EVENING BULLETIN.

THURSDAY, MAY 17, 1866.

SHOULD CONGRESS ADJOURN? We are approaching the time when Congress must decide upon the important question of its adjournment. Ordinarily, this question is easily settled by the simple consideration of the discomfort of a summer residence in Washington, but in the present case, an adjournment of Congress may well be looked upon as a matter serious enough to be thoroughly weighed before it is decided upon. So long as Congress is in session, the country has little to fear from the designs of the radicals who are bent upon forcing the rebel States back into their old position of political power in the Government. Congress stands, quietly, but with a bold and united front, as a bulwark between the Government of the United States and those who so recently plotted its overthrow, and we see no influence that can be brought to bear, that will move our representatives from the patriotic ground which they occupy.

But what if Congress adjourn? What if the bad advisers who have filled the President's ear with their flatteries, and who labor, day and night, to widen the breach between him and Congress, for their own selfish ends, are allowed to pursue their work unmolested, during the months which will intervene between the adjournment and the re-assembling of Congress? We do not wish to judge Mr. Johnson harshly, or to attribute to him any revolutionary esigns; but he is surrounded by men without principle or responsibility, who would hesitate at nothing desperate, if they felt that they were no longer restrained by the presence of Congress in Washington. How fartheir present influence over the President would go, of course no one can predict; but judging from the past and the present, we may well feel an honest concern about the probable consequences of an adjournment at this time. If the President should be induced to summon an extra session of Congress, he would doubtless be urged to include in his call the Senators and Representatives from the eleven States, and, by a sort of coup d'état, to force them upon Congress. Many of the men who are at present managing the President, are not a whit too good to propose some such scheme as this, and Mr. Johnson has made the immediate and unqualified admission of these States such a sine qua non, and rides this sing hobby with such obstinate energy, that we cannot but fear that he might be tempted to compass his darling scheme, even by a resort to very extreme measures. Of with much trouble, and would be sure to increase the difficulties between the two branches of the government, which all good men desire to diminish and remove. It is asking a great deal from Congress to expect it to remain in permanent session during the hot summer months. but it is not asking too much. The Union majority is so large that it would beeasy to arrange for the absence of a considerable number in rotation, thus affording the necessary recreation for all, and with the Capitol properly fitted for a summer session, there are many more uncomfortable places than the halls of Congress. A continuous session would of course involve a certain amount of personal inconvenience, but the times are critical and unsettled, and the country looks to its representatives at Washington as to a body on which it can rely. The country will endorse and sustain Congress, and it will do it all the more readily if it finds that there is a willingness to endure some personal sacrifices for the public good. With Congress in permanent session we shall feel no fear for the interests of the Republic.

FENIAN FINANCES.

We think that Mr. Stephens, the Fenian Head Centre, scarcely did justice to the late managers of the Fenian movement in this country, during his ecent Jones's woods speech. It is not our province to defend the O'Mahonyites against the charges of blundering and wastefulness that have been made against them, for we think the managers proved themselves to be perfect adepts in both descriptions of management. But we love fair play, and Mr. Stephens should have either told all the facts concerning his receipts of Fenian monies from America, or he should have said nothing whatever upon the subject where persons whom he attacked, by implication at least, were bound by the pledge of secresy to keep their lips closed. Mr. Stephens told of certain comparatively small sums that had been sent to him from America; but he made no allusion whatever to the sum of $70,000 which the books of the late Secretary of the Treasury Killian state were sent to the Irish Head Centre. Mr. Stephens says that up to the close of 1865, during the eight years Fenianism had then been in existence, he had received $23,500 from America. We presume that the greater part of the $70,000 referred to by us must have been sent to him since the close of 1865. This is very ingenious, but it is far from ingenuous, and it does great injustice to the Fenian managers who are under a cloud, for their Moffatt mansion extravagance; their failure at Campo Bello, which cost their treasury $26,000; their canvassback-duck-champagne-kid-glove-andpatent-leather-boot luxuriousness, and for their Fair, gotten up in New York, where the gentle Fenians who managed it started the festival with a fund of $10,000 and closed it with a net result of $1,500. Of this last named exploit it has been pithily said that the sinking of $1,500 by the fair Fenians was an evidence that "they loved not Ireland less, but silk dresses more." We repeat that it is not our province to vindicate Fenian financial blundering, and we do not design making an effort to do so; but Mr. Stephens should have given full credit for American contributions received by him, or he should have said nothing upon the subject. Fiat Justitia, ruat

