There have been for some time whisperings in select circles that the Prince of Wales was not earning the title assigned to one of his ancestors of being "the finest gentleman in Europe." 'Princely courtesy' is a common expression; it expresses a great deal Now, sir, I don't mean to say that the Heir Apparent is not absolutely cour-teous in his private relations: I do not doubt that he is. But I trust it will be permitted to me to say outright what is whispered a good deal, that on some public occasions, and when the prince has come into the society of considerable men, he has shown just a little indifference to the exercise of that 'princely courtesy,' aforesaid. To go no further back, I venture to say that at the Royal Academy dinner there was a degree of impatience of the ceremohis a degree of impartence of the ceremo-nies of the occasion, and an indifference to the dignity of other men there, which was remarked upon very generally. This is not a great matter, it is true, but it has its significance; and I think it quite as well it should not be shirked. We are all ready to trader our utmost homese and dury to the render our utmost homage and duty to the prince; the prince has some duties to us, too—duties easy of fulfilment, but not tri-fling enough to be disregarded." THE GALE ON LAKE ERIE.

Destruction of Property and Loss of Lives.

[Corresp. of the Cincinnati Commercial.]

CLEVELAND, June 18th.-Since yesterday morning this vicinity has been the scene of a storm of great violence. Cold, heavy rain, and a perfect tornado of wind, with temperature more like that of early March than late June, have been the features of the storm.

sels were wrecked last night; one was the schooner Arabian, Captain Bently Haskins, loaded with blockstone, and bound for Port Darlington, Lake Ontario. Obliged by the storm to put back, she reached this point about midnight, but could not make the harbor; and was wrecked opposite the Union Depot, the breakers dashing her to pieces in such a manner that nothing but the spars were to be seen this morning. Nearly every soul on board perished, the only person saved being John Vance, of

into the water and fortunately managed to reach the shore—not, however, until he had been hurled against the piles and badly bruised. He reports that before he took to the water, the Captain and mate had already been lost. The last he saw of the Captain, he was removing his clothes preparatory to leaping into the water. Mrs. McDermott was lashed to to one of the spars, where she could be seen at four o'clock this morning. She was then alive, but evidently much ex-hausted. Her body disappeared soon after-ward. Vance, before leaving the Arabian, had nothing on but a shirt. He was picked up and taken to John O'Neill's ship-chan-diery, on River street, where he was fur-nished with dry clothes and otherwise kindly correct for the the borner to her we the cared for. From there he was taken to the marine hospital.

The Arabian was owned by Captain Haskins.

The schooner Alice Grover, Captain Da-vid D. Gray, bound for Toronto, with three hundred and twenty-five tons of coal, was also obliged to put back to this port, and, like the Arabian, went to pieces in front of the city. All on board were saved, except thecook (a Toronto woman, name unknown). Nothing can be seen of either of the vessels this morning, save a few timbers riding the waves.

It is reported here that the bark George Sherman, and scow Herzynia, have gone to pieces at Collomer, eight miles below here.

CHILE. The greater part of the fortnight has been a time of joy and rejoicing. On the 11th of June we were wired from Coquimbo the June we were wheat from Coquimot the glad tidings that the Spanish squadron had been signally repulsed, and a great victory consequently achieved by our Peruvian brethren. The telegram was not long in being wafted all over the country, and everywhere there was but one feeling, a feeling of deepest joy and heartfelt gratitude that another and the most disastrous defeat of all had been sustained by our common enemy. If those individuals in whose hands are the reins of Government in Madrid are not mad beyond all remedy, we are satisfied that they have at length been taught a lesson, that the South American republics are not to be trifled with; that all aggression and involved demanders on only be indiced and insolent demands can only be indig-nantly resented, and if Spain does not now sue for peace and is not yet inclined for amicable and friendly relations, we shall, however unwilling, be compelled to continue the war, and sweep Spanish navies and commerce out of all waters.

A Model Telegraph Office-One Mile of Wire in One Boom. [From the St. Louis Democrat.]

