EVENING BULLETIN. SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1866.

CONFIDENCE IN THE GOVERNMENT. The despatch published in the columns of the Ledger touching the President's revolutionary designs, has elicited two very important facts. The first, to-wit: the earnest determination to stand by the constituted authorities, which thrilled the great loyal heart of the country, is well understood, and it has been freely discussed. The other point to which we refer is the fact that the American people are not only firm in their determination to stand by their Government, but that they have implicit confidence in its stability. The despatch, which was generally credited, indicated a revolution as decided as that accomplished by Cromwell when he turned Parliament out of doors that effected by Napoleon when took armed possession the Chamber of the Council of Five Hundred; yet it scarcely affected the price of government securities. Gold rose four per cent., and 5-20's and 7-30's declined at about an equal rate. This rise and fall were sufficient to enable operators to make large sums of money: but taken as an indication of want of confidence of the people in the stability of the Government, they are absolutely insignificant. There is nothing that forms so complete an indication of public feeling as the money market. No barometer is more sensitive than the stock lists, and financial storms and governmental calms are as clearly indicated by them as the changes of the atmosphere are noted by the mercury. The assassination of Mr. Lincoln had no perceptible effect upon the prices of Government securities, and the belief that Andrew Johnson contemplated setting himself up as a dictator had less effect upon Government securities than consols would experience in London if the report should reach Lombard street that Louis Napoleon had made a tart speech to the British Minister. Imagine the effect upon English government securities if Queen Victoria should be assassinated, and if her successor should subsequently propound to the law officers of the crown queries touching his

to realize upon their consols.

THE POPULATION OF PHILADEL-PHIA. The National Government takes, or profestes to take, a census of the entire country at the beginning of each decade. The last census was taken in 1860, at a period when the nation was almost hopelessly in the hands of the slave interest; when the feeble Executive who was the estensible head of the Government openly threw himself into the hands of the South, and when he had resigned himself to a scarcely disguised rebel control as the abject tool of the slave power. Secession and the war that followed it had been already determined upon and provided for; but the wily South, bent upon strengthening itself upon all sides, and anticipating all probable contingencies, ex-right to dispense with Parliament. It is scarcely necessary to say that there would be ablue look out for those who should attempt the great manufacturing interests of the North, as the natural results of free institutions and as sources of political power, were belittled. It is at least certain that this belittling process was systematically carried on at the North; whether at the dictation of the South, or as part of the general plan of governmental dirt-eating, we are unable to say; but they hinged one upon the other. In 1860, before the result of the labors of the census-takers were made public, the best judges were of opinion that the population of Philadelphia was fully six hundred thousand souls. There were very many well-established facts to sustain this belief; but the census-takers declared that the men, women and children of the city numbered but 565,529, and from their decision there was no effective appeal. Now we have more faith in the ballot-box as an indicator of the population than we have in such census-takers as were appointed by the Buchanan administration in 1860. Let us see what the voting figures show. The Presidential election of 1860 was a most absorbing contest, as every adult Philadelphian will remember. There were Lincoln, Douglas, Breckinridge, "Bell and Everett" and "Fusion" in the field, and as everybody, from the most devoted truckler to the South on to the extremest Republican, had a candidate to his mind, there was a very full vote polled. This vote amounted in the aggregate to 77,480. In 1866, when an equally full vote was brought out by the exigencies of the times, the aggregate vote in Philadelphia (taking the vote for Governor as a guide) was 103,022. an increase of 25,542 in our voting population within a period of six years, with all the wear and tear and drain of the war to contend with.

Taking these data for a starting point in an estimate of the population of the city, we find that on a full vote both in 1860 and 1866. thirty-three per cent, has been added within six years to the number of persons exercising the right of suffrage. Taking the same ratio of increase in respect to population, and fixing the number of souls in the city in 1860 as 600,000, we find a grand result of 800,000 as the population of the city at the present time. The population of Philadelphia in 1866 is scarcely less than the population of London was at the beginning of the Nineteenth Century. The British metropolis was then eighteen hundred years old. Philadelphia is now one hundred and eightyfour years old. Prospering as it does, who can fix a limit to the growth of the city, in view of its present ratio of increase of popu-

