LETTER FROM LONDON.

The Great English Panic-Prospect of War -English Legislation-American Arrivals-Mr. George H. Stuart.

[Correspondence of the Phila, Evening Bulletin.] LONDON, May 12.-This great Babylon, which the English have built, has seen many and wonderful excitements, but it has never witnessed anything like that which is at this moment transpiring. The position of your correspondent has required him to be in the midst of it all. The half has not been told you by the English newspapers, and it is not likely that it ever will be. On the contrary, the Times, in leading off, has shown more than its usual cunning in keeping out of sight the real difficulties of this most extraordinary financial epoch. It will be impossible, however, even for that artful dodger to hide the final results. There has been a peculiar state of anxiety in certain influential commercial circles for some months past. The immediate crash, as Mr. Gladstone stated in the House of Commons. last night, is sudden and unexpected; but there are many thoughtful men in England who have for a considerable time been anticipating that the storm would come. But few, if any, however, expected it to break so suddenly, and in such fury all around the sky.

The scene was absolutely farful. I came in from my quiet retreat in the outskirts of London—from that part called "Camden," where I keep up my pleasant memories of dear old Philadelphia— on the morning when the tempest was at its height. Nothing like it was ever witnessed in the United States, and it is admitted on all hands that such a sight was never before seen in Eng-land. It was past noon of Friday, the 11th of May. The city was crowded with stran-gers, many of them from the country, at-rending the religious performance. tending the religious anniversaries. Ru mors of war between Austria and Prussia ran swiftly along the streets. The newsboys were busier than usual, and their large-letter placards more numerous. The report of the suspension of the large banking house of Overend, Gurney & Co. had been spread far and wide, and now there was neral run on several of the local banks. From Threadneedle street, where I entered on the scene, to Grace Church street, where I turned off in another direction, the throng packed the thoroughfares all the way by the Reyal Exchange, the Bank of England, the Mayor's Mansion House, to Lombard street and Birchin lane, where the offices of the falling house are located. There could not have been less than ten thousand persons, most of them merchants, bankers, commer-cial men, mixed up with gaping country-men and a few women. On, on, the crowd surged. Now they stopped a single moment, as some curious parties hedged the way, and the Dickens cry of the policemen rose above the hum and buzz-"Pars Hon!" "Pars Hon!" and on they passed by thousands.

The wind was blowing almost a gale and occasional showers fell as only showers can fall in England, without a moment's warning. Crowd after crowd swept by the granite front and corners of the doomed banking-house, when there came a rumor, as if by magic.

"There's trouble with the Joint Stock Bank!" "Then there's a failure of a bank in more than thirty towns in England," was there-"A run on the Mercantile Bank !" cried some one, in a half stifled voice. "The London Country Bankisswamped!" said another.

"Sir Morton Peto is gone!" some one whis-pered, with a look of sadness that did him

The throng now began to sway more and more violently to and fro, and there were at one moment intimations of violence-but no one seemed to know why. The women holding checks for gold rushed up the steps of banks as if half frantic, and carriages containing retired citizens dashed along the curbatones to the side-doors, where old men i each other in eage tens its cocoon to it, the elasticity of which prevents it being disturbed. The inside of furniture is used by it only for purposes of propagation, The worm, when ready for food, crawls out and destroys the covering, if of woolen or plush material, and falling to the carpet, destroys it. They rarely cut through plush from the inside, as it is of cotton back—but there are instances where they have cut up muslin on the outside backs of sofas. There is no protection against it except continual care. New furniture should be removed from the walls at least twice a week at this season of the year, and should be well season of the year, and should be well whisked all round, and particularly under the seats, to prevent the fly from lodging. This is an effectual preventive, and the only one known. Cayenne pepper, Scotch snuff, camphor, turpentine, and all other remedies for protection from the large moth are of little or no avail against the furniture moth. Saturation with alcohol will not destroy them when in a piece of furniture. If the furniture is in. a piece of furniture. If the furniture is in-fested, they may be removed by taking off the muslin from under the seats and off the outside onds and back outside ends and backs, where they congregate most, and expose it to the air as much as possible. Beat well with a whisk or the as possible. Beat well with a whisk or the open hand, and kill all the files and worms, which show themselves. This done often, will disturb them, and may make them leave the furniture, as its desire is to be left quiet. When the furniture is free from moths and is to be left during the summer months without attention, it may be pro-tected by camphor in small bags or highly concentrated patchouli. The safest way is spread a wet sheet on the carpet and chairs, spread a wet sheet on the carpet and pass a hot flat-iron over it quickly—the steam will effectually destroy both worm and eggs. If furniture is delivered in a dwelling free from moths the upholsterer's responsibility ends there and all rests with the house-keeper as no tradesmap can toll whether keeper, as no tradesman can tell whether the moth will attack it or not. There are cases where the furniture has been in use ten or twelve years before being attacked. It would be as fair to hold the tailor respon-sible for the safety of clothing as to hold the upholsterer responsible for the safety of fur-niture niture.

