Indian Affairs.

E. B. Taylor, Superintendent of Indian Affairs for Omaha, under date of September 28th, forwards to the Indian Department a 28th, forwards to the Indian Department a copy of a letter received by him fram Major General W. F. Cloud, special agent ap-pointed by the Governor of Kansas and dated at Omaha on the 21st instant, informrages which had been committed against the citizens of Western Kansas during the past spring and summer, he has been appointed by the Governor of Kansas as spe-cial agent to collect the facts and bring the parties to justice. Gen. Cloud's letter cites several instances where murders had been committed. In some instances the mur-derers were attired in United States Uniforms, and some of them exhibited dis-charges as Pawnee scouts. The Pawnees, Ottoes and Omaha Indians are those who are thought to have been so hostile.

In the month of July a settlement upon White Rock river was visited by the Pawand hostility. Many others have occurred, and the people, in many instances, have been forced to leave their settlements. Such acts of hostility and violations of treaty, General Cloud says, call for justice and in-demnity, and for this purpose the various witnesses and parties, interested propose to meet at Lake Sibley, upon the Republican, about the 15th instant, and proceed with an investigation before an officer of the law.

Major General Cloud respectfully sug-spests the fact that these oftrepeated out-rages have caused a deep feeling of interest and a strong determination on the part of the entire citizenship of the State to obtain justice and safety, inasmuch as the before-mentioned tribes lie under their suspicions and charges it will prove much to their interest to render every possible assistance in securing a full, just and impartial investi-gation, and he does not doubt that a council of chiefs at the time mentioned will lead to the detection of the guilty parties, and re-sult in mutual good to all concerned. In reply to General Cloud's communica-tion, Indian Agent Taylor states that he felt entirely confident that the Pawnee and entirely confident that the Fawnee and Omaha are guilty, and the Ottoes are not above suspicion. He mentions, and it may turn out upon investigation, that they par-ticipated in the disturbances. He suggests that the proposed day of investigation b postponed to such time as would enable him to secure the attendance of one or more of the chiefs of the tribes named.

An ex parte statement, he says, will: An ex parte statement, he says, will al best prove unsatisfactory, and can settle nothing definitely. While the department is ready to redress any wrongs committee by treaty: Indians, upon satisfactory testi-mony, it will resolutely protest against any loss or purfishment for alleged offences where the testimony is vague or uncertain offences of the protect of the poon or taken in such manner as to afford no of portunity for exoneration or denial.

John S. Rarey John S. Rarey died at Cleveland, on Thursday, of palsy. He was born in Frank-lin county, Ohio, in 1825, and at an early age showed a knack in the management of horses, which induced the neighbors to submit their intractable beasts to his powers. His own system, by which he has gained se much celebrity and profit, was worked out by degrees from his observations on equine eccentricities. In 1856 he went to Texas, and found plenty of material to experiment on. When he came back thence to Ohio, he began to give pub-lié exhibitions, and since that time has been pretty nearly continuously before the public. About five years ago he went to Equipe, and surprised everybody by the plancy to his treatment which he made the most incorrigible horses exhibit. In Eng land particularly the most vicious beast most incorrigible norses exhibit. In Eng-land particularly the most vicious beasts that could be found by ransacking the country were brought to him, but in no in-stance did he fail to get at least temporary control over his subjects. The horse Cruiser had been a racing colt of some promise, but before he was brought to Rarey had become so outrageous that scarcely anybody dared go near him. He had killed one or two grooms, and in default of shooting him compacted into the massive one of the Em-peror; and then, for a soldierly and heroic nose, where would you look for a finer one than that which marked among a million, the striking face of Wellington? All that was great in firmness, patience and heroism in the character of Washington is stamped on his prominent and handsome nose.