"THE LAST DITCH." Colonel Wm. E. Simms, an ex-member of the U.S. and C.S.A. Congresses, and the author of the famous "last ditch" resolutions which passed the rebel Senate has concluded not to fill the ultimate excavation. Like the man who would not die in spring-time, and upon the whole, and upon mature consideration, would not die at all, so long as he could help it, Colonel Simms has concluded to "weather it out" a little longer, and he has just been marrying a Kentucky heiress, by way of having company in his super-ditchy pilgrimage. Your terrible fire-eater, who declares his willingness to devour his weight in wild-cats, is generally satisfied to take to his heels and get out of the way when the individual aboriginal feline shows her teeth and extends her claws. Colonel Simms is only a type of his class. "Last ditch" talk was cheap and popular in the early days of the rebellion; but when it came to the pinch the Colonel concluded that life with a rich heiress was preferable to a ditchy death without one, and so he embraced both life and the aforesaid heiress. The "last ditch" has been given up for city corner lots and hundred-acre farms, and, like the rest of his tribe, the fierce Colonel and ex-M. C. has proved himself an adept at adopting himself to circumstances. There is a vulgar, but expressive phrase known as "bluff" which fits the Southern disease precisely. The North refused to be intimidated with Colonel Simms' little bluff game of the "last ditch," and that warrior, finding that the run of the cards were most damagingly against him, changed histactics and looked about for such consolation as a rich wife would bring with her. The same stubborn and substantial reasons which brought Colonel Simms to his trumps, will bring his colleagues to a patient consideration of the Constitutional Amendment; and finding that they cannot do as they please they will give up their "last ditch" entrenchment, and scrambling out of the mire. they will embrace the generous offer of the loyal people of the country and resume their places in the Union upon fair and equitable terms. Like the sheep of the historical "Little Bo-peep," it is only necessary to

"Let them alone, And they will come home, Bringing their tails behind 'em."

THE REVOLUTIONARY RUMOR. All attempts to injure the Ledger or its proprietor, on account of the exciting Washington despatch it published on Thursday, will be as futile as they are wicked. So also of the attempts to implicate any member of the prominent banking-house mentioned in connection with it. Mr. Childs, we hear, is having a thorough investigation of the affair, and we hope all the facts will soon be laid before the public. The following article, from the Press of to-day, is heartily endorsed by the business community of Philadelphia, and all acquainted with the parties referred to:

"Whatever may be the opinion of the public as to the authorably of the Washington despatch signed 'A.,' published in the Ledger of Wednesday, we cannot too strongly deplore the effort making to impute a corrupt or speculative motive to George W. Childs, the propriet r ni that paper, who permitted its publication; not less unjust is the attempt to involve a well known banking-bouse in the same accusation. Of Mr. Childs' it tegrity and high social charac er, there can oe no question; and we learn that the first the head of the banking-house referred to knew of the unfortunate despatch, was in New York, from which point he telegraphed to know if it was true. It gives us great pleasure to releat our belief that no corrupt or speculative motive can be laid at the door either of Mr. Childs or his friend. He was simply deceived, as many other newspaper proprietors have been." referred to:

THE AXE AT WORK AT THE MINT. The work of guillotining officials who refuse to desert their principles and follow Andrew Johnson in his treachery, has been commenced at the Mint in this city. Several valuable men have been discharged, and the axe hangs poised over the heads of others. When open Copperheads like Wm. F. Johnston can be found to do the dirty work of the administration, it is no matter aggerated its own strength with a view to of surprise that they ply the axe briskly; increased representation in the event of the but when men like the Hon. William Millfailure of the secession movement; and the ward, who has enjoyed many honors and population of the great Northern cities, and held lucrative posts through the party he is now persecuting, descen'ds to such an employment, we are at a loss whether to feel most pity or disgust for them.

VOTE AS YOU PLEASE. The Age said a few days ago: "Now men are allowed to vote as their judgments dictate." We have heard of several Government officials in this city who exercised this right last Tuesday. Since then they have been informed that their services would be dispensed with. Vote as you please, certainly, and then "walk the plank" for so doing. Who can complain of such exercise of judgment as this? John B. Myers & Co., Auctioneers, Nos. 222 and 224 Market street, will hold during next week the following important sales, viz: On Monday, Guober 18, as 10 o'clock, by catalogue, on four months' credit, see lots of French and Saxony Goods, including a very large and a tractive enering of the celebrated importation of Messs L. & B. THE PRILADELPHIA MUSICAL SAVINGS AND LOAN SOCIETY.

Incorporated by the Legislature April 3d. 1856, are pleased to announce that they have opened a Fifth Series for the distribution of the well-known SCHOMACKER PIANOS.

Is handsome rosewood cases, to subscribers of the Association. To possess one of them, subscribers pay mon-hip four dollars, a sum that, thus paid, very few persons will ever miss. The gross amount thus received from the subscribers in appropriated monthly by the Society for the purchase of a certain number of instruments. Some persons do not want their Pianos at once while others desire to have one-sasoon as possible. The se whose children are too young to I arn music are content to wait. Those, therefore, who propose at once to secure an instrument, pay a monthly premium in addition to the four dollars paid by all, and immediate possession is given to those paying the highest premium; the advantage of these increased premiums resulting to those who are the last to take out their Franos. To rent a good Plano costs one hundred dollars yearly. This Society was organized in order that instead of renting Plancs, persons could pay towards ownership that which otherwise would be wasted as mace rental.

The subscriber to the previous series were so well. rental.

The subscriber to the previous series were so well and so universally satisfied, that it is with increased confidence that the Society now opens the Fifth Series. Books are opened at the OFFICE, 103 CHEST NUT. T. where all intrher information desired will be imparted, and a succimen of the Society's Planos can at all times be seen.
