their address to the office.

The proposed conference in Paris, for preserving the peace of Europe, has miscarried. The conditions on which Austria consented to be a party to it were such as to make it impossible that any agreement could be effected. So the last hope of peace vanishes, and the doors of the temple of Janus are opened. When will they be shut again?

The war which appears about to begin bids fair to be one of tremendous magnitude. The three leading powers engaged in it, Austria, Prussia and Italy, can bring two milions of men into the field. This is not a larger number than were under arms at one time in the civil war in this country. But here they were scattered over enormous territory, and the line separating the contending parties was a couple of thousand miles long. But these huge European hosts will be assembled in a comparatively small territory. The English papers expect that the first hostilities will take place in Schleswig Holstein and Silesia. But Venetia, the Tyrol and Bohemia are pretty sure to be invaded early by Prussia and Italy, and it is hard to see how Bavaria, Saxony, Hanover and the minor states are to be kept free from the ravages of war. The shock will be terrific when it comes, and the only consolation in this is that a war thus begun is likely to be of short duration.

ROUSSEAU.

Whatever renown General Rousseau may have gained during the war has been forever obscured, if not quite effaced, by his flagrant breach of public peace and decency in assaulting an unarmed member of Congress, on account of words spoken in the course of debate in the House. If General Rousseau's provocation had been tenfold greater than it was, his conduct would still have been cowardly, brutal, and altogether unworthy of a high-toned gentleman. The record of the debate which has resulted in this disgraceful scene clearly shows that Gen. Rousseau took the initiative in indulging in personalities, and carried them to an extent which could not be expected to pass with impunity. In a speech, the whole tone of which is passionate and vindictive, he assailed the Speaker and other members of the House in the most violent manner, until he was suddenly brought up by Mr. Grinnell, of Iowa. From this moment forward the position of Gen. Rousseau was a very pitiful one, During Mr. Grinnell's scathing speech, the personality of which can only be justified by the arrogant manner in which the House had been lectured by his opponent, Gen. Rousseau is described as "shifting his position several times in order to get nearer to Mr. Grinnell." Every one was of course prepared for a conflict between the man of war and the man of peace. It was the action of the tiger stealing forward to a position favorable for a fatal spring upon his victim. At last the crisis came, and the gallant Kentuckian sprang from his seat and launched at Mr. Grinnell's head-an explanation! Before his adversary could recover from this first blow, it was followed up by-a declaration! General Rousseau informed Mr. Grinnell that he did not want to have anything more to do with him. Something very analogous to this line of attack may be found in the Pickwick Papers. Four days after this exchange of personalities, General Rousseau attacks Mr. Grinnell, who is a clergyman, and beats him over the head and face with a stick, until it is broken to fragments, accompanying the assault with a torrent of profanity. The matter has been brought before the House and referred to a special Committee, and there is a chance that Congress may assert its dignity and expel the offender. It will be remembered that even the monstrous outrage of "Bully Brooks" upon Mr. Sumner passed unpunished. The special committee reported in favor of his expulsion, but nearly one hundred members endorsed the brutal assault and the motion to expel failed for want of a two-thirds vote. He afterwards resigned and Was unanimously re-elected by his chivalrous constituency. The present House is composed of far better material, and it is to be hoped that it will put the mark of a prompt and stern reprobation upon this gross invasion of parliamentary privilege and public order and decency.

It is greatly to be regretted that any soldier of the Republic should have so disgraced his military record. Whatever his conduct in the field may have been, it will be quite lost sight of under the cloud that must rest upon his name inconnection with this recent outrage. As a soldier, he was only one of a host, so numerous and so renowned that few could hope to rise to pre-eminent fame. As a legislator, he is one of a select few whose words and acts are scanned by a whole nation, which is sure to judge every man by his own works, whether they be good or bad. For whatever service General Rousseau did for his country, his country would gladly honor him; but for such conduct as he has recently displayed in the capital of the nation, his name will receive a stain which it will be hard to wipe out.

