BACHELOR DREAMS. BY ROBERT BUCHANAN.

The world is dreary, I am growing old, Wife nor bairn makes glad my chamber

The wintry season cometh with its cold. The hearth is dark, and the wind without is shrill: Yea! twilight gloams around me, -hope and

Depart, like scent and color from a flower-Yet, where I sit, sweet music floats to me:
Tis the falling, falling of a silver shower Around a forest tree!

Ah! can I hear the scented rain intone? Can I hear the leaves that stir and sigh?
Or hear I but the movement and the moan Of busy folk that hurry darkly by? Nay!-for a white hand lies in mine, sweet Shine on me, and a happy maiden cries! Nay! for my blood again flows fresh and free,— To the falling, falling of the shower that sighs

Around the forest tree!

And can it be so many years ago, Since I clasped her, 'neath the leaves,that summer day?

And were there words of parting, words of Sits she among her children, far away? Can she hear the sweet and melancholy Doth she see the shining dewdrops on the ground?

Doth she flutter like the leaves, and dream of me,— To the falling, falling of the rain around The murmurous forest tree?

The city closes round me, I am old, Yet 'tis melody from country lanes I The wintry season cometh with its cold The hearth is dark, and the end of all is near; Yet, love, the city fadeth with its pain! The old bright dream is drowsy on my And my life is flowing earthward fast and sundries

To the falling, falling of the summer rain Around a forest tree!

TERRIBLE CATASTROPHE. Seven Children Killed and Nine Others

[From the Charleston (S. C.) Courier.] One of the most heart-rending and appalling catastrophes which we have eyer been called upon to record, occurred at the village of Bamberg, on the Augusta branch of the South Carolina Railroad, seventy-six miles from Charleston, between three and four o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, by which nearly every family of that village has been thrown into the deepest gloom and mourning.

The scene of this distressing occurrence was about three hundred yards from the depot, in a two-story frame building known as Allen Lodge of Freemasons, lately used as a school house by Mr. Robert Seabrook and his sister, the former having charge of the male, and the latter of the fe male department.

Into this building some eighteen of the scholars, boys and girls, had assembled about three o'clock, for the purpose of joining in a festive party given by the young misses to their youthful male friends.
While in the act of spreading a table with while in the act of spreading a table with refreshments, candies, cakes, &c., the build-ing was struck by a violent gale of wind, or tornado, from the west, which passed over the village, taking a northeasterly direc-tion, sweeping trees and fences, and every-thing before it. The chimney was carried away at the same time that the roof was rent asunder. An attempt was made by George W. Patrick, one of the older boys, to open the door; but that was found to be so jammed as to defy removal. Another of the youths, Charles Stewart, then proposed to escape by the window, and jumped ou for the purpose of assisting the others, when the whole building fell, killing young Stewart and five others instantly, and wounding ten others, one of whom expired wounding ten others, one of whom expired shortly after reaching home.

The following are the names and ages of the killed: Master Angus M. Brabbham, aged 15 years, son of Major J.J. Brabbham; Miss Hattie Brabbham, aged 14 years, daughter of Hampton Brabbham, Esq., Master Charles Stewart, aged 16 years, son of Hansford Stewart, Esq.; Miss Urbanna Rentz, aged 10 years, daughter of Mrs. Emma Rentz, lately removed from Orangeburg; Miss Urbarsie Hoffman, aged 15 years, Miss Uphrasie Hoffman, aged 15 years, daughter of E. G. Hoffman, Esq.; Master Elmore Sanders, aged 16 years, son of Jabez Sanders, Eeq.; Master Charles Simmons, aged 6 years, son of A. E. Simmons, Esq. The following are the names of the wounded: George W. Patrick, severely; James Rennett, severely; Miss Annie Rennett, severely; Miss Sallie Brabbham, severely; Miss Julia Slater, severely; Miss Hoffman, severely; Thomas Rivers, severely; and two others slightly, whose names we did not learn. Only two of the party escaped entirely un-

The little Miss Urbanna Rentz, who was carried home in a dying condition, bore her sufferings with unusual fortitude. She resufferings with unusual fortitude. She re-tained her consciousness until the last, and after telling her mother not to weep, that she was going to heaven, requested that her body might be taken to Orangeburg, and deposited alongside of her father, who died but a few months before. Most of those who were saved were found where they had crept under the school benches, upon which the timbers had rested after the falling of the building.

But a few moments sufficed to spread the news of this awful calamity in the village, news of this swill calamity in the village, and the whole community soon gathered round the place. Parents, relatives, and friends were in the most dreadful suspense. The bodies of both the living and dead were either covered or wedged in between the heavy timbers, and required the use of axes, to release them. The painful seems which to release them. The painful scene which ensued, as narrated to us by one of the gentlemen who assisted, was too harrowing for description... We can only tender our heart-felt sympathies as well as the sympathies of our people to the bereaved and afflicted com-munity of Bamberg in this sudden and appalling calamity.

From Texas. GALVESTON, Texas, June 9.—The barque Woodlands, of and from Liverpool, was wrecked near Breaker. Her deck and rail are under water. Some portion of the cargo and tackle and apparel were saved in a damaged condition. A steam number of damaged condition. A steam pump is on board, but the extremely bad weather prevented its successful operation. A survey was made yesterday, and the condemnation and sale of the vessel recommended.

The Murder Near Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, June 11—Evening.—Mrs.

Mooney, the daughter of David White, the gate-keeper at Elk Ridge bridge, on the Washington road, who was murdered at his house last night as already reported, will house last night, as already reported, will, it is now thought, recover; but her son, a boy of fourteen, who was also beaten by the murderers of his grandfather, has suffered a relapse, and it is thought will die. Suspicion rests on several notorious parties, but at last accounts no arrests had een made. The murderers are supposed to have come to Baltimore.
