RECONSTRUCTION.

Report of the Committee. WASHINGTON, June 8.—The detailed report of the Committee on Reconstruction was to-day made in each House of Congress. They set forth the reasons for the conclusions to which they come, reporting an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and the two bills with which the public are already familiar.

Speaking of the condition of the Confederate States at the close of the rebellion, the -committee say: These States were in utter exhaustion and without government. The President had no power except to execute the laws of the land as Chief Magistrate. The laws gave him no authority over the subject of reconstruction. By the Constitution he ommander-in-chief of the army and navy. It was his duty, under the laws of nations It was his duty, under the laws of nations and the army regulations, to restore order, to preserve property and to protect the people against violence from any quarter, until provision shall be made for their go-

He might, as President, assemble Congress and submit the whole matter to the law-making power, or he might continue military supervision and control, until Congress should assemble on its regularly apinted day. As to the Governors appointed by the President, it could not be contended that they possessed or could exercise any fout military authority. They had no poto organize civil governments, nor to exercise any authority except that which inhered in their own persons, under their commissions; neither had the President, as commander-in-chief, any other than military power; but he was in exclusive possession of the military authority.

It was for them to decide how far he could exercise it, how far he would relax it; when and on what terms he would withdraw it He might, perhaps, permit the people to as-semble and to initiate local governments and to execute such local laws as they might choose to form, not inconsistent with nor in opposition to the laws of the United States, and if satisfactory, they might safely be left to themselves. He might withdraw the military force altogether, and leave the people of any, or all of those States, to govern themselves without his interfere

The committee, after speaking of the origin and leading incidents of the war, say it was waged as a civil war of gigantic magni-It was necessarily subject to all the rules which by the laws of nations control a contest of that character, and to all the legi-timate consequences following it. One of the consequences was this: Within the limits presented by humanity the conquered rebels were at the mercy of their conque rors. The committee did not deem it ne cessary or proper to discuss the question whether the late Confederate States are still States of this Union or can ever be other wise. Grant this profitless abstraction about which so many words have been wasted, it by no means follows that the people of those States may not place themselves in a condition to abrogate the powers and privileges incident to a State of the Union, and deprive themselves of all pretence of right to exercise their power and enjoy their privileges.

The committee maintain no portion of the people of this country, whether in a State or Territory, have the right, while remaining on its soil, to withdraw from or reject the authority of the United States. They say it is quite evident from all the facts, and indeed from the whole mass of testimony submitted by the President, that in no in stance was any regard paid to any other consideration than obtaining immediat admission to Congress under th under the barren form of an election, in which no precautions were taken to secur e regularity of proceedings, or the assent of the people. No Constitution has been legally adopted except, perhaps, in the State of Tennessee, and such elections as were held were without authority of law. The committee are accordingly forced to the conclusion that the States referred to have not placed themselves in a condition to claim representa-tion in Congress, unless all the rules which have, since the feundation of the Government, been deemed essential in such cases, shall be disregarded. The committee ther review, at length, the condition and feeling of the Southern people, saying, among other things, the latter claim as a right the privilege of participating at once in the Govern-ment which for four years they sought to overthrow, while their press abounds in abuse of the loyal States, and efforts are made to perpetuate the deadly hate and discord between the two sections, and excite hostility against the Federal Union. The report, which is a long one, concludes as follows, which may be regarded as a summary of the whole case:

"The evidence of an intense hostility to the Federal Union, and an equally intense love of the late Confederacy, nurtured by the war, is decisive. While it appears that nearly all are willing to submit at least for the time being, to Federal authority, it is egally clear that the ruling motive is a deobtain the advantage which will be derived from a representation in Congress. Officers of the Union army on duty, and Northern men who go South to engage in business, are generally deserted and pro-scribed. Southern men, who adhere to the Union, are bitterly hated and relentlessly persecuted. In some localities prosecutions have been instituted in State Cours against Union officers for acts done in the line of official duty, and similar prosecutions are threatened elsewhere as soon as the United States troops are removed.

