Destruction of the City of Port au Prince —Explosion of an Arsenal—Several Ves-sels Burned at their Wharves.

Boston, Oct. 9.—Letters from Port au Prince, dated September 18, state that the Arsenal, containing a large quantity of gunpowder, took fire and exploded. The gunpowder, took fire and exploded. The fire spread and destroyed the greater part of the town. Several vessels were burned. The loss of life is reported as very heavy. The city of Port au Prince, or as it is sometimes called Port Republican, is the capital of the Republic of Hayti. It is situated on the west coast, at the head of the Port au Prince bay. It is built on ground that rises gradually from the sea and from the bay. The buildings present the appearance of an irregular amphitheatre. The houses are generally of wood and two stories in height, so constructed with a view of better withstanding earthquakes, with which that part of the world is often visited. In 1751 and 1770 the city was nearly destroyed by one of those terrible visitations. However, a few of the houses are built of brick and stone. The principal buildings of note in the town are a Roman Catholic church, a college, lyceum, custom house, mint, and hospital. A considerable trade is carried on between Port au Prince and the United States. Eighty-three vessels. the United States. Eighty-three vessels, flying the United States flag, with cargoes valued at $927,904, entered this port during the year 1857-58. The same vessels returned with cargoes, the estimated value of which was $10,961,836. The town has been often visited by large conflagrations, the principal of which were those of 1784, 1820, 1822 and 1850. The estimated population is 30,000.

GOVERNOR GEARY. His Reception of the News of his Election.

HABBISEURG. Oct. 9th, 1886.—When the returns an nounced the fact of General John W. Geary's election as Governor of Fennsylvania, the "Boys in Blue" formed a procession and proceeded to the Jones House, for the purpose of serenading him. When the band had ceased playing, General Geary, who was loudly called for, appeared and responded to the compliment in the following address:

FELLOW CITIZENS:—As the candidate and representative of the triumphant Union Republican party of Pennsylvania, I reciprocate your congratulations, and return you my sincere thanks for this greeting. It is indeed a noble victory we have schieved. We cannot too fervently and too repeatedly offer thanks to Almighty God for this new evidence of His presence in the midst of our national difficulties. The same hand that guided us through the sufferings and death of a canteless rebellion has ied us safely through a new and even more tremendous peril. The intelligence of the sublime civic sequel to the crowning victory of Gettyburg—the second and final surrender of the vebel sympathizers, will forever and justly settle many disputed questions.

It permanently establishes the fact that the Government of the United States is vested in the American people, and in their representatives in Congress assembled, and not in a corrupt Executiva.

And upon this strong and granite foundation we shall now proceed to fortify against the inroads of time and the attacks of treason, the following truths and covenants.

"That the Government of the people, by the people,

"That the Government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perien from the earth; "I hat crue! shall not perien from the earth; the shall not be restored to ruin the country they nttempted to destroy; "That when our forefathers declared man capable of self government, they rejected the heresy of human slavery, and pledged equal political rights to all their at the Government of the the shall not be restored to ruin the country they attempted to destroy;

"That when our forefathers declared man capable of self government, they rejected the heresy of human slavery, and pledged equal political rights to all their successors;
"That hereafter the citizen represented in the State and Nasilonal Legislatures must be clothed with sae rights of citizenship;
That all the agencies of thet. "Forement, civil and military, must be perseveringly and sterally exercised to protect, vindicate, and if needs be, average our oppressed brothers in the South against the savage persecution to the self of the same and the save of the country and the save of the same and the save of the world, and which stimulates the British Government to day to defend British subjects against oppression and perse ution, however remote and however remorseless; that as we must choose between those who will not yield to the coaquerers' terms in the recent insurgent states and those who have fought steadily for the Government and pray for its protectection, we gladly prefer the men who offered their lives for the say in the save who continue to scorn and trampie upon it."

The defeat of the sympathizers with treason, and the overthrow of an abandoned and ungrateful Executive in Pennsylvania, opens the whole Southern country to the progressive people of the North, with their ten inougand intellectual and elevating agencies, and better than this, it secures to the resideat loyalists, while and black, those natural and civil rights piedged in the Declaration of Independence and secured by the laws of the land.
