TUESDAY, MAY 22, 1866.

THE PANIC IN ENGLAND. The causes of the extraordinary and sudden financial panic in England, reported by the last steamer, were purely local. Over-speculation on the part of a gigantic banking firm brought on the crash, and several failures followed. The Bank of England was unable to prevent it, and, indeed, so heavy was the drain upon it, that it became necessary to raise the rate of discount to ten per cent. The news may make a temporary flurry in this country, but there need be no apprehension of any serious financial disturbance. This country is rich and its trade has been conducted prudently and prosperously. There is a vast amount of gold here, and much of it can be spared to assist in restoring confidence in England. The six millions shipped on Saturday may be followed by many more millions without creating any danger, and such arrivals will have an instant beneficial effect in Great Britain. Although the alarm in the financial circles of London was almost unprecedented, there is reason to hope that it will pass away as rapidly as it arose, and we have probably heard the worst of it already.

ECCLESIASTICAL RECONSTRUCTION If the South is really trying to do its duty to the Union, and to establish a new character as a loyal section of the country, it is very unfortunate in its methods of attaining that desirable end. Wherever the people have had any opportunity to express their preferences, as between Union men and ex-rebels, for any post of honor or emolument, the latter have invariably carried the day. One of the last exhibitions of this spirit of hostility towards Unionism, and sympathy for disloyalty, is to be seen in the recent action of the Episcopal Convention of Louisiana. The Episcopate of that Diocese was vacated by the death of Bishop General Polk, and we learn that the two prominent candidates for the post were Bishop Lay, of Arkansas, and Rev. Dr. Wilmer, formerly of St. Mark's Church in this city. We do not know what Bishop Lay's precise position was during the war, but he was one of the two or three bishops of Southern dioceses, whose views were so moderate as to induce them to attend the General Convention in this city last Fall, and to cast their influence in favor of prompt re-union. Dr Wilmer's record is too well known in Philadelphia to make an extended reference to it necessary. He was arrested as a blockade runner, and under the most suspicious circumstances, during the rebellion, and served as a chaplain in the rebel army after his release from prison. Between these two candidates there seems to have been no hesitation in choice. The former had experience and a capacity for the office, already officially recognized by the whole Episcopal Church. The latter had neither, at least in any unusual measure. But the one had been active in the rebellion and the other had not, and therefore the active partisan with treason was chosen, and the passive witness, or perhaps the positive opponent of it, was rejected.

The election of a Bishop of the Episcopal Church requires the ratification of a majority of the Bishops and Standing Committees of the several dioceses of the whole country, and we hope that the action of this half reconstructed diocese will meet sufficient disapproval to compelit to select some one as its Bishop that was not quite so prominent as a Secessionist, and not obnoxious to the grave charges which have never been fully cleared up in Dr. Wilmer's case.

AN INTERESTING RELIGIOUS ASSEM-

BLAGE. A despatch from St. Louis, in to-day's paper, announces that the General Assemblies of both branches of "The Presbyterian Church in the United States of America" have fraternally mettogether for the first time since the division in the year 1837. The Moderators of both the old and new school bodies presided, and the proceedings seem to have been cordially harmonious. Expressions strongly favoring re-union were indulged in, and the despatch states that the question of the desirability and practicability of reunion was decided affirmatively by a rising vote of the twelve hundred participants in the joint meeting. Of course this action was informal, but the feeling it indicates shows the way that both bodies will probably be marshalled, if the measures hereafter taken towards re-union are governed by a spirit of liberality, of wise statesmanship, and of cordial Christian feeling. To these branches of the religious denomiinations of our country has been committed a vast amount of the influences which have moulded the institutions of the Republic. They have exerted great power for good in every section of the United States, and it cannot be doubted that if their forces were conjoined their energies would be quadrupled. Thousands of the clergy and hundreds of thousands of the laity are connected with each organization in almost every city, town or hamlet of the nation, and there is no reason whatever why their power should not be concentrated into one grand, harmonious whole. We speak, of course, from a secular point of view, but with a wish that so powerful and influential a portion of that great civilizing instrumentality, the church, should so manage its resources as to accomplish the greatest possible good in our beloved

THE NEW YORK FIRE. The conflagration that occurred this morning in New York is one the regret for which will not be confined to that city. Independent of the enormous pecuniary loss, the destruction of the great opera house which has furnished other cities with their supplies of the divine art of music, is a calamity to the whole country. It was the first of the great theatres built in the United States expressly for the opera. It has been surpassed by several others, and especially by that of Philadelphia. It was not well planned for hearing and seeing in all parts, and there was a great deal too been in constant use in an parts of the world, and their increasing popularity is certainly proof of their great power to heal.