THE FAREWELL BENEFIT to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mordaunt, which we have be-fore briefly alluded to, and which takes place at the Academy of Music next Wed-nesday evening, promises to be one of the most brilliant affairs of the season. The profession of this city have (as they are ever ready to do) volunteered their valuable services, and from their number Mr. Mor-daunt has been enabled to select a constellation of dramatic artists which will lend great brilliancy to the occasion. Miss Noemie de Marguerittes will appear as Eily O'Conner in "The Colleep Bawn," and sing Some of her exquisite songs. Mrs. Mor-daunt will appear in her renowned character of Sheelah, a part somewhat similar to Katy Welsh in "Arrah Na Pogue," which she enacted with such success during its long run at the Chestnüt last season. Every one remembersher "Barn-door Jig," which she will introduce on the occasion. Mr. Mordaunt appears as Myles Na Conpaleen she will introduce on the occasion. Mr. Mordaunt appears as Myles Na Coppaleen, a part to which he will give great effect. There will be songs, dances, &c., and Mr. Mordaunt will repeat, at the request of a great many of his admirers, his celebrated recitation of "Sheridan's Ride." We have seen a plan of the seats at the Academy for this occasion, and we would advise all who wish to have a seat to lose no time in se-curing it, for the indications are that the house will be a splendid one. precious deposits. All business at the Exthange was suspended. The Stock Board was as barren of customers as the Desert of Sahara is of flowers. The contiguous news-gaper effices were thronged, as the BULLE-TIN was after "a great. Union victory." Wild excitement ruled the hour. It spread wider and wide every moment unit wider and wider every moment, until just before the hour of closing banks, the roar and rush of the people were absolutely fearful.

At this moment the cry arcse "Mr. Glad-stone has driven to the Bank of England and offered a loan of five million pounds from the Government " This was imme-diately followed by the intimation that there would have war as Austria would shhmit would be no war, as Austria would submit to arbitration. The clouds began to lift a little, and the crowds in the street graw less; The business man gradually withdrew, and quiet resumed its sway with the setting in of night.

Doubtless you will have submitted your own reflections on this English Financial Panic to your readers before this letter reaches them. But, please allow me to say that, viewing it on the spot, it has presented me with one of the most powerful practical arguments I have ever met in favor of the superior stability of republican institutions over these of a monarchy: There is a growing certainty in the minds of thoughtful Englishmen that it will be impossible much longer to avoid war. From present appearances on this side, Italy will be almost sure to strike for her independ-

The legislation of England will probably secure a temporary alteration of the English Bank act of 1844, by which the Bank of England was prevented from issuing be-yond a certain amount of notes. But the alteration will only be brief, as it is clear that this crisis has been brought about by speculators.

We are having quite a large arrival of travelers from Philadelphia. Among them I notice, with pleasure, Mr. Geo. H. Stuart, his wife and two daughters. They are all in the enjoyment of good health, except Mr. S., who is now improving. He has spoken at several of the London May meet-ings—such as the Bible and Tract Societies, the Ragged School Union, the Young Men's Christian Association, and others of importance. His addresses are everywhere well received, as they deserve to be, for Mr. Stuart has made a deep impression on the minds of all loyal Americans in Enrope, by his noble and patriotic labors in the cause of the Union. of the Union. Household Economy. [Contributed by werge J. Henkels, Cabinet Maker, Thirteenth and Chestout streets.] MOTHS IN FURNITURE.—There are two apecies of moths which infest furniture. One is a large fly of silvery whitecolor; the worm is of the same, shaped like a chestnut worm, and is familiarly known. It early infests furniture. The other is a small fly of a dark drab color; the worm is about one-fourth of an inch long, and tapering from the head to the tail. It was first observed by upholsterers about seven years ago. This I'v penetraies a sofa or choir seven years ago. By penetrates a sofa or chair, generally be-tween the back and seats of sofas, or under the seats, where the vacancy among the springs affords a safe retreat. It may make a lodgement in one week after the furniture is placed in a house. If such should be the case, in two months the worm will appear; and the continual process of procession in a few months increases the number to thousands. This moth has no season. It destroys in winter and in summer alike, as it is kept in active life by the constant heat of the house. We find at the same time in the same piece of furniture, the fly, the worm, and the eggs-thus showing that they are breeding and destroying all the time. It does not eat good pure curled hair, but fas-

F. & A. L. Since I wrote the above, I have been to Barliett's, and found our new school house, built by our Association, from material mostly furnished by the Freedmen's Bu-reau, burned last night, with all the school fixtures books for fixtures, books, &c.

It was undoubtedly done by native white citizens, who have manifested unceasing and increasing hostility to the school there. The neighbors fired several cannon next morning, evidently in exultation over the JACOB H. VINING, Supintendent Friends' Schools.