All such demonstrations show a state of feeling against which it is unmistakably necessary to guard. The testimony is conclusive that after the collapse of the rederacy the feeling of the people of the re-bellious States was that of abject submis-sion. Having appealed to the tribunal of arms, they had no hope except that by the magnanimity of their conquerors, their lives, and possibly their property might be preserved. Unfortunately, the general issue of pardons to persons who had been prominent in the rebellion, and the feeling of kindliness and conciliation manifested by the Executive, and very generally indicate throughout the Northern press. had the to render whole communities forgetful of the crime they had committed.

Defiant towards the Federal Government and regardless of their duties as citizens, the concilatory measures of the Government do not seem to have been met, even half way. The bitterness and defiance exhibited to-wards the United States under such circumstances, is without a parallel in the history of the world. In return for our leniency we receive only an insulting denial of our au-thority. In return for our kind desire for the resumption of fraternal relations, were -ceive only an insolent assumption of rights and privileges long since forfeited. The crime we have punished is paraded as a virtue, and the principles of republican gov-ernment, which we have vindicated at so terrible a cost, are denounced as unjust and

If we add to this evidence the fact that, although peace has been declared by the President, he has not to this day deemed it safe to restore the writ of habeas corpus, to relieve the insurrectionary States of martial law, nor to withdraw the troops from many localities, and that the commanding general deems an increase of the army indispensable to the preservation of order and the protection of lovel and wall disposed people in tection of loyal and well disposed people in the South, the proof of a condition of feeling hostile to the Union and dangerous to the Government throughout the insurrectionary States would seem to be alarming. We now propose to restate as briefly as possible the several facts and principles applicable to all the States recently in rebel-

First—The seats of Senators and Representatives from the so-called Confederate States became vacant in the year 1861, during the second session of the Thirty-sixth Congress, by the voluntary withdrawal of their incumbents, with the sanction and by the direction of their respective States.

This was done as a hostile act against the restitution and Government of the United Stat. 38, with a declared intent to overthrow the sa me by forming a Southern Confedera-tion. "his act of declared hostility was speedily followed by an organization of the same State, with a confederacy which lived and waged, var by sea and land against the United State. This war continued more than four year, within which period the rebel armies bes. eged the National Capital, invaded the loyal. tates, burned their towns and cities, robbed their citizens, destroyed more than two hundred and fifty thousand loyal soldiers, and im posed an increased National burden of not less than $3,500,000. 000, of which seven or eight hundred millions have already been met and paid; from the time these Confederate States thus withdrew from their representation in Congress. and levied war against the United States, the great mass of their people became and were insurgents, traitors, and all of them assumed and occupied the political, legal and practical relation of enemies of the United States. This position is established by acts of Congress and judicial decisions, and is recognized repeatedly by the President in public proclamations, documents

Second—The States thus confederated pro-secuted their war against the United States to final arbitrament, and did not cease until all their armies were captured, their military power destroyed, their civil officers, State and Confederate, taken prisoners or put to flight, every vestige of State and Confederate Government obliterated, their territory overrun and occupied by the Federal armies, and their people reduced to the condition of enemies conquered in war, entitled only by public law to such rights, privileges and conditions as might be vouch-safed by the conqueror. This position is also established by judicial decisions, and is recognized by the President in public proclamations, documents and speeches.

Third—Having voluntarily deprived themselves of representation in Congress, for the criminal purpose of destroying the Federal Union, and having reduced themselves, by the act of levying war, to the condition of public enemies, they have no right to complain of temporary exclusion from Congress; but, on the contrary, having voluntarily renounced their right to representation, and disqualified themselves by crime from participating in the Government, the burden now rests upon them, before claiming to be reinstated in their former condition, to show that they are qualified to resume Federal relations. In order to do this, they must prove that they have established, with the consent of the people, republican forms of government, in harmony with the Constitution and laws of the United States; that old hostile purposes have ceased, and should give adequate guaranties against future treason and rebellion, which will prove satisfactory to the Government against which they rebelled and by whose arms they were subdued.

Fourth—Having by this treasonable withdrawal from Congress, and by fiagrant rebellion and war forfeited all civil and political rights and privileges under th Federal Constitution, they can only be restored thereto by the permission and authority of that constitutional power against which they rebelled, and by they were subdued.