"Look now at the beautiful insets of the poets—Tasso, Dante, Petrarch, have noses like the gods of immortal verse. Our own like the gods of immortal verse. Our own bards are in no way deficient. Study the portraits of Chaucer, Shakspeare, Milton, Dryden, Pope, and so down to the present laureate, Tennyson. See also Moliere, Vol-taire, Erasmus, Pascal, and Schiller-all men of genius, but how varied! But there is not a greater variety in character than in that feature which the accients call 'honest-and former forcing and which and that feature which the abcients can "honest-amentum facier; and which is all that, and something more. Could Schiller's bust change noses with Voltaire's? Try the ex-periment, and if it proves satisfactory I will a bandon the whole theory, and call science a cheat, and nature an impostor, and Laa cheat, and nature an 'imposite, and have vater a dupe and a donkey. Show me a thief with the nose of Algernon Sydney; show me an empty fop, if there be any yet extant, with the nose of Lord Bacon; or some soft poltroon with the profile of Philip the Bold, or Elliott, the hero of Gibraltar; find me, in a group of costermongers and potboys the noses of Cato and Cicero, Locke and Johnson, Loyola, Titian, Michael An-gelo, or Lord Brougham, and you may have my head for a foot-ball, and do what you like with its special honestamentum."

"doing" the British empire, and patronage and profit in plenty awaited him there. and profit in pienty awaited him there. Several royal, princely and serene per-sonages "were graciously pleased" to see the performance, and he received the deco-ration of some Russian order from the Czar. Since he returned, Rarey has lived mostly on his farm at Groveport, Ohio; a fine place which he had bought and stocked well with the merged of the act. In 16% however which he had bought and stocked well with the proceeds of his art. In 1863, however, he was employed by government to inspect and report upon the horses of the Potomac army, and his report was thought of con-siderable value. He was thirty-eight years of age, and a bachelor.

A Singular Affair-Oil Works Destroyed-What Was It. The Cleveland Herald says: Yesterday, shortly after twelve o'clock, a very singular casualty öccurred on Hill street. On the north side of this street is a ravine, perhaps twenty feet deep, occupied by the oil works of Mr. Delamater, and some others. At the hour nemed the man in cherge of Mr. D'a of Mr. Delamater, and some others. At the hour named the man in charge of Mr. D.'s works heard a rumbling noise, and looking toward the street, saw about fifty feet of the bank moving rapidly out into the ravine and directly upon the works. In an instant a great mass of earth was precipitated with much force against the building, which, be-ing of wood, gave way and was drushed to atoms, with several tanks, some machinery, dcc. The ravine was suddenly filled to the depth of four or five feet with the earth from depth of four or five feet with the earth from the bank, the deposit being evenly, and very much as if it had been "dumped" from wagons. The roadway of Hill street was carried out, and there is now a gulf forty or fifty feet broad, and nearly half as deep, across the street. across the street.

across the street. The singular feature of the affair is that it was not the falling of a steep bank, but a vast mass of earth was forced out horizon-tally by some unknown agency, carried some of it seventy five yards on nearly a level, and deposited as evenly over the bot-ter of the review est it could have here here tom of the ravine as it could have been by hand. There was some water with the slide, but the greater part of the earth which moved was not even wet. There are various theories among these who saw the slide. The most common that it was an earthquake, and the most probable is that it was caused by a large accumulation of water and quicksands under the road, which-finally burst their bounds.

Noted Noses. An anonymous writer in an English ma-gazine says concerning 'noses: "When I had pondered Lavater, and surveyed anti-quities in stone and bronze, frescoes and vases. I looked into the collections of por-traite of distinguished more looking espectraits of distinguished men, looking espe-cially, as we always do, and must look, at the most prominent feature. What wonderthe most prominent feature. What wonder-ful noses they have! There was not such a nose in all Europe, in his time as that worn upon the face of the Emperor Charles V.; and those of Henry IV., Pope Alexander VII., Charles X.I., of Sweden, and Frederick II., of Prussia, were scarcely less remarkable. The florce nose of the youthful Nepoleon, 1