A GRAND PROJECT.

It will be remembered that some time since the splendid opera house erected by Mr. Samuel N. Pike, at Cincinnati, was ourned down, causing a loss of nearly one million of dollars. Within a brief period Mr. Pike thought of rebuilding it, but concluded to give way to Mr. Truman B. Handy, a prominent builder of Cincinnati, who proposes to erect an opera house of equal size and beauty to that which has been burned. To further the project and also to unite it with a grand art design, Mr. T. Buchanan Read. the artist, called a meeting of artists and others on Wednesday evening, which was largely attended. The following proposition, introduced by Mr. Read.

was favorably acted upon: "We propose to build a fire-proof Operahouse on the ground floor, with studio building and free gallery attached. This gallery, in which we design to exhibit such works of art as we can collect in this counworks of art as we can collect in this country and from Europe, shall be opened to the public free of charge, from morning till night. Students of all branches of architecture, isculpture, painting and music, shall have the privilege of the use of the gallery with free tuition, the same as in the great galleries of Europe. We will furnish them with easels and the instruments with which precises in connection with this resill to practice; in connection with this we will urnish the student of art with free tickets to anatomical lectures. We intend also to have competent persons to deliver lectures on all branches of art. The public then, not only of this city but of the entire West, will be saved the trouble of wandering from one studio to another, but will have an opportunity to see the best works of foreign and native artists, side by side, in this gallery. Not only do we propose to furnish the artists with commodious studios at a very moderate rent, but we offer them a place for all meritorious work in our gallery, and thus facilitate the sale of their productions. In short, it shall be a temple to foster all the highest arts of civilization. In the evening, when the public visits the Opera-house, they can also have an opportunity to visit the gallery, as it will be open for some time after the play. To achieve this, to give art a home in the West, and add another gem to the crown of the Queen City, we ask for the hearty co-pnerapose to furnish the artists with commodious Queen City, we ask for the hearty co-opera-tion of all, including the Germans, whose love of art is shown in numberless galleries and monuments in their own land, and whose sympathies we count upon in this, their adopted fatherland."

Mr. Handy, the builder, stated that he was ready to proseed with the work if he met with the right kind of encouragement, using his own means liberally. If the project is successful it will be a grand "feather in the cap" of the Queen City of the West, and will reflect high honor on Mr. Read and his coadjutors.

GREAT PICTURE

"Upon this act, sincerely believed to be an act of justice, warranted by the Constitution upon military necessity, I invoke the considerate judgment of mankind, and the gracious favor of Almighty God".

A. LINCOLN. Engraved on Steel by A. H. Ritchie.

Published by Subscription Only. Artist's Proofs (signed), $50; India Proofs, $25; Prints, $10.

Extracts from letters from Cab'net officers to the Artist-structure actors in the great scene represented. "It is a vivio representation of the scene, with portraits of rare fidelity to pature.

"It do not see that improvement is possible. Accept my congratulations on your complete success."

"The work is, in every respect that I am capable of indging, entirely satifactory, and worthy of national admiration, as a fitting commemoration of Mr. Lincoln's great deed. Yours truly.

"Bome feeling of sadness when I saw it, came over "Some feeling of sadness when I saw it, came over me for the great and good man who so interested him-self for you, and whom we all love. Very truly yours. "The individual portraits are very life-like Indeed."

"The individual portraits are very life-like Indeed I have never seen a group of seven or eight figures all of which so truly presented the originals.

"EDWARD BATES."

"The likenesses, the grouping, and the surroundings all seem to me to be every good, and to make an admirable representation of the persons, the place and the occasion. Yours truly.

This is a picture for all time and should be inevery loyal household in the land.

tentlemanly caswassers will wait upon those of our citizens who have not the time to call and examine the engraving NOW ON EXHIBITION.
