MAY SONNETS. Hardels his heart that loveth nought. In May, when all this mirth is wrought.

The queen of all the months is with us now, Stepping through woods and follage-ban-nered dells,

Over the regal purple of hare-bells, With a right royalstep, and crowned brow? And flaxen-headed elfs, that gather flowers, Sustain her rich robe'd flower-broidered train,
Unconscious of her presence in the lane,
Where dandelions serve to tell their hours;

And mirth of holiday gladness comes with her, Nature's fair pageant, and divine array; Flutter of wreathing leaves, like garments

When pomp of grand processions is astir, For mirth of olden times cames back with May, Whereto all meadow-sights do minister.

Old Chaucer's daisy opes its golden eye To see more meadow-gold among the grass, Where happy kine 'mid tufts of amber pass, And crush out fragrance wheresoe'er they For everywhere 'mid lush luxuriant green, Crowns the effulgence of the lavish May; Cowalips and dandelions bright as day, And radiant as the halo of their queen. May's yellow buttercup, eagerly seen, Like treasures found not under every sky

The merry milkmaid's sweetheart doth And to her raised chin holds its tell-tale sheen.
A merry month this month hath ever been, And ever brimful of glad melody.

The odorous air made up of meadowsmells,
Is bubbling with sweet sound of blended song;
A hundred larks into the heavens throng, A thousand wild bees hum their drowsy

Over fair flowers, which droop their charmed And unaware yield up their honey wealth. Music is borne of simple-life and health, Wherever life this merry May time dwells. The olden ministrelsy of breeze and stream Proclaimeth still the merry reign of May, Blending with those sweet voices, heard always, The poets who interpret nature's dream, And to all times in dulcet numbers say, For love and mirth, May bears the palm

An Aquatic Feat by "Pap Price" and Other Rebels.

[From a City of Mexico letter.]

During the wet season the rain pours down with a suddenness and violence unknown elsewhere, in a few hours swelling the smallest rills into wide rivers render the smallest rills into wide rivers, rendering them impassable for the time. The streets of the city having very little drainage, soon overflow, much to the discomfiture of pedestrians. Last season, as Gen.

Price, Governor Harris, and several other Confederate officers were dining at a restaurant in this city, the rain suddenly began to fall. The dinner party made themselves quite merry over the matter, expecting the shower soon to pass over; but hours passed and the rain continued to fall without in-termission. Presently the sidewalk was overflowed and the water found its way into the restaurant, where it continued to Chairs and tables were at once appropriated to a new use. In one corner was seen the stalwart form "Pap Price," mounted upon a li mounted upon a little round table, while his vis-a-vis was Governor Harris, carefully balancing himself upon the back of a decidedly rickety chair, and the rest of the Confeds were disposed of to the best advantage upon other articles of furniture. Here they remained, cogitating upon the fallen fortunes of the Confederacy, the power of Uncle Sam, and the instability of the Mexican climate, until the storm subsided. How to get to their hotel was the next question. There were no canoes to be had, and carriages would not venture out in such times. At length the General settled the knotty point by taking off his boots and divesting himself of his nether garments; his example was followed by his comrades, and, carefully rolling up their boots and clothing, the party sallied forth, "Old Pap" taking the lead. Such a procession was never before seen in the streets of Mexico, and the costume of the party would hardly have been considered a la mode, in New York; however they had dry breeches to wear by this aquatic feat. THINGS TO THINK OF.—The number of languages spoken is 3,064. The number of men is about equal to the number of women The average of human life is 33 years. One quarter die before the age of 7. One-half before the age of 17. To every 1,000 persons, one only reaches 100 years. To every 100, only 9 reach 65 years; and not more than 1 in 500 reaches the age of 80 years. There are on earth 1,000,000,000 of inhabitants. Of these, 33,333,333 die every year; 7,780 every hour, and 60 every minute—or 1 for every second. These losses are about balanced by an equal number of births.

The married are longer lived than the single: and above all, those who observe a sober and industrious conduct. Tall men live longer than short ones. Women have more chances of life previous to the age of fifty years than men, but fewer after. aumber of marriages is in proportion of 75 to 100. Marriages are more frequent after the equinoxes—that is, during the months of June and December. Those born in spring are generally more robust than others. Births and deaths are more frequent by night than by day. Number of men capable of the population. SINGULAR CIRCUMSTANCE.—A very singular circumstance occurred in reference to the death of Mr. J. Price, which occurred a few days ago, near Cockeysville, from an accident on the Northern Central Railroad. His horse was run over by the cars and killed, and himself thrown violently on the cow-catcher, from which, after the train stopped, the body was removed to a depot of the Cempany for dead, placed in a room for safe-keeping, and left lying on the floor. Some time during the night the supposed corpse resuscitated and moved to another part of the room, where it was found, life extinct, the following morning, sitting on a chair, head leaning against the wall.
