CITY BULLETIN.

WEST PHILADELPHIA.—The rain storm last night, in the western wards, was posi-tively grand. The lightning flashing almost without intermission, and the soughing of the winds, with the rushing rain, for it descended in perfect torrents, made the night one of unusual excitement. After the magnificent baptism everything looks green as June ought always to look.

At the Police Station this morning we made a descent on an embryo Base Ball Club, to be formed out of the fine corps of officers officiating in our district. They have not yet decided on its name, but when once in the fold it. once in the field it will make its mark. There were two cases of vagrancy, including the insane man arrested yesterday on Thirty-fifth street, near Powelton avenue. He was sent to prison, to be transmitted thence, of course, to the Insane Department of the Almshouse. His name was David Raccht. There were three cases of breach of the peace, all committed. One affair, of false pretences, was heard, last evening about 6 o'clock. The defendant's name was Florence Scammell, bailing from New York. The present mell, hailing from New York. The prose-cutor was Mr. Benjamin Skain, of Thirtyninth and Market streets. The offence consisted in obtaining four horses, two of which he pretended to wish to take and leave two behind. This didn't suit Mr. Skain's busi-ness views, and Alderman Allen held our speculative customer in $800, to answer at Court.

The Berean Baptist Church holds its Sabthe Derest Dapast Unuren notes its sac-bath School anniversary this evening, and it will no doubt prove a fine affair. The fair of Rev. J. G. Butler's Presby-terian Church, on Walnut street above Thirty-ninth, is fully up to the anticipations of its projectors. Last wight nearly $1000 of its projectors. Last night nearly $1,000 had been realized from the sale of goods.

THE ORCHESTRION.—This is the name of a musical instrument recently invented and manufactured by M. Welte & Sons, of Baden. A number of these instruments have been sent to Russia, several are in use in England, one is in operation in New York, and one has just been put up in this city. A trial of the latter was made at Ladner's Military Hall, No. 532 North Third street, yesterday afternoon. The instru-ment consists of a beautifully finished case of walnut, 12 feet in height, contains about of walnut, 12 feet in height, contains about 500 pipes, which represent, most faithfully, nearly all the orchestral instruments, such as violins, flutes, oboes, clarinets, bassoons, irumpets, horns, trombones, etc. These pipes are placed above and around the most delicate machinery, which, together with the cylinder is visible through the glass doors. This cylinder contains the "tune" and being put in motion by a gentle pressure on a spring and supplied with power and the necessary wind by a weight of 400 pounds, the orchestra performs the grandest overtures. Selections from operas dense overtures, selections from operas, dance and national music, which require from 8 to 10 minutes' time. This is effected by the spiral motion of the cylinder, which makes eight revolutions at the rate of one minute each. A regulator controls the movement of every piece, and an arrangement similar to the "swell" in church organs secures a perfect expression. The Repertoire may be increased at pleasure, the manufacturer supplying the cylinders to order. The trial yesterday afternoon was very successful. For churches, parlors, drawing-rooms, and small concert saloons the orchestrion is well

LEAGUE ISLAND.—At a meeting of the Corn Exchange Association, held this morning, the President, Mr. Charles Cummings, called attention to the importance of some action by Congress on the League Island gift. Mr. E. Harper Jeffries submitted the following, which were unanimously agreed

Whereas, The Representatives in the Congress of the United States have accepted League Island, as a gift from the city of Philadelphia, for a Navy Yard for iron clad vessels, we, the Corn Exchange Associa-tion of Philadelphia congretates country, and express our thanks to the members of the House of Representatives, on the passage of the bill, and as it will soon be submitted to the United States Senate for their consideration, therefor be it

All persons feeling an interest in this institution, which elicits in a very great degree the sympathies of the public, are invited to attend.

