THE BOURGANANI-EATON CASE.

A Reporter's Visit to Mrs. General Eaton --- Facts and Anecdotes from the Lady's Own Lips---Stories Illustrative of the Jackson-Eaton Scandal.

[From to-day's N. Y. Tribune.] The public interest in the Eaton-Bourganani case instead of diminishing appears to be on the increase. It is talked of in parlors, it is commented on in bar-rooms, people of fashion discuss it, and politicians revive in connection with it the historical revive in connection with it the instances reminiscences of the past. Acknowledging the significance of all this, we yesterday paid a visit, alike of sympathy and curiosity, to the central figure of the tragedy, Mrs. Gen. Eaton, and propose in the present place to record the observations and the new feets suggested to or gathered by its new facts suggested to or gathered by us

Handing in our card, we were ushered into the presence of the lady, who received us with the utmost affability. That she is no ordinary woman, would be evident at a glance; that she has been beautiful, is also undeniable even at first sight. She is very tall, very stately, and very graceful; her hair is of the finest quality, is richly luxuriant for one of her advanced years, and is of a deep black. Her form is slender, pliable, elegantly moulded, with a slender waist, and a delicate hand and foot. Her face is and a delicate hand and loot. Her lace is faded and somewhat careworn, with the thoughts and troubles of nearly 70 years, but is not ugly by any manner of means. There is a look of determination and of character in her features, which redeems the wrinkles of her cheek, and her eye is wonderful—never at rest, never dull, always flashing, changing, active, expressive. Her voice is sharp but not disagreeable, while her manners are those of the old school, though occasionally vivified, as it were, by a decided touch of French esprit. She was dressed, at the time of our visit, in a style of simple elegance—attired in a "fashionable silk," with a reasonable allowance of jew-

Having paid our respects to Mrs. Eaton. we frankly revealed the object of our visit, and she as frankly expressed her willingness to afford the Tribune, or its representatives, all the information in her power. We stated our intention to converse with her, and to publish such of her sayings or assertions as we might deem best. She expressed herself perfectly satisfied with the arrangement, and we accordingly proceeded to business—that if, we entered into an unreserved conversation. Mrs. Eaton having been so many years a public character, had been so many years a public character, had become accustomed to notoriety, and therefore did not entertain the usual female dread of the newspapers. She was not necessarily less refined, but certainly more brave than the average of her sex. Our dialogue verged at length toward the Jackson-Eaton political scandal. Mrs. Eaton expressed great indignation at any slenders connecting her dignation at any slanders connecting her name with that of President Jackson. This scandal, she assured us, was not believed at any time, and was never even currently reported. It was too palpable a fiction. The President was a moral man, a married man, and a gentleman, and was attracted warmly in friendship to herself merely from the fact that she was the wife of Gen. Eaton. who had been raised, as it were, by General Jackson, and to whom the President was devotedly attached.

The only ostensible cause of the scandal which the malicious have endeavored to attach to her name was the report of an attach to her name was the report of an unwarrantable intimacy between herself and Gen. Eaton prior to her marriage with the latter—of this report (circulated as the lady asserted with an earnest dignity, by a few women of her own circle in Washing-ten who were envious of the sensation she created) the notorious Duff Green and other created) the notorious Duff Green and other politicians availed themselves, some in the interest of John C. Calhoun, and others in opposition to the President. Duff Green rendered himself especially prominent in the public and private retailing of this scandal, and accordingly excited the ire of Gen. Eaton, who one night armed himself with a brace of pistols and would probably have terminated Green a existence and rumors together, but for one slight obstacle, namely: Green's fortunate absence at the namely: Green's fortunate absence at the time from Washington.

Spite of stories and looks and invendoes, however, Mrs. Eaton continued to move in public circles as a leading member of the fashionable world. But at a grand ball the scandal was uttered distinctly in her hear-ing, with the additional statement that "it was said that the President was about to appoint Gen. Eat on a Minister abroad, so that his wife's folly might be conveniently concealed from the eyes of the world." On hearing these words Mrs. Eaton's true character asserted itself. She did not faint, she did not scream, she did not even become nervously indignant; she simply said: "I will refute this slander by remaining in Washington," and she remained. Her husband had really designed accepting some foreign appointment, but at his wife's request he abandoned the idea. Such was Mrs. Eaton's method of "confounding a more."

fumor."

