THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT. The Senate completed its share of the good work of reconstruction yesterday, adopting the Constitutional Amendment by a three-fourths vote. The Amendment, as amended by the Senate, goes hack to the House for concurrence, and will doubtless be accepted without further-alteration. The dissatisfaction that was at first felt at the change in the third section has quite passed away, and the feeling that has taken its place is the old sense of confidence in the wisdom and patriotism of Congress. That the Amendment, as it now stands, is strong enough for the requirements of the sountry is proved, not only by the singular harmony of the Union side of the Senate in reference to it, but by the determined opposition of the minority, with whose hopeless fortunes Messrs. Doolittle, Norton and Van Winkle seem to have irrevocably linked themselves. These gentlemen, with their new-found associates, fought the measure through to the bitter end, as if they wished to proclaim to the whole country their desertion of their party. Reverdy Johnson, McDougall and others of the copperhead wing of the opposition wasted time upon wing of the opposition wasted time upon neseless amendments, which were steadily voted down, as the solid phalanx of Union-loving Senators marched forward in their grand work of reconstruction. Mr. McDougall, probably with stammering lips and uncertain tongue, proclaimed, as his creed, that two-thirds of the South had always been loyal, and that all were loyal now, and Mr. Johnson flung a gross insult into the face of the country by asserting that the third section, which disqualifies the leading traitors from holding office, "would disfranchise the best men of the South."

In view of the bold, brave attitude of Congress in meeting the grave responsibilities which the rebellion has thrust nseless amendments, which were steadily upon it, the country can afford to be amused with the ravings of the Mc-Dougalls, the Saulsburys, the Davises, the Johnson s of the Senate. They are impotent for any serious harm, and they serve a go od purpose in keeping before the peor de fair specimens of the representati ses that the South, in its present state, would send to Congress, if it had the chance.

THE EXECUTION.

Sheriff Howell deserves the thanks of Are community for the admirable manmer in which he conducted the execution of the murderer Probst, yesterday. Had the old custom of having executions in public been followed, there would have been a scene of riot and disorder almost without a parallel in the history of the city; for the feeling concerning the crime and the criminal was asunprecedented as the crime itself. And had the Sheriff been weak and yielding. and allowed a crowd to gather inside the prison walks under one subterfuge or another, there would have been such a discreditable exhibition as marked the execution of Arthur Spring.

Even the representatives of the press, who are recognized as the representatives of the public in such cases, were admitted in a very limited number, and no reporter or correspondent of a paper outside of Philadelphia was allowed to be present. There was much complaint, particularly among the more important newspapers in New York and other cities; but the Sheriff knew that if he made any exception to the rule he had laid down, a door would be opened that it would be difficult to close. No single individual was present except such as the law specially provides for, with the exception of seven representatives of the Philadelphia newspaper press. These seven were enabled to lay all the facts before the public in a satisfactory shape.

The execution was what the law contemplates, a solemn act, and everything connected with it was managed with a delicacy, solemnity and marked propriety that we have never before witnessed. We repeat that Sheriff Howell deserves the thanks of the community for the firm manner in which he performed every portion of the unpleasant task imposed upon him by his official duty.

THE WORM NUISANCE.

It is an agreeable fact that the trees in the streets and public squares of Philadelphia have been but little infested. this season, with the worms that have for years made the pleasant months of May and June almost intolerable in the city. Most of the trees appear to be free from them, and none have yet been stripped of their leaves. In former years the worms have appeared sometimes as early as April, and never later than the middle of May, and they were over and succeeded by the white moth by the second week in June. Will not some of our scientific men give their views on this subject and explain the causes of it? Did the warm weather of April produce the worms earlier than usual, and were they destroyed by the remarkably cold weather of May? Or are there cycles in the existence of the pestilent little creatures; and do they disappear after a period of years? Certain it is, that it looks as if we were likely to be freed from them entirely in another year or two. It must have been noticed by all our citizens that there are more birds in the city trees this season than have been observed for many years. This is the result of the expulsion of the grey squirrels, that used to prey upon the birds' nests until they drove all the feathered tribe out of town. They are returning, and to them, to some extent, may be attributed the disappearance of the worms. But there must be other causes at work. Perhaps it is owing to the suppression of the rebellion, or the President's proclamation, or the cholera, or the trichina, or the rinderpest, or the war in Europe, or the Fenian movement. Who can tell? THE RECONSTRUCTION REPORT. Every American man, woman and child that can do so, should read the report of the Reconstruction Committee, presented yesterday to Congress. Few public documents have ever been laid before the country of more importance than this, and it becomes every one who has an interest in the past history and the future perpetuity of the Republic to ponder carefully this clear, comprehensive, statesmanlike exposition of the issues that have been and are yet before the country. The report shows the high ground upon which Congress has planted itself, and the impregnable position which it has assumed will be appreciated by all classes and conditions of the people. The document is singularly concise and intelligible in its statement of the condition of the South, the responsibilities and prerogatives of Congress and the follies and fallacies of the advocates of immediate and indiscriminate reconstruction. We shall probably take occasion to refer again to this interesting report, but meanwhile it should be read carefully and thoroughly by all who have it within their reach.
