, and by a bank put into circulation.

You ask: "Should the bank deposits with the United States Treasurer to secure the circulating notes with the banks depositing them be inadequate to the redemption of the notes of the bank, by reason of the de-cline of the securities deposited, is the Gov-arnment bound to redeem the notes at par?" The 47th section of the national currency act not only gives the right to forfeit all the securities held for any deficiency, but the Government has a first and paramount lien upon all the assets of a defaulting bank.

I therefore answer this question affirmatively.

You ask again, "Could the absolute failing of a national bank impair the value of the circulating notes of the bank making such failures?" I answer, No. On the con-trary, the notes of a national bank that has failed are rather better than those of a bank in good standing, if away from the business marts or commercial centres of the country; for the reason that the Treasurer of the United States becomes the cashier of such defaulting bank, and will, through his asistants and all other Government officers.

You ask, fourthly, "Are the notes of the United States Treasury, beyond the fact of their being legal tenders, a greater security to the holders than the currency of the national banks?" tional banks?

The United States legal tender notes af-ford no greater security is the holder than the notes of national banks. The only real difference between the two is that while the latter are only a legal tender from and to the Government, the former are such legal tender from and to all parties, whether mu-nicipalities, cor porations or individuals.

Very respectfully, yours,
F. E. SPINNER, Treasurer,
R. E. Daniel, Esq., Cashier Merchants'
National Bank, Memphis, Tenn.

A Touching Tribute—Honor to the Memory of the Martyrs of Belle Isle.—Miss Mary E. Thropp has kindly favored us with an item from her sister's last letter, which may not be uninteresting to the friends of our martyred heroes:

"On the first of May, a part of the family here, including myself, went over to Belle Isle and placed a bouquet of flowers on every soldier's grave.

"In the centre of the cemetery we erected a large cross of evergeens and flowers. In the centre of the cross was fastened a white lily, around which were wreathed magnolias and other rare and beautiful flowers. A Touching Tribute-Honor to the lias and other rare and beautiful flowers. Every green grave has a neat white head-stone, all ranged in rows, and fronting the West. Near the tops of these we nailed the bouquets. Nearly two hundred of our soldiers are sleeping here 'the sleep that know. "After we had finished our work we all stood round the cross in the centre and sang some hymns and chanted the The

Lord's Prayer.'
"It had rained heavily during the morn ing, but, just as we gathered round our floral cross, the clouds broke away, and the sun shone forth gloriously over the lowly graves, each bearing its badge of flowers. It seemed as if God smiled on our unobtrusive work. No sound broke the impressive stillness but the low murmuring of the James dashing against the rocks. The whole scene will ever remain to me a picture in memory's picture-gallery, too solemn, too beautiful to be forgotten. "Green are their bays, but greener still Shall round their spreading fame be wreathed, and nations yet unborn shall thrill With reverence, when their names are breathed." RICHMOND, May 12, 1866.

ABBEY OF FECAMP.

This Cordial, which dates as far back as 1510, is an anti, apoplectic tonic, digestive, and of an exquisite taste. The salutary plants which compose it, gathered on the slopes of the hills of Normandy, salurated with the vivifying emanations of a Northern sea, makes it. one of the best cordials and one of the most efficient. preventives against epidemic affections Of late, the French medical corps has been almost unanimous in prescribing its use so the sick who, by their imperfect gastric disposition, were more liable to-the attacks of fevers and cholera.