JORDAN, 230 Pear street. much of stucco, papier-mache, glaring lamps and meretricious ornament. But it was the temple of music of our principal city, and the greatartists of the old world generally made their American débuts there, before going to Philadelphia and elsewhere. Its destruction is, therefore, a real calamity, but happily it can soon be repaired. New York has greatly advanced in wealth and taste since the Academy of Music was built, and a new one can be constructed better adapted to its purposes and more in conformity to the requirements of pure art.

Sale of French Bronzes, &c. Mr. B. Scott, Jr., has now on exhibition at the Art Gallery, No. 1020 Chestnut street, a fine collection of French Bronze Groupes, Figures and Vases, together with a complete assortment of Mantel Vases and Ornaments, all selected from the leading manufactories of Paris. Among the Bronzes we find many new and pleasing subjects and especially a pair of Vases supported by cupids, with horses for handles, which we elieve are among the first pair imported. The assort ment of Vases and Ornaments is full and complete and are all finished in the most artistic manner. The sale will take place to morrow (Wednesday) morning at 11 o'clock, under the management of Mr. B. Scott, Jr., Auction er, and as it will, in all probability, be the last sale of Bronzes this season, we would advise our readers to avail themselves of this opportunity. ## THE LOVER'S SONG.

BY D. Y. K. W. & B.

Let the sailor sing of billows, And the soldier sing of strife: They have never seen the maiden That I hope to call my wife, Who, from morn to eve, is singing What is dearer far to me Than the soldier's song of battle, Or the sailor's of the sea.

With a song that's all unstudied. Like the song of singing birds. She has made my heart a captive By the music of her words;
For she sings, "When I am married It shall be my aim of list E'er to be a worthy woman, And a loving, constant wife.

Oh! the darling! when we're married, If she prove all that to be, I shall envy not the soldier, Or the sailor on the sea; Neither tented fields nor oceans Shall e'er tempt my feet to roam From the loving wife so constant, That will bless my happy home

It is not in lordly mansions That the purest joys are known, And the queen of my affections, While my heart shall be her throne. In our home, however humble Will that sceptre only way

Which shall make a leving husband She can "honor and obey." From drinking, chewing, smoking, From cards and dice I'm free, But I'll own I have a weakness, For a cup of fragrant Tea. And to find the test and cheanest

I've wandered through the town, But I never could get suited "Till I went to "WEST & BROWK." DO YOU KNOW WEST & BROWN? They are the proprietors of the new and elegant Tea Emportum Na 809 Chestnut street. For the very best Tea at mode rate prices, this is the place to visit.

GEORGE BYRON MORSE, ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRACRDINARY.

In a former announcement we declared our intention of issuing at an early date, the first number of a New Illustrated Journal,

"The Mirror of the Times"

Our object is to present every week, a paper which can be taken up in a leisure hour, and wrich shall particularly avoid all questions of a Political nature. In its columns every person will find something to in erest him. Its Illustrations will be in the highest style of the Art and by the best Artists. Having made ariangements with an extensive Manufacturer in Belgium, by which we can import our paper at a much smaller cost than a majority of our Colemporaries, we shall be enabled thus to giveour subscribers the benefit of such arrangements. The Publishers of "PHE Milk aoR of THE "I'MES." are now negotiating with a number of distingui-hed writers, for their regular contributions to our Paper. Among them are "Artemus Ward." (Chas. F. Browne,) the inminiable humorist. P. T. Barnum. (Author of "Humbugs of the World.") who we expect will contribute a Series of Articles, the subject of which, for obvious reasons, we do not at present specify, but which if announced, would create an unprecedented excitement.
