Accident to the U. S. Steamer Wyoming.

who was personally present to see that things were properly conducted, and that The weather was very thick and foggy when we left port, late in the afternoon, and towards evening it became so thick and dark that we could scarce see a ship's length ahead. We were making nearly nine knots, under sail and steam. No one apprehended any danger, and all hands of us were down his possession. The value contained some clothing and naturalization papers, a tax receipt and a discharge from the army in the name of George Cassady. The Alder-man inquired of Keyser where he had got the value. "Oh." said he, "it is mine." "How about this naturalization paper?" below talking, when we heard the officer of the deck call out, in a startling voice, "Hard a port! Let go all the sheets and halyards!" and stopped and backed the engine. All rushed on deck, thinking that we had only sighted a sail close aboard, remarked the magistrate. "That is mine, too," was the reply. "That is strange," said Alderman Hibberd, who heard the case. "Are you a native of Ireland?" This and were trying to pass it. Just as I reached the deck I heard a crash forward. It was not very severe. I thought it was a steamer, for overhead I could see an immense black mass, like a cloud of was a stumper. Burrdid not wish to claim to be an Irishman, and he had nothing to smoke hanging over us. There was terrible noise and confusion for about a minute, and then the example and coolness of the officers prevailed and the sail was all taken in. As soon as this was done we beat to quarters. soon as this was none we beat to quarters, and detailed the men to the pumps. The ship started abead again, and all the steam pumps were put in operation. The water had rushed in with such terrific violence that it was now within two inches of the fires, and still slowly rising, although we had ten pumps in operation. Not five minutes had passed away, and everything was going on as quietly as if nothing had occurred, when we were startled by the cry "Land ho! close aboard on the port bow!" The engine was stopped and backed, the helm put hard a port, and the threatened danger retreated into the thick darkness. A little confusion was caused by this, but it was soon quelled, and we steamed ahead again.

row evening. The exercises will be very interesting. The opening address will be made by Hon. Morton McMichael, Mayor All the boats were by this time fitted out. and every preparation was made for leaving the ship, should it become necessary. We had steamed a little while, when we again of the city, and addresses are expected from saw land, the same we had struck upon and Governor Curtin, Hon. James Pollock narrowly escaped before. We just grazed it General Geary, and other distinguished narrowly escaped before. We just grazed it this time. The pumps were now slowly gaining on the water, and the men were working cheerily. The ship had a very hard list to port, and the guns were pivoted to the other side, to keep the water even in the fire-room. We all knew we had struck very heavily—heavily enough to have sunk very heavily—heavily enough to have sunk citizens. No. 38 Queen street was entered early this morning and a watch and chain, several articles of clothing, and $33 in money were stolen. SALE OF REAL ESTATE, STOCKS, &C .-almost any ship. There were two shocks, one on the port bow and one on the port waist. Still we gained on the water and Messrs. Thomas & Sonssold at the Exchange steamed back for Foo-chow-foo. At any moment we might find ourselves unable to keep the water below the fires, and the mot they went out we knew we were lost. The engine worked nobly, but after we The engine worked nonly, but after we had reduced the water twenty inches, we could work no more. The black, blinding mist drove by incessantly and the wind in-creased little by little. Still, the sea was smooth. We had struck at a quarter of seven P. M. It was now a little after eight, and we knew that we had a night of inces-part hard work before us. Our number were sant hard work before us. Our pumps were throwing about 5,000 gallons of water a minute, so you can imagine how badly we leaked. We kept cruising about all night, not running far in any one direction, as we were not quite sure of our position. About midnight the weather cleared away, and the wind went down, much to our reand the wind went down, much to our re-lief. Towards morning we sighted two islands, which we supposed to be the White Dog Rocks, lying off the Min river, our des-tination. We steamed about them till broad daylight, and then stood in. We passed inside of them about seven in the meaning inside of them about seven in the morning and found we were wrong, and we knew not where we were. All hands were nearly exhausted by the night's labor, but the crew worked nobly, lightening their toil by sailors' songs and worn-out jests. After steaming about blindly for a few After steaming about bindry for a low hours, we ascertained our position, and headed the ship for the White Dogs, still keeping her pretty free of water. We found out that the land we first saw was Tung-ying island, on the southeast end of which we had struck. At 22 P. M. we took a pilot on board off the White Dogs and started in over the bar. It was dead low water and there was scarcely a chance of our getting over. But we managed to drag in, and at mere was scarcely a chance of our getting over. But we managed to drag in, and at dark anchored in the river. We discon-nected the propeller from the engine, kept the latter working, and found that it would keep the ship free. So our may work alkeep the ship free. So our men were al-lowed to rest for the first time in twentyfour hours. They needed it sadly. Had it not been for frequent doses of coffee, they not been for frequent doses of coffee, they would have given out long before. The next morning we came up to the Pa-goda anchorage, intending to go into dock, but found the dock occupied. This was on the 19th. On the afternoon of the 20th we were put into dock, and after the water had been pumped out we found that the ship's side had been stove in twenty feet in length side had been stove in twenty feet in length and three or four feet in width; that the and three or four feet in which that the bowsprit had been broken short off near the gammoning, and that the head and stern had been crushed. It will take us a couple of months to repair even temporarily. I am afraid that all our cruising is at an end, and that we will miss our trip to Japan.