IBut the rumor would not remain "confounded." Ever and anon politicians and rival belles would revive it. Mrs. Eaton's ewn circle heeded it not, but the editors were sometimes impertinent. "People would talk," and Mrs. Eaton began to wonder who could have been the original author of the slander. But all her researches on this point proyed in vain. At lest however this point proved in vain. At last, however chance effected what care could not accom-

The President's son, who was generally regarded as a half-witted lad, paid a visit to our informant, of whom he was very fond, and during the course of a conversation with his hostess, thoughtless uttered the remark, "That it was a shame, so it was, that the Rev. Mr. E. ——" (we suppress the real man of the cleaners." real name of the clergyman, for obvious reasons) "should have written such a vile letter concerning Mrs. Eaton." Acting on this hint, Mrs. Eaton ascertained that a Presbyterian minister, by the of E——, a resident of Philadelphia, had busied himself with her good fame, Having procured this intelligence, the lady. Having procured this intelligence, the lady, with her usual promptitude and freedom from prudery, determined to act. She accordingly concealed the matter from her husband for various reasons, accompanied by an intimate friend and relative, departed to the differ the bright house and Brothody. by an intimate friend and relative, departed to the city of brick houses and Brotherly Love. On reaching Philadelphia she straightway called at the house of the Rev. Mr. E—, who lived in excellent style, in a fashionable street. Entering unannounced, she encountered in the hall, the clergyman himself. "The Rev. Mr. E—?" said the lady, inquiringly; the gentleman bowed. "I am Mrs. Gen. Eaton," stated the lady with dignity, and then at once proceeded to demand of the clergyman an explanation. The gentleman declined to speak with her on the matter. "Then," said Mrs. Eaton, "I will remain in this house until you do speak. I must trouble you to get me a room speak. I must trouble you to get me a room ready." The clergyman surrendered him-self to his destiny, yielded his point, and gave the name of the person who had originally was now in question. This person which was now in question. This person resided in Washington. Back to "the city of magnificent distances" traveled Mrs. Eaton and confronted her accuser. He, in turn, "surrendered at discretion," and mentioned as the originator of the scandal a physician for market well known to Mrs. Factor. Who leave the originator of the scandal a physician for-merly well-known to Mrs. Eaton. The lady started in satonishment. "Why, the man you speak, of," she cried, "has been dead for several years. How am I to interrogate his bones? A lie should cease to live when its author is dead," and returning to her-own house Mrs. Eaton ceased to trouble herself any further concerning the scandal or its origin. Only on one occasion did she forget her Only on one occasion did she forget her self-command in regard to this very unpleasant affair. An ill-bred puppy, with whom she enjoyed merely a speaking acquaintance, was guilty of the unpardonable impertinence of alluding to the subject in a gross manner in her very presence. Without the utterance of a word Mrs. Eaton flung her glove in the fellow's face, who "accepted the hint" and departed.

Meanwhile President Jackson was doing all that he could to clear the lady of even the shadow of a suspicion. But his zeal the shadow of a suspicion. But his zeal sometimes defeated itself. On one occasion he started out in his private carriage and absolutely "went the rounds" of his prominent acquaintances, procuring "certificates of character" in reference to his friend Eaton's wife. When the wife of his friend, however, was made cognizant of this fact, it is stated on the very best authority, that she was more vexed at the Quixotism of the President than grateful for his good inten-

WEST PHILADELPHIA.-This morning

WEST PHILADELPHIA.—This morning broke crisp, clear and cool. The heavy rains of the last few days have made the thoroughfares perfectly deplorable; mud, over shoe-deep, and in some places ponds of water fetick-deep. On the side-walks, now-ever, elevated as they are above only partially graded sloughs, one does well enough except at the crossings; and there, he or she, pauses in despair. Some preparations are being made to curb some of the cross streets. On Thirty-seventh, between Market and Sansom, are quite a quantity of granite slabs intended for that purpose.

The Chestunt street railroad has advanced as far up as Forty-second street; rails all in place, almost ready for travel, in anticipation of the finishing of the Chestunt street bridge. which just now every day more steadily approaches completion. This morning, as on yesterday, we observed painters at work, and nothing could be more poetle or serial, than the color chosen—atmospheric or sky bine.