Fifth-These rebellious armies were conquered by the people of the United States, acting through all the co-ordinate branche of the Government, and not by the Executive department alone. The powers of Congress are not so vested in the President that he can fix and regulate the terms of settlement, and confer Congressional representa-tion upon conquered rebels and traitors, can he in any way qualify enemies of the Government to exercise its law-making power. The authority to restore rebels political power in the Federal Government can be exercised only with the concurrence of all the departments in which political power is vested, and hence the several pro-clamations of the President to the people of the Confederate States cannot be considered as extending beyond the purposes declared and can only be regarded as provisional permission by the Commander-in-Chief of the army to do certain acts, the validity whereof is to be determined by the Constitutional Government, and not solely by the executive power.

Sixth—The question before Congress is, then, whether conquered enemies have the right, and shall be permitted, at their own pleasure, and on their own terms, to participate in making laws for their conquerors whether conquered rebels may change their theatre of operations from the battle field, where they were defeated and overthrown, to the halls of Congress, and their represen-tatives seize the Government which they sought to destroy; whether the National Treasury, the army of the nation, its navy its forts and arserals. its whole civil ad ministrations, its credits, its pensioners, the widows and orphans of those who perished in the war, the public honor, peace and safety, shall all be turned over to the keepf its recent enemies without delay and without imposing such conditions as in the opinion of Congress the security of the country and its institutions may demand.

Seventh-The history of mankind exhibits no example of such madness and folly. The instincts of self-preservation protests against it. The surrender by Grant to Lee, and by Sherman to Johnston, would have been disasters of less magnitude; for new armies could have been raised, new battles fought and the Government saved. The anti-coercive policy which, under the pre-tense of avoiding bloodshed, allowed the rebellion to take form and gather force, would be surpassed in infamy by the matchless wickedness that would now surrender the halls of Congress to those so recently in rebellion until proper precautions shall have been taken to secure the National faith and tne National safety.

Eighth.—It has been shown in this report and in the evidence submitted no proof has been afforded to Congress of a constituency in any of the so-called Confederate States unless we except the State of Tennessee qualified to elect Senators and Representa-tives in Congress. No State Constitution or amendment to a State Constitution has had the sanction of the people. All the so-called legislation of the State Conventions and leg-islatures has been had under military dictation. If the President may at his will and under his own authority, whether as mili-tary commander or chief executive, quali-fy persons to appoint Senators and elect Repfy persons to appoint Senators and elect Reprepresentatives, and empower others to appoint and elect them, he thereby practically controls the organization of the legislative department. The constitutional forms of Government are therefore practically destroyed, and its powers absorbed in the Executive, and while your committee do not for a moment impute to the President any such design, but cheerfully concede to him the most patriotic motives, they cannot but look with alarm upon a precedent so fraught with danger to the Republic. Ninth—The necessity of providing adequate safeguards for the future, before restoring the insurrectionary States to a participation in the direction of public affairs, is apparent from the bitter hostility to the Government and people of the States vet existing throughout the conquerediterritory, as proved incontestably by the testimony of many witnesses, and by undisputed facts.

Tenth—The conclusion of your committee, therefore, is, that the so-called Confederate States are not at present entitled to representation, in the Congress of the United States, and that before allowing such representation adequate security for future peace and safety should be required; that this can only be found in such changes of the organic law as shall determine the civil rights and privileges of the citizens in all parts of the Republic; shall place representation on an equal basis; shall fix a stigma upon treaon, and protect the loyal people against future claims for the expenses incurred in support of the rebellion and for manumitted slaves; together with an express grant of power in Congress to enforce these provisions. To this end they offer a joint resolution for amending the Constitution of the United States, and the two several bills designed to carry the same into effect before referred to. Before closing this report, your committee beg leave to state that the specific recommendations submitted by them are the remendations submitted by them are the test sult of concession, after a long and careful comparison of conflicting opinions upon a question of such magnitude, infinitely important as it is to the future of the Republic, it was not to be expected that all should think alike. Sensible of the imperfections of the scheme, your committee eabmit to Congress, as the best they could agree upon, in the hope that its imperfections may be cured and its deficiencies supplied by legis-lative wisdom, and that, when finally adopted, it may tend to restore peace and harmony to the country and to place our republican institutions on a more stable oundation.