FINE ARTS.—The collection, numbering FINE ARTS.—The collection, numbering some 250 paintings, belonging to the American Art Gallery, New York (established for the encouragement of artists), now on exhibition at Scott's Art Gallery, 1020 Chestnut street, and to be sold on Friday, Saturday and Monday evenings, June 15, 16 and 18, are worthy of theattention of the buyers of good pictures. Among them will be of good pictures. Among them will be found specimens of some of the most talented living American artists. The paintings are to be sold solely for the encouragement of the artists, and we hope they will bring good prices

INCREASE OF WAGES.—The wages of the conductors on the Market Street Passenger Railway are to be increased to $2 50 per day after the first of July, and the drivers are to receive $2 25 per day. The increase was agreed upon at the last meeting of the Board of Directors, and was made upon the motion of John S. Morton, Esq., the President, Some of the other railway companies might well follow the example, as the price of horse feed has materially decreased, and the high rate of fare is still maintained.

BASE BALL.-A match game of Base Ball will be played this afternoon, between the Columbia B. B. C. of Bordentown, N. J., columbia B. B. C. of Bordentown, N. J., and the Minerva of Philadelphia, on the grounds of the latter club, Fifteenth and Columbia avenue. Last fall the Minerva visited Bordentown and were defeated by the Columbia by one run. A close and interesting game may be anticipated. The Minerva nine is as follows: Tay, Gilchrist, Thomas, Ayres, Paul, Esler, Sinerd, Nickolson and Wright.

Installation.—Rev. D. H. Cunningham, who was elected pastor of the Spring Garden Presbyterian Church, vice Rev. M. C. Sutphin, resigned, was installed, last evening, COLORED PEOPLE IN PASSENGER CARS. Patrick McGittigan, the conductor of passenger railway car has been held to bail by Recorder Eneu, to answer the charge of assault and battery on Mrs. Amelia Miles, colored, the President of the Ladies' Soldiers' Aid Society. Mrs. Miles and Mrs. Elizabeth Adger, it seems attempted to get into a car, when the former it is alleged was car, when the former, it is alleged, was rudely pushed from the platform.

FIRE-FIREMAN INJURED.-The Scale house, on pier No. 12, Port Richmond, was partially destroyed by fire, about 12 o'clock, last night. The loss was about $200. Theo. Nickels, a member of the Wm. Penn Hose Company, fell from the wall of the house during the fire and was seriously injured.

DROWNED.-John Wiseman, residing on Carpenter street, below Second, was seized with a fit, last evening, while fishing, near the Point House, fell from the boat, and was drowned. His body was not recovered. THE ELEGANT AND COSTLY BAT AND BALL to be voted for at the Methodist Fair, now open at Concert Hall, can be seen to-morrow morning, at the store of Messrs. Clark & Biddle, jewelers, 712 Chestnut st.

THERE is a post office in McDonough county, Illinois, through which only two letters passed each quarter for the last two quarters. They consisted of the correspondence between the Postmaster and the Department. The last letter to the Department announced the Postmaster's adherence to the President's policy. FROM HON. EX-CHIEF JUSTICE HORN-BLOWER, NEWARK, NEW JERSEY.—"Among the most valuable preparations for the toilet which has fallen under my notice, is an article properly called SOZODONT, which, I am satisfied, is nall respects what its title indicates—a Preserver of the Teth. It has been used in my family for some time, and proved to be a very serviceable cleanser of theteeth, as well as a very pleasant and cooling wash for the month. Besides the testimony of several of our most eminent physicians in its favor, the high standing of Mr. Van Buskirk in our community, as a gentleman of integrity, as well as an experienced chemist, should be sufficient evidence of its efficacy and value."

New Jersey matters.
GRAPES AND THEIR CULTIVATION.—The cultivation of grapes in many parts of West Jersey has become a great branch of business, and has proved to be quite profitable. The fact has become very apparent, so much so indeed that the enterprise is being induged in to an additional extent. Recently a party of Hunggrians have been a party of Hungarians have been experimenting scientifically on the soil of South Jersey, and have found it to be of superior quality for that branch of horticulture, and quality for that branch of horticulture, and consequently, they secured a large tract of land near Egg Harbor city, which they design to appropriate to the raising of grapes, and of converting it into a complete vineyard. They intend commencing operations soon, probably next fall. If they succeed, as they have manifested a conviction that they will, it is asserted that others will follow them in the planting of vineyards, and thus may South New Jersey be one fine garden for the growing of excellent grapes.