"No," said be, I hearn tell, a right smart spell ago, that the Yankees had got Richmond, but as for old Bob Lee's surrenderin', he haint done no such a thing. He haint the boy for that, for I've been in his army once myself, and I know him. He won't do it." The largest salary paid any one man in New England is received by the agent of the alisbury Woolen Mills, Newburyport, who has fifteen thousand dollars a year. The low est salary was probably received by that Methodist clergyman who asserted at the Boston Convention last week that his remuneration for the first year's preaching consisted of a new hat and a bushel of apples -while at present he was more fortunate, his salary amounting to about $25 a year. The grand jury of Cameron county, Texas, has indicted ex-Major-General F. J. Herron, United States Army, for kidnapping and delivering to the Liberal General tinas a suspected Imperialist, named Re-jon, who was subsequently shot by order of Cortinas.

About one year ago one of the Detroit while there ordered a half dozen cartes de visite of himself, which he distributed among his friends in that place. A few days ago he was surprised to find one of these counterfeit resemblances in possession of the family cook. An investigation into the mat-ter disclosed the fact that she had received from a fortune-teller in New York city, who advertised to forward a correct likeness of any young lady's future husband, all for the sum of fifty cents, which amount the cook had remitted, according to the advertisement, and received her employer's likeness in return. A young lady in Chicago was betrothed at the beginning of the war to a lieutenant in the army. He was killed in battle, and his body taken home and buried by his nearest friend and comrade, who was with him when he fell. To this young man the lady's affections were transferred in time, and she engaged to marry, him. On the day when they were to be united, and while the clergyman was about to join their hands, the lady suddenly fainted. On recovering, she said she had seen the spirit of her lover, who had forbidden the marriage. Out of deference to the wishes of the deceased gentleman, the nuptials were indefinitely postponed, and the heroine has just entered a convent.

Recently Mr. John Heavinger, a soldier of the war of 1812, died at Carlisle Barracks. where he had been for many years in the employ of the Government. He was about eighty years of age. Mr. Heavinger was a member of Captain Hendel's Mite Compa-ny, with which he marched from Carlisle to the "lines" at the commencement of the war of 1812, and served the time for which he had volunteered faithfully and honora-bly. He participated in many of the battles which were fought upon the Canadian frontiers during the war, and was universally esteemed a gallant soldier and an honest man.

Facts and Fancies. A New Orleans lady recently had the crystal of her watch shattered by a stroke of lightning without injury to herself. It does not say whether she was wearing if or not. A "run" on a London bank was stopped, and the crowd in front effectually dispersed in ludicrous plight, by the simple expedient of emptying a bag of flour over them from an upper window. The plan could be easily introduced in this country. Few banks are so poor that they have not a few mills left. The Petersburg Index vents its against Judge Underwood by printing his name with a small u. This is considered, by small newspapers, the most terrible calamity that can be inflicted on a man. It is regarded as a sort of capital punishment.

A singular dispute has occurred in con-nection with the Great Metropolitan Horse Show, now being held in London. On the 20th the Secretary of the show cleared the room of the grooms in attendance upon the horses, and took the animals into the ring for the private inspection of Count Fleury, Master of the Horse to the Emperor of the French. The owners of the animals were very indignant at this unauthorised proceeding, but an apology was made, and the matter was thus amicably settled. A great Fleury about nothing.