A few days ago we briefly noticed the re-moval of the Western Union Telegraph Office to Newman's marble building, No. 30 Olive street. We have since visited the new office and been initiated into some of the mysteries as well as miseries connected with the removal of a telegraph office of a large city. The operating room of the new office on the second floor of the building, is not only an elegant apartment of the kind, but displays in a peculiar manner, the taste and efficiency of the chief operator, Mr. William Stoneback, for five years the head of that de partment in this city. The principal peculi-arity in the arrangement of this room, is the fact that, although 26 wires enter the window, and are distributed to 23 tables, not a single wire is anywhere visible save at the point of connection with the instruments used by the operators. This concealment is effected by a series of black walnut panels covering the wires from the switchboard to the ceiling, and below the board to the floor, and by a double floor underneath which the wires are attached, as conveni-ence requires, in every direction. The lower floor is thus covered by insulated wires and where they gross, the floor is cut out so as to permit a double insulation out so as to permit a double insulation. This was difficult work, requiring the eye of a practised artist acquainted with the whole science of the telegraphic profession. After the wires were all arranged, the second floor was laid and the joints filled with while dense the second white lead so as to make it water tight, and thus prevent dampness of any kind from interfering with the wires. This is a very important consideration, and upon the success of this part of the job depended the se-curity of the whole network of wires be-neath. The switch-board itself is a wonder to the unpractised eye. It is three and a quarter feet in width, by four feet in length, and was manufactured in the Company's shop in Cleveland. It is designed to allow one operator to use every one of the twenty-six wires connected with the office, upon any one of the instruments; so that if the operator sitting at the ordinary Cincinnati instrument wishes to communicate with St. Joseph, by turning a switch-key and removing a button up on the board, the wish may be realized. There are also several repeaters in the office, including two of Hicks's patent, by which Cincin-national Ombia combine and the patient of the nati and Omaha can be united and may communicate directly, without the interven-tion of an operator in the St. Louis office. The feat of studying out the wires and joining them properly to the switch-board is re-garded as difficult in a large office, and the brother professionals of Mr. Stoneback are loud in their praises of the manner in which he accomplished it. There are twenty-three tables in use in the office, including those in use for repeaters. Five tables have eight connecting wires, seventeen have five wires, and one table has thirteen wires connecting with the batteries and outside lines. There is over one mile of wire used on the floor and walls, all of which is of the best quality. The arrangement is so complete that in all human probability the wire will last twenty years without the least alteration, exceptRELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

aday and others looked a prince, and the audience manifested its de sire to hear more (it was just ten o'clock) the prince who knew the rule perfectly well sign, and Dr. Stanley abruptly gave losed his manuscript, howed, and sat down

The audience arose with no very favorable impression, as you may judge, of the pre-sent standard of princely courtesy. Prince Alfred is decidedly the favorite with the people of all the royal household. There is a strong liking for his English name and his English looks and manners, which indicates also a considerable impatience and contempt for the extent to which the court has become a German institution, in which one hears now-a-days as much German spoken as English. This feeling found a curious expression on Thursday evening in the House of Commons, apropos of some idle and expensive displays over the insignificant German prince Teck, who is to be made a great man of by his intermarriage with the royal family of England. Mr.

Henlev asked who were the "distinguished oreigners" for whose conveyance across the Channel in special steamers the House was called upon to pay some money. Mr. Layard said it was not usual to give the names of "her Majesty's guests" who were thus conveyed. The feeling in the House was unmistakable, though shown by a merestraw.-London Correspondence Round Table.

Austrian War Correspondents. VIENNA, June 2.—Feldzeugmeister Von Benedek, Commander-in-Chief of the Northern army, has recently addressed an order of the day to his troops, the chief passage of which is the following: "I prohibit, in the most formal and most xpress manner, officers and other persons belonging to the troops, military establish ments or equipages, furnishing articles to the newspapers, either directly or indi-rectly. It is equally contrary to the inte-rests of the army that criticisms, generally ill-founded, or resting upon facts imper-fectly interpreted, should be permitted in newspaper correspondences or articles, that complaints should be made in those publications of any temporary deficiency, as our adversaries may deduce therefrom the nature of the attitude, spirit, equipment, &c., of the army. I shall in no way tolerate either at headquarters, or with other commanders of corps, paid or unpaid newspaper correspondents, either civil or military. I request the commanders to see that no one belonging to the army lends himself to supplying articles destined for the journals, unless he has received a mission to do so from the government, for I shall know how to discover such correspondents by the means in my power, and shall at once dismiss them without any consideration from the army, or in case of necessity will even have then prosecuted by the military courts,"

Anecdote of President Lincoln.

