EVENING BULLETIN.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1866.

THE DOOLITTLE PARTY. Mr. Doolittle and his friends of the Philadelphia August Covention have been so terribly belittled since the President's tour and the fall elections, that it seems like burlesque to call them a party. Here in Pennsylvania, with all the power and patronage of the Federal Government used in threat or reward to procure votes, they only reduced the Republican majority three or four thousand in a total poll of nearly half a million. The Republican strength has really increased in every part of the State except in Philadelphia, where the bread and butter brigade chiefly reside, and in the Luzerne district, where there was an awful amount of illegal voting for the sake of carrying it for the Demo-

The fizzle of the Doolittle Convention is further shown by the recent earnest desire of Mr. Henry J. Raymond, Rev. Henry Ward Beecher and some others of its supporters, to be re-admitted to the Republican fold. These gentlemenhave, August convention, and they now express themselves in favor of supporting Congress, and are advocating the passage of the Constitutional amendment by the Southern States. Their influence is not valuable, for the Republican party has triumphed when it was against them. But their repentance should be accepted and made the best of. They will probably never again commit such a blunder as that they are now regretting.

In the meantime, we hear nothing of Doolittle himself, nor of a score or more of self-styled Republicans who figured in the August Convention. But we do hear of the clandestine and sneaking movements of the poor imbecile Cowan, who betrayed Pennsylvania and his party, for the sake of currying favor with a faithless President. He started from his Western home a day or two ago, on his way to Washington. He stopped in Harrisburg, where, before the election, he was run after and courted by Copperhead politicians and mean office-seekers, because he was regarded as the great dispenser of Executive patronage in Pennsylvania. But on this visit to the State capital, there were none to pay their poor respects to him, and after a gloomy night and morning, he took the train for Washington, as wretched a man as can be found on any railroad train. Fancy the meeting between Andrew Johnson and Edgar Cowan. It was Cowan who urged on the President to resist Congress. It was Cowan who told him he would be sustained by the people of Pennsylvania. It was Cowan to whom the President confided the distribution of offices and promises of office, so that the State should be carried against the Republicans. It was Cowan who was to be re-elected to the Senate, so that he might still lead the Johnson party in that body. Now he goes to Washington, and has to acknowledge himself a miserable, deluded fool; or if he has not the manliness to acknowledge it, Andrew Johnson has sufficient sense to see it, and sufficient pluck to tell him of it. Will any one of the privileged visitors to the White House ever make a report of the first interview of Cowan with Johnson after the Pennsylvania election of 1866? Poor Cowan! He has three months more to sit in the United States Senate, where he will be more an object of ridicule and contempt than ever. Then he will retire to private life forever, lingering, perhaps, a few years in Westmoreland county, an object of curiosity as one of the leaders of the Doolittle party that did little except degrade themselves and gulla President of however, as she has sung in opera several party that elected him.

is strongly Democratic, there is no doubt | peated, in compliance with the general desire that he will be elected, and Americans abroad will have fresh cause to be proud of their country, in the fact that we have a Statesman with the manners of a blackguard for President, and a blackguard with the manners of a gentleman setting up for the trade of Statesman. Morrissey was a pugilist by profession, and a political shoulder-hitter by practice. Having grown rich and respectable, he has quit his old pursuits and he now follows the eminently reputable business of keeping a Farobank. It must be admitted that prize fighting and professional gambling are not calculated to elevate those who follow them; but it must also be said to the credit of the is-to-be Hon. Mr. Morrissey, that while he has practised the trades of bullying and cheating. he has managed to acquire the manners of a gentleman. A notable instance of a contrary influence is the case of a man who has "swung around the circle" of official trade, from Alderman to Member of the Legislature, from Member of the Legislature to Governor, from Governor to Member of Congress and Senator, from Senator to Vice President, and finally from Vice President to President. These trades have hitherto been considered respectable, but we find a man who publicly boasts of having followed them all, and yet who descends to the manners of a coarse boor; while Morrissey, upon the other hand, learns to act the gentleman in spite of adverse antecedents.

One of the most influential writers for the English newspaper press, in speaking of President Johnson, exclaims: 'What a spectacle is this for such a country to present to the world—the representative of the power and civilization of the United States, their Executive, the successor of so many historic names, hiccupping braggadocies and impiety before the people of the towns and cities!"

When the news of the political apotheosis of a prize-fighter and gambler reaches England, the writer in question will have material afforded him for a fresh outburst of astonishment and commiseration.

