THE DAILY EVENING BULLETIN ; PHILADELPHIA. MONDAY. MAY 28 .866 --- TRIPLE SHEET.

Gen. Grant on the Situation-His Views on the Sonthern People. The editorof The Lewistown Falls Journal, now at Washington, recently spent an hour in the studio of the Maine artist, Simmons, in conversation with General Grant, and gives an interesting statement of the opinions expressed by the leading man of the country upon "men and measures." We make a few extracts:

The General, who was dressed in a plain black civillian suit, had hardly removed his hat from his head, before he took a cigar cigars a day, but now I smoke only nine or

The conversation turned to the Virginia campaigns of 1864 and 1865. "I notice," re-marked General Grant, "that Mr. Swinton has published a history of the campaigns in the Old Dominion, in which he takes the ground that I gained nothing, but on the contrary, lost many valuable lives uselessly by moving my army from the Rapidan direct toward Richmond, rather than by direct toward Richmond, rather than by taking it around by water to the Peninaula, as McClellan did. This," observed the General, "is a revival of the exploded theory (referring to the McClellan policy) of subduing the rebellion by peace measures. A half a million of troops might have been keep within sight of Washington till dooms-day, and the rebellion would have flourished more and more vigorously day after day. Fighting, hard knocks only, could have ac-complished the work. The rebellion must be overcome, if overcome at all, by force; its resources destroyed; its fighting materia obliterated, before peace could be obtained

"There were but failures in the Virginian campaign of '64 which ought to have been successes," said Grant, "and those were the failure to capture Petersburg when we crossed the James, and afterwards at the mine explosion." "But," added Grant, "it was all for the best that we failed in those two instances, for had we succeeded at either time, Lee would have been at once obliged to abandon Richmond, and would have been able to secure a safe retreat into the interior of the South, where he would have pro-longed the contest for years. Our failures then, and the determination of the rebels to held on to their excitation of the rebels to hold on to their capital, gave us time to ex-tend our left southward, to bring up Sherman from Georgia, and thereby made it impossible for Lee to escape."

In reply to a question as to whether he was not surprised as to the suddenness of the collapse of the rebellion, Grant said that he was, although he had always supposed that when it did break down it would are all -at once. "I thought, however," he re-marked, "that it would hold out another season, and I am not sure," he added, "but that it would have been better for the country if it had. There were some parts of the country where our armies never trod, particularly Texas, which needed to feel the blighting effects of war to bring their people to a realizing sense of the enomity of their crime and the necessity of a thorough repentance. I find," said he, "that those parts of the South which have not felt the war, and particularly those which have been within our lines and have therefore escaped the rebel conscription and taxes, are much less disposed to accept the situa-tion in good faith than those portions which have been literally overrun with fire and sword."

Referring to the temper of the Southern people, he remarked that they are much less disposed now to bring themselves to the proper frame of mind than they were one year since. "A year ago," said he, "they were willing to do anything; now they regard themselves as masters of the situation. Some of the Rebel Generals," he situation. Some of the repet concerns, he added, "are behaving nobly, and doing all they can to induce the people to throw aside their old prejudices and to conform their course to the changed condition of things. Johnston and Dick Taylor particularly are exercising a good influence, but," he added, "Lee is behaving badly. He is conducting himself very differently from what I had

AMERICAN UNION COMMISSION OF PENN SYLVANIA AND NEW JERSEY. — We copy a few extracts from a letter written by Rev. A. Gladwin to E. B. Adams, Agent of the Commission in Atlanta, Georgia, after hav-ing visited the schools in that city. He ing visited the schools in that chy. In says: "I was perfectly captivated while visiting your schools. The new and commodious buildings, the pleasant and efficient teach-ers, the five hundred happy children in themselves bespeak success. But the delightful exercises—the singing, the gym-pastics, the reading, spelling, geography. from his pocket, lighted it and began to puff out wreaths of smoke. 'I am breaking off from smoking,' remarked Grant. 'When I was in the field I smoked eighteen or twenty so promptly recited, are facts conclusive and interesting. In all my travels through the South I have not seen any enterprise that appears to be doing more good. The social importance of your work is great; butgreaterstill is its bearing upon the harmonizing and reconciling of the two dis-cordant sections of our country. I am sat-isfied that reconciliation can only be brought about by such acts of kindness. I have conversed with many citizens on your work. It appears to give perfect satisfaction, and evokes frequent expresexpres sains action, and evokes irequent expres-sions of gratitude. Christianity and hu-manity are your advocates. Let me say again, you have been wonder-fully successful in organizing and starting this work this work.