The following anecdote of President Lin-coln is told in a letter from Panama, which appears in the London Athenœum. The writer is referring to the war between Chile and Spain. "I asked the Chilean Admiral (who is an Englishman, and came out with me) why the Chileans did not try to get the greatest of American republics to help them. He thought it was no use trying, because a couple of years ago he was sent to Washngton to get the permission of Government for the purchase and export of two vessels, at that time contraband of war. President Lincoln received him with his usual affability; and while Seward was readling the Chilean state paper, Abraham Lincoln said: "Admiral, I must tell you a little story. When a young man I was very anxious to read a book which belonged to a reighbor of mine. 'Neighbor,' I asked, 'could you lend me this book?' 'Certainly,' be replied; 'you can come here and read it whenever you like.' As the book was rather whenever you like.' As the book was rather a bulky one, I thought this was an odd way centre, unmistakable evidences of the forthof lending it to me; but I let that pass, A I coming phenomenon.

[SECOND DESPATCH.] CLEVELAND, June 18.—It is believed here that the loss of vessels on the lake, in the storm of Sunday night, is immense leets of light vessels were on the way up the lakes and many have been sunk, dismasted or driven ashore. Near this city there are numerous wrecks in addition to those already mentioned.

The Canadian schooner George Suffeld, Captain Titus, loaded with lumber, is scuttled twenty miles east of here and near it are a large bark and the schooner Three Friends ashore and dismasted. The schooler Darien is ashore at Euclid Creek. A large fleet of light vessels is near, ndeavoring to weather the storm. No further reports of lives lost.

A Botanical Wonder.

A Boston journal describes an extraordinary "frost flower" of Russia, which has been produced, it is said, in a temperature of artificial cold, in the following words: This wonderful plant, or rather flower, is found only on the northern boundaries of Siberia, where the snow is eternal. It was discovered in 1863, by Count Swinoskoff, the eminent Russian botanist, who was ennobled by the Czar for his discovery. Bursting from the frozen snow on the first day of the year, it grew to the height of three fee . and lowers on the third day, remains in flower for twenty-four hours, and then dissolves it-self into its original element—stem, leaves and flowers being of the finest snow. The stalk is about one inch in diameter; the leaves, three in number, in the broadest part are an inch and a half in width, and are covered with infinitesimal copes of snow; they grow only on one side of the stalk, to the north, curving gracefully in the same direction.

The flower, when fully expanded, is in shape a perfect star; the petals are three inches in length, half an inch wide in the broadest parts, and tapering sharply to a point. These are also interlaced one with another, in a beautiful manner, forming the most delicate basket of frost-work that the eye ever beheld, for truly this is of frost-work the most wonderful. The day after the birth of the "flower of snow" are to be seen on the extremities thereof, trembling and glittering like diamonds, the seeds of this wonderful flower, about as large as a nin's head. The old botanist says when hirst he beheld this flower, "I was dumb with astonishment; filled with wonder-ment, which gave way to joy the most costatic on beholding this wonderful work of nature, this; remarkable phenomenon of anow: to see this flower springing from the snowy desert-born of its own composite atoms. I touched the stem of one lightly, but it fell at my touch, and a morsel of snow only remained in my hand."

