WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1866. YESTERDAY'S VICTORIES.

ae26-tf

as they have not had for many years. "PROBOGUING" CONGRESS.

Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Louis XI., in the play of that name, Iowa yesterday held their State elecsays: "I like your angry men; you see through them all at once." This remark tions, and each one emphatically condemned President Johnson's policy, and occurred to us this morning when we endorsed the action of Congress. In read the howlings of a Copperhead co-Pennsylvania the struggle was a severe temporary, which, angered at the awful one, and in Philadelphia particularly the verdict of condemnation uttered against Union men had to contend against ex-Andrew Johnson yesterday, by the peotraordinary difficulties. For here the ple of four great States, betrayed what most important Federal offices were in soberer moments it would probably made to serve electioneering purposes, have kept to itself. This treason-monand the Navy Yard was filled with gering sheet, which, except as a sort of workmen who were made to vote on the confidential organ of a treacherous Exe-Democratic ticket. Thus between officecutive, would not carry the slightest holders and office-seekers and subsidized weight with it, let it rave ever so wildly, laborers, it is rather surprising that the urges upon the President the propriety city was not carried by the Johnson of "proroguing" Congress by the summen. But we have a majority of nearly mary process of taking armed possession six thousand on most of our candidates; of the Capitol and throwing our Reprehave re-elected allour Congressmen who sentatives and Senators into prison. It were running, and carried even the Fifth contends that the emergency justifies the district, which has been considered President in "temporarily assuming doubtful. We have lost a State Senator power not expressly granted by the Constitution," and winds up the article with a paragraph which we reproduce verbatim, italics, capitals and all. It says: "At present we will only remark that Thaddeus Stevens and a number of other per sons violently excluding members of Congress from their seats, and acting in violation of the Constitution, cannot be legitimately re-garded as THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES." We repeat that except for the fact that this treasonable stuff has a sort of GOUGH, semi-official character, it would not be worthy of a moment's notice.considering the contemptible source through which it reaches the public eye. As it is, the threatening hint is significant and it becomes important. Andrew Johnson in his disgraceful tour appealed from Congress to the people. The people have responded by sustaining Congress by a vote that is as triumphant a vindication of the popular branch of the Government as it is an emphatic condemnation of the faithless President. Does the latter contemplate resisting the force of this decision, and "temporarily assume power not expressly granted by the Constitution?" Is Andrew Johnson bent upon establishing the dictatorship he has so frequently hinted at? If so, he and his creatures cannot give the loyal people of the country too early a hint of his intentions. leading fellow citizens, and one or two Representatives in the city, but these were for reasons having reference only to the past course of the candidates, and they show no loss of party strength. We have elected our Judiciary and the city and county officers, and carried both branches of City Councils.

The returns from the interior of the State are more gratifying than those from the city. General Geary will probably have from fifteen to twenty thousand majority. We have probably gained a Congressman in the Lebanon and Schuylkill district, and one in the Fayette, Indiana and Westmoreland district, while we have carried also the Adams and Franklin district, which was contested in the present Congress. Both branches of the Legislature will be deeidedly Republican, which secures a true United States Senator in place of the renegade Cowan. All things considered, the victory is a most glorious one. Joined with the corresponding ones in Obio, Indiana, and Iowa, where there are also great Republican gains, they must convince the country and the world that the people are true to the -cause for which the war against the rebellion was fought. Revolutions never go backwards, and the great revolution which abolished slavery and overthrew the Southern oligarchy, cannot be arrested. The war has not been fought in vain, although the President has gone over to the enemy. Republicanism or Radicalism (if people choose to call it so), has triumphed and the country is saved.

AFTER THE ELECTION.

The periodical political convulsions of this country deprive the American people of a large share of that repose that is necessary for the best intellectual and moral development. Partisan feeling, which is never wholly extinct, becomes a real fury during the few weeks that precede an election. The four years of war had an especially exasperating and exciting effect upon the people. The year and a half that have elapsed since hostilities in the field ceased have been scarcely less exciting; for the people who made such sacrifices to preserve the Union have been betrayed, outraged and insulted by the man whom they had trusted, and who, by a fearful calamity and crime, became the head of the Nation. They have felt that it was necessary to resist the President and his policy at the ballot box, and his supporters have been so bitter, so malignant, and so shameless in their abuse of Congress, that the loyal constituencies have been exasperated almost as much as they were when the war was going on.

The contest in this and several other States is now over, and the result is in favor of Congress and against the Pre-sident. He has hardly been in his right The contest in this and several other