Finneganum. MISS ANNA E. DICKINSON.-We call attention again to the lecture of this truly eloquent young lady, to-morrow evening, at the Academy of Music, on "My Policy." It strikes us as rather a curious concatenation of circumstances, that she should hold forth on Friday night in denunciation of "My Policy," and, on Saturday night, at the same place, the friends of "My Policy" will congregate, in obedience to the royal mandate, to organize "a mutual admiration society," whose functions will consist in controlling Federal appointments. We predict for Miss Dickinson the largest and most brilliant assemblage that has convened to hear her since her beautiful and touching tribute to the memory of our murdered President, a year ago last April. It was then the assassination; now it is the sui-BIERSTADT'S GREAT PICTURE.-Bierstadt's great picture,"A Storm in the Rocky Mountains," has attracted, as it deserved, large numbers of visitors during its exhibition in this city. The magnificent painting itself, and the patriotic object for which it is exhibited, have combined to make Messrs. Wenderoth, Taylor & Brown's galleries a most fashionable resort, and we are glad to learn that the "Lincoln Institute" will reap substantial benefit from Mr. Bierstadt's liberality. The exhibition closes in two or three days, and all lovers of art should avail themselves of this last opportunity to see one of the greatest pictures ever painted in America.

THE ARTISTS' SALE.—This evening the first public sale of pictures by Philadelphia artists will take place at Scott's Art Gallery, 1020 Chestnut street. Among them are works of Hamilton, Lewis, George F. Bensell, E. B. Bensell, Bispham, W. S. Young, Galvan, Fennimore, Milne Ramsay, D. R. Knight, Richards, Fagan, and many other excellent artists, who have all executed their respective pictures expressly for this sale. We expect a large attendance of connoisseurs and a spirited competition.

F PETERSON'S NEW COOK BOOK.—As will be seen by an advertisement elsewhere, Messrs. T. B. Peterson & Brothers announce a new edition of their "New Cook Book." It contains over eight hundred and fifty receipts of the most valuable character.

SIGNOR PERELLI will bring out the opera of La Favorita on Saturday eyening, at Concert Hall, he himself taking the part of "Fernando." Mrs. Davis will play "Leoncourse such a coup d'état wouldonly re- fonso," Mr. Taylor "Baldasarre," and Mr. ora," Miss Poole "Inez," Mr. Angier "Alsult in failure; but it might be attended Engelke "Gasparo." This will be the tenth and last of the amateur Italian operas, which have been a remarkably successful, and have developed a great amount of vocal and dramatic talent.

GOLD MINING COMPANY

Pennsylvania.

Capital, - - $300,000.

Office, No. 276 South Third Street.

PAR VALUE, $1 PER SHARE.

The Company has been chartered, and their object is to develop their property, which has been proven to contain a large amount of mineral wealth. The evidences now in possession of the directors, which can be examined at the office, display a greater richness of "ore" than has been discovered in any gold mining operations. The certificate of the U.S. Mint, herewith submitted, proves this to be an undeniable fact.

MINT OF THE UNITED STATES.

ASSAYES'S OFFICE,

PHILADELPHIA, October 21, 185.

Report of the examination of a small specimen of ore brought by Mr. F. W. Corinth, of Philadelphia, and stated to be from Greene courty, Pennsylvania.

The ore is a sulphuret of iron and lead in quartz with visible gold which appears, upon hasty inspection, so much like pyrites as to be easily mistaken or overlooked. overlooked.

It was assayed in three parcels of various weight, from 19 grains to 3 pennyweights, and by different methods, either of which give accurate results; these results show much irregularity as to the amount of precious metal, but in any case, a very extraordinary richness! and thelargest parcel produced the highest return.

Eight dollars and fifty-three cents.....

Another part gave per pound in gold..... Bixteen dollars and twenty-six cents... . $15 26 The third and largest part gave per lb ingold...... 287 90 silver.... 1 00

Eighty-eight dollars and ninety cents... $33 98 [Signed] J. R. FCKFELDT, Assayer. By an examination of the above, it can be readily computed the amount of gold per ton which this quartz produces. .. 188 90 produces.

In order to develop the property by sinking a shaft to the bed of "Gold Ore," the company will dispose of a limited number of shares of the capital stock, and persons calling at the office can obtain explanatory pamphlets, and receive any information they desire.

To persons interested in Greene county, this enterprise is of much important, as the further discovery of Gold in other places, adjacent to the lands of the Amber Company, give assurance of the existence of rich mineral wealth, and fully warrant a liberal investment of capital in the development of this property and the mineral resources of our own State.