Considering the time these schools have been in operation, I think they excel almost any schools North or South, which I have ever visited.

ever visited. Go on, my brother, God bless you, and all your colaborers, and especially the noble society you represent, in its great work of educating and elevating the poor. May the donors still continue to give, the country demands it, and God loves the cheerful giver. A. GLADWIN, Missionary of the American Baptist Pub. Society of Philadelphia.

Among the parimers in the firm of Pinto, Perez & Co., of London, whose bankruptoy has just been recorded, is the Hon. Lionel Ashley, fifth son of the Earl of Shaftesbury. Seduced by the apparent wealth and posi-tion of the firm, he is said to have entered reason, from what he said at the time of the surrender, to suppose he would. No man at the South is capable of exercising a tenth part of the influence for good that he is, but instead of using it, he is setting an example of forced acquiescence so grudging and pernicious in its effects as to be hardly realized."

'The men who were in the rebel armies.' said Grant, "acquiesce in the result much better than those who staid at home. The women are particularly bitter against the Union and Union men." "Of course, he "there is some bitterness of feeling among all classes, but I am satisfied if would soon die out if their leading men had not somehow got the idea that treason after all was not very bad, and that the 'Southern cause,' as they phrase it, will yet triumph, not in war, but in politics." "In my judg-ment," said Grant, "the tone of certain men and certain papers at the North issuch as to do incalculable mischief in making the late rebels believe that they are just as much entitled to rule as ever, and that if they will only stand by what they are pleased to call their 'rights' they will have help from the North." "This," significantly added Grant, North." "This," significantly added Grant, "is only playing over again the incipient stages of the rebellion. He was confident that the large majority of the Southern people would smother their resentments and become good citizens, if these mischief-makers at the North (the Copperheads) would only let them alone. For himself, if he had the newer the first thing he would he had the power, the first thing he would do would be to seize The New York News and kindred sheets, which are giving the South so dangerous an idea of their own position and 'rights.' " "Troops," said "General Grant, "must be kept in all the principal points in the South for some time to come. This will be neces-sary to repress the turbulence of a class of the South very dangerous to all well-disposed persons, and to protect the rights of the freedmen, who are looked upon with deep hatred by a very large proportion of the people. I am in favor, however," he added, "of not retaining our volunteers for this duty, because they very naturally think that they have fulfilled their engagement one year since."

Grant spoke in high terms of Sherman, Sheridan, Howard and other Generals, and referred to our Mexican difficulties, forcibly adding that he believed the French invasion of Mexico a part of the rebellion and he should have been glad to have seen a detachment of our army sent there one year since. He would engage that Sheridan, with plenty of arms and 2,000 American troops and a goodly number of American officers, would, with the aid of the Mexicans, clean Maximilian out of Mexico in six months.

Semmes is in town, and had an interview with the President to-day in reference to his pardon. Mrs. Jeff. Davis has received many callers to-day from those who were desirous of doing her honorand of showing her sympathy. Upon consultation with her friends she has concluded not to ask for her husband's parole, but merely the range of the fort, for the present. She also desires the removal of Gen. Miles, of whom she complains as not respecting the person and feelings of her husband.—Washington Cor. Tribune.

TROUBLES OF JURYMEN AT RICHMOND.-A Washington correspondent says: I learn from the very best authority at Richmond that two gentlemen long resident of that city, who were on the grand jury which found a true bill against Jefferson Davis, have already been so marked and made th object of persecution in their social and business relations that they have been compelled to close up their business, and are making preparations to leave the city. Such facts are a sorry commentary on the progress of loyalty and conciliation in the late rebel capital.