At the Police Station, William Hogan was held to answer, in $500 for riot, &c. He is the fifth of the gang who made themselves odious at the late cotton mill fire. In Darby, Georga Knorr, boarding with Abraham Dunn, robbed his landlerd of twelve dollars and a half, put for safety in his closet. There were three drunk en cases, but the first of the day was the "fee fight" between John Conroy and Officer William Fulton. John was engaged in a fight when Officer Fulton stopped. At once the combatants turned on the "police," and Fulton was a Roaring Raiph Stackpole would have had it, considerably "chawed up," coming out minus his coat, torn to ribbons. Buil-dog like, he held on, and o ornoy is "chewing the cud" in Moyamensing. Mr. Fulton was considerably injured about the head.

AN IMPUDENT RESOLUTION.

Tennessee and Arkansas to be Admitted

From Washington.

[Special Despatch to the Bulletin.]
WASHINGTON, May 30.—One of the coolest things which has occurred lately is the resolution passed by the Johnson Departmental Club last night, denouncing Secretary Harlan and Attorney General Speed and demanding their removal. It was decided in caucus that immediately after the passage of the Constitutional Amendment reported by the Senate, a resolution should be offered to the effect that Tennessee, having complied with the said amendment, her Senators and Representatives be admitted to their seats. Arkansas will also be included: It is understood that Colorado is to be admitted over the President's veto.

The Senate Finance Committee have decided to proceed at once with the Tax bill and report it to the Senate without delay. The Ways and Means Committee are considering the Tariff, and expect to have it ready to report in about a week. From the West Indies.

The Boletin says that President Baez, unable to put down the revolution, has de-termined to leave the country. This state-ment however is doubted, as the revolution is said to be on a small scale.

Great preparations are being made at Havana for the reception of the new Captain The circulation of the Cronica, of New York, has been suppressed in Havana, on account of an article published in that newspaper against the censor at Havana. The Cuban subsidy of $3,000 in gold to the

Mr. Sprague (R. I.) called up a joint resolution for the payment of certain Kentucky Home Guards, called into the United States service to repel a rebel invasion under John Morgan, in May, 1862. It was passed.

However,—The first business in order being the call of Committees for reports,

Mr. Blaine (Me.) from the Select Committee on the war debts of the loyal States, reported a bill to reimburse the States which have furnished troops to the Union army, for advances made and expenses incurred in raising the same. He said that, after a conference with the members of the committee and friends of the bill, he found an indisposition to consider the bill at this time. He therefore yielded bis own independs and moved the indisposition to consider the bill at this time. He therefore yielded his own judgment and moved that the bill be recommitted to the Select Committee, and that the same be continued as new organized with leave to report during the next session. The motion was agreed to.

On motion of Mr. Blaine, the Select Committee on War Debts was discharged from the further consideration of the bill to reimburse the State of Kansas for moneys expended in furnishing troops, and it was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. Stevens (Pa.), from the Select Committee on a military and postal railroad from Washington to New York, reported back a bill to authorize the building of a military and postal railroad from Washington to the city of New York, which was recommitted, with a notice by Mr. Stevens that he would call it up in a week.

the city of New York, which was recommitted, with a notice by Mr. Stevens that he would call it up in a week.

Mr. Stevens also, from the same committee, reported back a bill, introduced by Mr. Garfield, on the 30th of April, to promote the construction of a line of railways between the city of Washington and the Northwest, for National purposes and moved the previous question, which was seconded.

Mr. Eldridge (Wis.) demanded that the engrossed oill should be read, and as the bill was in print, and not engrossed, it went over till after the morning hour.

Mr. Garfield (Chio) from the same committee reported back a bill, introduced by him on the 30th of April, to anthorize the Cleaveland and Mahoning R. R. Co.. a corporation created and existing under the laws of the States of Obio and Pennsylvania to continue and construct the relitroad of the said Company from Youngstown, Mahoning county, in the said state of Obio, to and into the said State of Pennsylvania, and the most advantageous and practicable route to the city of Pittsburgh, in the State of Pennsylvania, and to establish the said road as a military, postal and commercial railroad of the United States. He said that this was a part of the relief provided for in the bill just acted upon, and he proceeded to give a detailed history of the railroads in question.

Mr. O'Nelli (Pa.) after putting some questions to Mr. Garfield, protested that there was no need for the pasage of the bill, and that the people of Pennsylvania, did not ask for any such Congressional action. The morning hour having expired, the bill went over till to morrow.