ADJOURNED.—The Courts of Garden ADJOURNED.—The Courts of Camden any term ever held in the county since it was constituted a county. The Court granted new trials in the cases of the two boys who were convicted on the evidence of John Beck, of incendiarism, he having been previously convicted of the same crime. previously convicted of the same crime. PAVING STREETS.—The work of paving Market and Federal streets, from Sixth Market and rederal streets, from Sixth street to the city limits, is nearly completed. This was a work that was very much needed, particularly as these streets were sometimes almost impassable for wagons in consequence of the mud.

Good Crops.—Everywhere throughout Camden county, and West Jersey generally, the crops appear very promising, and bid fair to yield abundantly. This is encouraging to farmers.

AMUSEMENTS. Apparently the heat of the weather has not seriously damaged the business of the theatres, as last evening the houses were all good, particularly those at the Arch and Walnut. To-night at the Arch Miss Ettie Henderson presents "Kathleen Mayourneen" and "The Bonnie Fish Wife." To-morrow she will take her henefit. This evening at the Walnut Mr. Booth plays in "Richelien." His engagement closes next week and his farewell benefit will be given phin, resigned, was installed, last evening, with appropriate ceremonies. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Beadle. The opening sermon was delivered by Rev. Dr. Henry, the charge to the pastor, by Rev. Mr. Rice, and the charge to the congregation, by Rev. Mr. Shinn.

BETTER.—Mr. S. G. Ruggles, Chief of Police, was much better this morning. His many friends will be glad to learn that he is now considered entirely out of danger.

week and his farewell benefit will be given on Wednesday. At the American the great attraction has been the genius of the Hanlons, A very lively bill is offered to-night, and to-morrow the Hanlons have their benefit. A strong turn-out of the friends of these superb gymnasts may be expected, and a very strong bill will be presented. At Assembly Building Signor Blitz continues to delight his friends with his nightly exhibitions and his matiness on Wednesday.

Household Economy. Contributed by Geo. J. Henkel, Cabinet maker, Thir-teenth and Chestnut streets.

Domestic Marbles.—Our country pro-luces some beautiful marbles for furniture. The following varieties are best known:—California, Tennessee, black and statuary.
These can be had in quantity. There are others which are found in caves and in limestone veins, called stalactives, stalagmites and calcareous spar. These last are valued as curiosities and cannot be had for general use: California marble is of volcanic for-mation, and is the most beautiful marble that the world produces for furniture. It comprises every variety of figure and every hue of color. The predominant color is a rich cornelian, which harmonizes well with rosewood and walnut. In its formation the liquid crystal, varying in color from clear white to cornelian, has incorporated itself with the debris of the volcano, making a solid conglomerate of the richest description, admitting of a few policy and description, solid conglomerate of the richest description, admitting of a fine polish, and finish. The history of its introduction into general use is interesting. Small samples were occasionally sent East as curiosities. Their excadilla. The owner elated at his good fortune collected all of the bowlders about Teluma Bay in California, and freighted with it every vessel that would carry it to New York, in all about four thousand cubic feet. But during this time the first block had been cut into elabs and the New York. been cut into alabs, and the News York stonecutters decided that it was not worth stonecutters decided that it was not worth the trouble of working. The ships laden with these immense bowlders arrived in New York, but their cargoes could not be sold at any price. The whole of it was stored in ship yards on the North river, and remained there for six years. The writer purchased one block to test its quality, and found in Mr. G. W. Jacoby, of Philadelphia, a stonecutter who could work it to advantage. The whole of the importation was vantage. The whole of the importation was immediately purchased and shipped to this city, thus securing to Philadelphia all that had been sent to the eastern States, and probably all that will be sent for many years to come as the price realized for the years to come, as the price realized for the whole lot was not sufficient to pay for freight and storage. This stone was not