RATHER MUDDLED. A correspondent of a New York co-temporary recently telegraphed as follows, from Buffalo:

"The Commercial of this city has intelli-gence that the Fenians had made an organized attempt to cross the Niagara River at Lewistown last Saturday evening, to burn the village of Lewistown, and blow up Brock's Monument; but the attempt was prevented by information that the Cana dians were ready to receive them. The whole thing is doubtless a canard."

The writer of this paragraph must himself be a Fenian, judging from the Hibernian confusion of his rather tardily, discovered that they com- geography. Crossing to Lewistown mitted a serious blunder in uniting with for the purpose of blowing up the copperheads and un-repentant or Brock's Monument, which is at Queenshalf-repentant rebels that composed the half-repentant rebels that composed the town, on Canadian soil, is good, and the destruction of Lewistown, which is on American soil, for the purpose of spiting John Bull, is still better (hibernically considered). There must have been some "poteen" lying around loose when that despatch was prepared.

The Bateman Concerts.

On Monday evening next the first concert of Mr. Bateman's troupe in Philadelphia, will be given at the Musical Fund Hall. Mme. Parepa, the prima donna, is unquestionably one of the greatest of living singers. Brignoli, the favorite tenor, has come back from his European triumphs greatly improved. Ferranti, Fortuna, Rosa, Mills and Hatton are all first class artists, and the combination is one that has not been equaled in a concert troupe for years. The sale of seats has already begun at Trumpler's music store, and the concerts are sure to be attended by large and fashionable audiences.

Italian Opera.

The audience at the Academy of Music last evening was not as large as it ought to have been considering the attraction; but so much elegant dressing, such wonders of millinery, such miracles of coiffure, such luxury of opera-cloaks, such exuberance of ornament of every description, have hardly ever before been seen in a theatre. It is worth a good deal simply to look at a Phila. delphia opera audience, in the present state of the fashions.

The opera was Fra Diavolo, as adapted to the Italian stage in London, by Auber, a few years ago, with some new airs, and recitative substituted for the spoken dialogue of the original. Miss Kellogg was the "Zerlina," which she personates with a good deal of vivacity, but with not the real abandon required. She sings the music, however, with elegance and grace, and altogether represents the part better probably than it can be done by any artist now in the country. Mme. Testa's "Lady Rockburg" was excellent in every respect. She is an admirable comic actress, and her singing was better than we have ever had in the same part. Mazzoleni's voice and figure are both somewhat too heavy for such a part as "Fra Diavolo;" but there is a magnetism about his style which secures his success even in spite of natural defects. He was frequently and warmly applauded. Ronconi was irresistibly funny as "Lord Rockburg." His make-up was most ludicrous; his by-play was incessant and ever-varying, and his singing and acting throughout were all that could be desired. It is worth a long journey to see such an artist as him in such a part. The "Beppo" and "Giacomo" of Dubreul and Fossati were both extremely good, and the chorus and orchestra were excellent.

A new American artist, Mile. Hauck, makes her debut at the Academy this evening. It can hardly be considered a debut, the United States who had betrayed the times at Mr. Gerome's private theatre, in New York, with extraordinary success. In voice and style she is said to resemble Adelina Patti, and those most competent to judge predict for her a career like that of that exnation for Congress in one of the city | ning the great hit of the season, the comic districts in New York. As the district opera of Crispino e la Comare, will be reof those who witnessed it on Monday, Tomerrow afternoon Il Trovatore, with the admirable cast of Tuesday evening, including the great dramatic singer, Mme. Carmen Poch, as "Leonora."

On Wednesday evening next a grand opera of Meyerbeer's that has never been played in Philadelphia, will be produced: L'Etoile du Nord. It ranks among the great works of the composer of Robert and Les Huguenots, and its production in Philadelphia will be an event of the highest interest.

John B. Myers & Co., Auctioneers, Nos. 232 and 234 Market street, will hold on to-morrow (Friday) Oct 18, a large special sale of Foreign and Domestic Dry Goods, by catalogue, on four months' credit, including 5,00 dozen linen tambric Handker, chieß, of a favorite make; full lines Figglish Hoslery, Gloves, Gents' Furnishing Goods 330 dozen Travellor Shirts 50 cases Gingham Umbrellas, Also, Scaris, 7 les, Shirt Fronts, Suspenders, Hoop Skirks, Sewings, dcc., arranged on third floor, commencing at 10 o'clock, Full assortment of Fall Styles Carpetings, Table Oil Cloths, 20 bales Hend and Tow Yarn, dcc, arranged on first floor, to be sold at 11 o'clock.
