"The History of Slavery in Massa chusetts" is a handsomely printed volume published by D. Appleton & Co., New York. The author, Mr. George H. Moore is the librarian of the New York Historical Society, and appears to have prosecuted his researches with great minuteness. His purpose appears to be to make a sort of proslavery record against Massachusetts and to show that there was no official abolition of slavery in that State, until the adoption of the late Constitutional Amendment. If this was the design of the author, he has met with very imperfect success, although we observe that some of the Southern papers are expressing great delight with the book. The record of the Bay State is all that could be expected. Contemporaneously with the introduction of slaves into the State, began that opposition to the system and that bold protest against it, which never ceased until the wrong was done away. Massachusetts was never without her witnesses for freedom and against human bondage, and Mr. Moore's interesting work places her testimony before the world in a permanent and comprehensive form.

Alexander Strahan & Co., New York have published simultaneously "The Queen's English" and "The Bean's Engdish," the former by Dr. Alvord, Dean of Canterbury, and the latter by G. Washington Moore, F. R. S. The two volumes constitute a controversial disquisition on the English language, eliciting many interesting philological points, and leaving the student almost as much in the dark as to modern English usage as before reading them. Dean Alvord, apart from a most ill-natured, unjust and unnecessary fling at America, conducts his part of the discussion with much dignity and good temper, while his antagonist is very sharp and bitter in his rejoinders. Both writers occasionally indulge in slang and bad grammar, and the controversy, as a contribution to literature, loses much of its value, from its extremely personal tone. The two volumes are handsomely printed, and are for sale by Smith, English & Co.

The Mute Singer" is the somewhat paradoxical title of Mrs. Anna Cora Ritchie Mowatt's new novel, just published by Carleton. New York. The story is very well told, and is based upon an incident which would certainly tax the credulity of the reader very severely, if its authenticity was not very strongly vouched for. The scene is laid in Paris, and the characters and incidents of the story are charmingly portrayed. There can scarcely be said to be any plot, but there is a freshness, originality and simplicity about the history of "The Mute Singer" that make it a very pleasant and readable book. For sale by Ashmead & Evans.

"French's First Lessons in Numbers," is a capital little elementary arithmetic for children, published by Harper, Brothers. It presents this usually dry study in an attractive aspect and combines the principles of numbers with their application to the practical business of life. The examples in arithmetic are illustrated by well-executed cuts which greatly add to the value of the work. For sale by T. B. Peterson & GATE HAWITTON has in the new publishers, Messrs, Ticknor & Fields, Boston, a new volume specially adapted to summer reading, and bearing the taking title of "Summer Rest." Most of the articles in this volume are now for the first time printed, and will be found equal to any of the author's most brilliant essays.

"Gypsy Breynton" is a capital story for little girls, just published by Graves and Young, Boston. It is the first of a series of four volumes, to be called the "Gypsy Series." Judging by the first volume, the series is sure to be a very popular one. For sale by Jas. S. Claxton.

"The Lady's Mile" is Miss Braddon's last novel, published by Dick & Fitzgerald, New York. Like all of Miss Braddon's works the story is of a lively and sensational order and sure of hosts of readers. For sale by J. B. Lippincott & Co.

"The History of a Little Ragamuffin," is the title of a novel recently published by Harper & Brothers. It is a graphic picture of life among the poor and friendless street boys of London. For sale by T. B. Peterson & Brothers.

Aerial Navigation.

The recent attempts which have been made in this city to prove that the navigation of the air is as practicable as the seas has received a new impetus from the efforts of Dr. Andrews with his Aereon. On Tuesday last the Doctor, together with Mr. Plumb, the secretary, made a second ascension. They started on their atmospheric travels at a quarter to six, determining to take advantage of the soft breezes of the evening. Upon starting the rudder caught, and the ship drifted at will for some time; but after getting above the tops of the houses the Doctor got control, and then took entire the Doctor got control, and then took entire command. He is corroborated in his state command. He is corroborated in his statement that he went entirely against the wind in the same manner that a bird will do—just by raising or lowering of the tail. The theory seems to be pretty well founded, and there are large numbers of our citizens who have sincere faith in its ultimate success. After traveling some forty miles in the air they landed at Jamaica, Long Island, with astronger conviction than ever that the Aereon is soon to become a flying fact. There are few who would not rejoice at its success. From what was seen by those on terra firma the ship worked admirably, going in various directions at the will of the young in various directions at the will of the voyageurs. After receiving a hearty welcome from the villagers the ship was brought safely back to its starting point at the corner of Greene and Houston streets, in this city.—N. Y. Herald.

EARTHQUAKES.—A city of Mexico letter says: Towards the sea coast, from Yucaten to Tampico, have been felt many shocks of carthquakes. At Cordova, Orizaba and Jalapa the terror of the inhabitants was great, and fearing a recurrence of the scenes of January last they fled from their houses and sought shelter in the gardens and fields. Fortunately no damage was done save throwing down near Cordova one or two old buildings.

Interesting Discovery at Saratoga. In the Troy (N. Y.) Whig is the following curious account of investigations which have lately been made in the bed of one of the Saratoga Springs:

High Rock Spring, Saratoga, which has long been regarded as a great natural curiosity, has recently been investigated during the progress of excavations carried on to induce it nossible the water to flow over the duce, if possible, the water to flow over the opening in the rock. The water without doubt originally flowed through the round orifice in the top, during the process of formation of the rock, and probably for years. subsequent to that. But ever since the spring has been known the water has failed to reach the top of the rock, having found some subterranean outlet. Since the spring passed into the hands of the present proprietor, efforts have been in progress, as stated above, to penetrate the mystery, and cause the water to again resume its ancient flow. The first has already been accom-plished, and some very singular facts have been brought to light.

A slight excavation has shown that the rock only extended a few inches below the surface, and it was easily removed. Within it was a chamber about two feet in diameter. and below a pit formed by the bubbling water, about ten feet in depth, in which were found a large number of tumblers lost in dipping water. All around the soil was in dipping water. All around the soil was filled with incrustations formed by the deposits from the water, but immediately beneath the rock lay the body of a tree, eighteen inches in diameter, which still retained its form, and was sufficiently firm to be sawed in sections and pulled out. This tree must have fallen before the formation of the surface of the rock commenced, and has prosurface of the root commenced, and has pro-bably lain thousands of years. Several feet further down the body of an oak, eight inches in diameter, was found, and which has suffered very little decay. After reaching a depth of twelve feet, it became apparent that a few inches more would bring to view the crevice from which

THE TAX ON CIGARS.-A delegation of tobacco dealers from New York were present at the office of the Commissioner of Insent at the omce of the Usimmissioner of in-ternal Revenue, at Washington, yesterday, for the purpose of having the ad valorem duty on cigars changed, as being liable to evasion by the manufacturers, who return their cigars at a much less value than they are actually worth in the market,

TOBACCO FAIR AT LOUISVILLE,-At the tobacco fair in Louisville, Ky., all the tobacco growing States were represented. Over three hundred hogsheads were entered.