Gathering some of the flowers in snow, in order to preserve the little diamond-like seeds, he hied to St. Petersburg with, to him, the greatest prize of his life-time. All through the year they were kept in snow, and on the first day of the year following the court of St. Petersburg were delighted with the bursting forth of the wonderful "frost flower." Our friends in Boston suc-ceeded in obtaining several of the seeds, and all through the summer and autumn have been imbedded in snow brought at great expense fram the White Mountains and the coast of Labrador; and they now have the most unbounded satisfaction and pleasure in announcing that all signs are favorable to the realization of their, fondest hopes, the production of the "flower of snow." The snow and ice are in a large glass refrigerator, with the thermometer forty-five degrees below zero, and the solid bed of snow has already begun to show lit-banquet which was held meda. Covers were laid for 1,400, and no less than 1,200 gentleman sat down to dinner, and formed one of the most imposing and brilliant banquets ever witnessed in the country. It was a scene bright with prom-ise, indicating the dawn of the "good time coming" for a country so long distracted by internal revolutions and foreign aggress The principal European nations and the United States were well represented—Eng-lishmen, Americans, Germans, French, Italians, &c., all seated at one table, feeling as one man that Peru had at length got a ruler who had done wonders during his brief term of office, and who, if spared, was capable of maintaining the honor of his country inviolate, and of effecting reforms fraught with permanent and lasting good Tischendori's Discovery of the Sinaitic Manuscript of the Bible. A correspondent of the Boston Transcript writes from Leipsic: "The most celebrated scholar in Europe, is, I suppose, generally conceded to be Professor Tischendorf, o Leipsic. I have had occasion to visit him to ascertain some facts connected with his discovery of the Sinaitic manuscript of the Bible, and may be able to gratify the curi osity of your readers with reference to his personal appearance. In the first place, be-cause the thing which struck me the most forcibly, this man, who has for many years been regarded as the greatest living Greek scholar and judge of ancient manuscripts, is not an old man; indeed, he can be hardly above forty-five. His whole manner is fresh and vigorous, his tones earnest and he is as approachable as the simplest child. He is so used to be talked about as the 'eminent Tischendorf that he accepts his position as a matter of course, and so has not a trace of that vanity which, in a man struggling to seem great, is so obnoxious. He is large and solidly built, and has the appearance of being in perfect health. Never did I see a man having less the appearance of being a dispeptic bookworm.

"Tischendorf, after giving me the particu lars which I wanted, related to me in a very pleasant, off-hand, racy way, the story of his recovery of the famous Sinaitic manuscript of the Bible, which is about fifteen hundred years old. He saw some arrange ments of it at the time of his first visit to the Convent at Mount Sinai, in 1844. On his recent visit, when he went simply supplied by the Saxon government with means fo purchasing it; he could not find a trace of it, and when, on the occasion of his third visit, about seven years ago, he went out as the special agent of the Russian Emperor. he was for a long time equally unsuccessful. At last, when he was about to abandon the search, the precious relic was discovered in a corner of the cellar, and was committed to his hands to be taken to Russia. The secre charm exerted in this case was due not so empire is of the Greek faith, the same as "Tischendorf told me that he was hardly able to command himself when he mad this discovery. He went instantly to his room, but that night he could neither lie down nor sleep, and so, to work off his ex-citement, he spent the night in transcribing the whole of one of the epistles. His recep-tion on his return was such a one as princes show to princes. The occasion was one of great solemnity and magnificence at St. Petersburg, for it was recognized, not only there but all over the civilized world, that the discovery of this manuscript is the most important event of the age, looked at in connection with the authenticity of the New Testament and the whole Biblical record. The original was photographed with the utmost care, and copies were sen to the leading libraries of the world. know not how many are in the United States, but to my certain knowledge there ing such as an unexpected increase of businav demand We cannot avoid a brief retrospect in closng our description of the working room of the new telegraph office. Ten years ago the telegraph office in St. Louis was a meagre affair, although at that time telegraphing was in its prime. Five operators' tables were required, where now twenty-three are in use. Then the wires ran to Chicago, to Cincinnati, to St. Genevieve and Jefferson City. The daily receipts averaged about twentyfive dollars, against five hundred dollars now. Instead of employing one hundred and fifty hands for the main office and all the branch offices in the city as now, the office ten years since had barely ten Then two messenger boys could deliver all the messages, now twelve are constantly employed. Then Jefferson City was the Western limit, and St. Genevieve the Southern limit. Now the wire stretches West and North to British Columbia on the Pacific and to the Rio Grande on the South.

Facts and Fanctes.

At the last meeting of the Academy of Science in Paris, a report was read from a Toulouse physician on the subject of a lusus nature recently born, and who died fortunately after a few hours' existence. The creature had no brain, had six fingers on each hand and seven toes on each foot, and had other peculiar phenomena. So far as the first peculiarity is concerned we have known instances which lived for many years. Senator Wright is on his legs again, Congressman Rogers has been on his, nearly every day since Congress met.

General Grant has been invited to about a hundred places for the Fourth of July. He expect to get to more than about half of them. A New York thief secreted eight coats under her hoop-skirt. We suspect that they may have been of the "petti"-kind. A circus rider, named Madame Pant-on, from London, personated Lady Godiva at the late celebration in Coventry. Singularly nappropriate name.

The season is fully commenced at Niagara. Huge tilting hoops, pretty faces, large trunks, beaver hats and diamonds are plenty. Also, a water-fall or so.