treme beauty induced the export of several large blocks to New York, where it found purchasers at eighteen dollars per cubic foot—nearly double the price of the finest Bro-juarried as is usual, but was found in bowlders, resembling immense pieces of iron ore, having the appearance of having been ejected from former volcanoes while in a fused state. cances while in a fused state. In cutting the blocks into slabs, the interior construction of the boiling bubbles (when in a molten state) was exposed, giving it the appearance of petrified wood, which was supposed to be the case. But experience has since demonstrated that it is volcanic matter. Much of it is beautifully volcanic matter. Much of it is beautifully ornamented with pyrites of pure gold. If this marble can be had in large quantities, it will supersede all foreign marbles for furniture. It is in contemplation to send some specimens to the World's Exposition in Paris. Tennessee markle is aliented. in Paris. Tennessee marble is white and maroon spotted, and though not effective for style, is a favorite. Since the commencement of the war there has been but little of it sent North. The beautiful columns and stairways in the new capitol extension in Washington are made of this marble, and, Washington are made of this marble, and, being in large masses, look well.

Black marble, which is found near Williamsport, Pa., and in New York, resembles Irish black and Belgian black, but is so flinty in places that it will not polish smooth. While statuary of different qualities is found in Vermont, it contains a large quantity of mice, which spoils the effect in quantity of mica, which spoils the effect in statuary. It answers well for tombstones and cheap mantels. The stalagmites and and cheap mantels. The stalagmites and stalactites are very beautiful as specimens, but cannot be had in quantity. The same with calcareous spar, of which an elegant variety exists in limestone veins, in Rockbridge county, Va. It resembles the Rockford Gibraltar, and is beautifully veined. It is also translucent from the fact that it is formed by water percolating through limestone and carrying the carbonate of limestone and carrying the carbonate of limestone. stone, and carrying the carbonate of lime, which it deposits in small quantities, requiring ages to form a piece of sufficient size for use. The altar of a church at Lynchburg is made of this spar, and is much admired. When first taken out, it is soft, like Carrara marble, and cuts easily. but hardens by exposure to the atmosphere. In the economy of nature the finest marbles are placed in the latitude of Italy, and no doubt the developments in our country, in the same latitude, will produce equally fine marble as that of Italy. Bitualism in London. A writer in the Record tells us what he saw and heard at two of the "highest" of the "high" churches of Londen on Whit-Sunday. He visited St. Mathias's, Stoke Newington, in the morning. Of the ceremo-nial there he writes: "The church was decorated with flowers, and the chancel was sperated with flowers, and the chancel was specially gorgeous in its appearance, the elevated altar being covered with a cloth of divers colors, only just an edge of the rubrical fair white linen cloth' being visible. All conspicuous over it was the brass, or gilded cross, and on the other side two high candles. Morning Prayer without Litany, was brought to a close shortly before eleven, when the collecting bags were sent round. Then a young surpliced priest ascended the pulpit, and preached from Deut. xvi. 10. "Thou shalt keep the feast of weeks." Excepting sad omission of vital truth, and the shocking statements that the operations of cepting sad omission of vital truth, and the shocking statements that the operations of the Spirit wait for our free will, there was nothing very remarkable in his short discourse. It harped much on the Pentecostal gift of tongues being the symbol of the renewed unity of the church for which they longed and prayed, and which, though delayed seven times seventy, seven times over, would assuredly come—meaning of course, the re-union of the English with the Roman and Greek Churches. The sermon ended, there was an interval of silence in which the bells tolled softly, and there was a spiritual change of the congregation. During this time the candles gregation. During this time the candles were lit. Presently the bells ceased, and the organ was struck up, and a procession, neaded by a column of smoke, was seen to headed by a column of smoke, was seen to be advancing along the middle aisle. First came a surpliced cross-bearer, then a number of chorister boys, the leaders clad in red and white, bearing the censer with burning incense, and the 'navicula,' or boat which holds the incense before it is put into the censer with a space. Other surpliced boys and white, bearing the censer with burning incense, and the 'navicula,' or boat which holds the incense before it is put into the censer with a spoon. Other surpliced boys followed, then the men choristers, two of them bearing large processional banners, one white, another red, studded with precious stones. Lastly came the three officiating priests, clad from head to foot in vestments of bright red, embroidered with velvet of deeper color and gold, the form of a cross being conspicuous on the front and back of the senior priest. As they walked they sang a hymn. At the western end of the aisle the processionists turned round and went back to the caltar,' where one of the priests took the censer and appeared diligently to incense the vessels, books, &c. Then began the Communion Service, the whole conduct of which was as dissimilar to our accustomed form, and as approximate to that of the Mass, as possible. Thus, for most of the time the priests stood with their faces to the 'altar' and their backs to the people. Every now and then the reading or chanting stopped while the censer was fed from the 'navicula,' and the incense swung afresh; even the Gospel being incensed before it was read—one priest holding the book while the other swung the censer at it! In the 'Prayer of Consecration' a long pause was made at the words relating to the bread, suggesting the idea of worshiping the changed element, and there were divers other panses and oboisances foreign to the genius of Protestant worship. Suffice it to add, that the administration was accompanied by a low melody on the organ, and that, at the close, a long time was spent by the priests in draining the cups of their re-maining wine. The whole service closed with the chanting of Psalm 150."