Americans are said to be disgusted at the small space allowed them in the Paris Ex-hibition, and think of getting up a show of their own. They might get up a Crystal Palace of their own easily enough if they could get ourgreat "Crystalizer" to go over. He won't be wanted in Richmond before October.

Seven young lady Bachelors of Arts have ust graduated at the Maine Wesleyan Seminary. Curious Bach of graduates. Of course will at once start after the 'Arts of they Bachelors.

It is reported that the Canadian government has demanded the extradition of Sweeney, Spear, O'Niell, Mahan, O'Conner and Meeban, together with other prominent Fenian officers. We hope not. They have already circulated sufficiently, without any extra 'ditions.

At a recent meeting in Pine Bluff county, Arkansas, the ex-rebel General Yell offered resolutions declaring that they wished to be relieved from morbid feelings and insane ideas, that states have no right to secode, and that negroes should be allowed equal rights. The amiable resolves were approved with a General Yell of delight.

A CURIOSITY .--- Some weeks since, John Gyer caught a young squirrel near Holli-day's distillery, which is quite a curiosity in its way. It is as white as the driven snow, and its eyes are of a brilliant pink color. The is doubtless one of Nature's curious freaks, as John says its mother was a common gray squirrel. He has been of-fered $15 for the pet, but thinks that he would sooner have it than that amount of money, for a while at least. -- Western(Mo.)

INTERESTING MISSIONARY MEETING .-The Episcopal Church, in this city, has re-cently added to its operations by trans-planting from Gambier, Ohio, the "Mission House," which has been established there for nearly two years, for the purpose of educating young men specially for the work of Foreign Missions. Through the liberality of Jay Cooke, Esq., and some other friends, a fine building has been purchased, at the corner of Thirty sixth street and Lancaster pike, West Philadelphia, and within a few days the Mission House has commenced its operations. The number of its inmates is, as yet, small, but it is rapidly receiving ac-cessions, and will undoubtedly rival, in time, the famous Mission House at Basil, Switzerland, which has furnished hundreds of missionaries to all parts of the world. Last evening a meeting in the interest of this new institution was held at the Church of the Epiphany, and was largely attended. Bishop Payne, who has recently returned from West Africa, presided, and addresses were made by Bishops Payne, and Lee, of Del., Revs. Dr. Newton and Howe, and Rev. J. 3. Auer, the Principal of the Mission House. The address of the latter gentleman was particularly striking and eloquent, and produced a marked effect, followed by very practical results. The attendance of the clergy was very large, representing most of the leading congregations of the city and vicinity, and one after another rose, in response to Mr. Auer's appeal, and assumed the support of one or more scholarships, as well as the for-nishing of the Mission House. The Church of the Lpiphany led off with two scholar-ships, and was followed by a dozen or more of the other churches, thus securing an im-meniate success for the enterprise. The meeting appeared to excite much interest among the congregation, the services being continued to quite a late hour.

Supposed Suicide of a Citizen of Pitts-burgh. [From the Pittsburgh Chronicle of Jane 21st.]

The community was thrown into a high state of excitement, this morning, by the startling rumor that George B. Jones, Esq., had committed suicide. Various reports had committed suicide. Various reports were circulated, but the facts, so far as they can be obtained at present writing, are as fol-lows; At 5 o'clock this morning Mr. Jones arose as usual, dressed himself and went out, leaving his watch, pocket book and bank book on the bureau in his sleeping apartment. At a later hour his hat and coat were found hanging on a stake midway between the river bank and the margin of the water, immediately below Lock No. 1, on the Mon-ongahela. Nothing more is known, and as yet all efforts made to discover the body have been unsuccessful. The earnest christian character of the missing man is hardly compatible with the idea of suicide, but since his retirement from active business, which occurred in January last, he has at times been subject to periods of melan-choly and depression of spirits. If, as is supposed, he has committed suicide, it must have been during one of these attacks, although he was in unusually good health and spirits last evening. Mr. Jones has been actively identified with the business inte-rests of Pittsburgh for a quarter of a century, of late years occupying the building now used by Camp, Moye & Co., on Water street. Rstiring from active business in January, he invested some capital in the

Whale Coal Company, with which he has since been connected. He resided at the corner of Cliff and Marion streets, in the Eighth Ward. A COUNCILMAN ROBBED.-Mr. F. A. Van