The service in the evening, at St. Alban's, Holborn Hill, is thus described: "The chancel, with its rich floral and other decorations, was, of course, the principal object in the interior. The 'altar' was brilliantly lit up with nearly forty lights, on the wall be-hind which was the symbolic cross. The pulpit was draped in white and blue silk with trimmings of crimson and gold. Six emblematic banners were placed in different parts of the chancel. 'Evening Prayer' parts of the chancel. 'Evening Prayer' was sung, and in much the usual style of the Tractarian churches, though with some-what less of the 'intoning' which makes it so unintelligible. The sermon, preached in so unintelligible. The sermon, preached in the surplice, was from Isaiah xi. 2: 'And the Spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him.' After pointing out the prophetic application of these words to our Lord, the preacher ex-tended their scope to his present hearers— many of them he had never seen before, many of them he had never seen before, many he might never see again, but, whoever they were, if baptised Christians, the Spirit rest upon them, and that because of their baptism. In this respect all—rich and poor—were on the same level. The doctrine of baptismal regeneration thus handly appreciated underleid the whole broadly enunciated underlaid the whole discourse, and thus vitiated the doc-trinal references and practical appeals deducted from the subject. As in the morn ing service, above noted, one of the points was the duty of earnest prayer for the reunion of the divided Church, the meaning union of the divided Church, the meaning of which will be readily appreciated. At the close of the sermon, delivered without manuscript, and with much earnestness, the preacher proceeded to the altar, whence he pronounced the benediction. Then came what was in effect a new and unauthorized the reason of the avening. service—the scene of the evening. Sur-pliced choristers and priests formed into an imposing procession. First came the incense bearer, swinging the censer, and accompanied by the holder of the 'navioula,' and followed by a banner-man with one of the large banners, others succeeding with the several banners, containing representathe several panners, containing representa-tions of Joseph and Mary, the holy family, St. Alban, &c., the whole closed by the priests. With slow and measured step they advanced down the centre aisle, singing as they went a 'processional hymn.' The sing-ing of this hymn brought the long-drawn procession to a close, and left the wonder-struck congregation in silence to disperse."

ONE OF THE objects of General Grant's visitto St. Louis was to dispossess a tenant occupying some property belonging to the General, and who refused to give it up, being determined to "fight it out on that line all summer.'
