BUSINESS NOTICES.

A "STUNNING" STYLE.

A London dandy has invented
Something of common styles ahead;
His linen fronts are ornamented
With flourishes worked in gold and thread.
Now, those who pine in Cupid's fetters
Might thus, to prove their constant flame,
Each on his bosom wear the letters
Of his bewitching fair one's name!
But those for true good taste who call,
Should view the styles of Tower Hall.

Our stock of Men's, Youths' and Boys' Clothing is the fullest and most complete in Philadelphia. Prices are lower and nearer those of old times than for several years.

EVENING BULLETIN.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1866.

OVER THE RIVER.

The political contest now going on in New Jersey is more than usually animated and interesting, and it is particularly gratifying to find that the Republican party is well organized and working in the most active and encouraging manner. There is every reason to believe that the State will be carried by them by a larger majority than it was a year ago. The Democrats, on the other hand, are in trouble in a couple of Congressional districts usually carried by them, and the dissatisfaction about Congressional candidates may affect the rest of their ticket unfavorably.

The First and Second Districts will be carried by the Republicans by increased majorities. The Third will go against us, but by a diminished majority. The Fourth District is now represented by the mountebank copperhead, John Rogers, and he is the regular nominee of the party at this election. But there has been much dissatisfaction among some of them, and yesterday an independent Democratic Convention of the district met at Orange and nominated John Huyler, of Bergen, who accepts the nomination. This makes a serious division in the Johnson-Copperhead ranks, and there is every reason to expect the election of John Hill, the Republican candidate, who is a gentleman that will do honor to the State in Congress. In the Fifth District, now represented by General Wright, there is also trouble among the Democracy. Wright's friends are indignant that he has not been nominated for re-election, and they claim that Gilchrist was nominated by unfair means. Some of them demand that the Convention be reassembled, and declare that the district will be lost if this is not done. The Republican candidate is Hon. Geo. Halsey, who is one of the ablest men and most successful politicians in the State. He was removed from the office of revenue collector of the district by Andrew Johnson, which is a fact in his favor. If the discord among the Democracy in the Fourth and Fifth districts continues, they will be carried by the Republicans, and the delegation in Congress will stand four Republicans to one Democrat. The present delegation consists of two Republicans and three Democrats. There is every reason to believe that both branches of the Legislature will be Republican also.

The election will take place on Tuesday, the 6th of November, and until that time there will be meetings all over the State. The Republican meetings are marked with extraordinary enthusiasm. Senator Cattell is among the most efficient of the speakers, and is doing noble and valuable service. We confidently expect that our friends over the river will administer to Andrew Johnson as severe a rebuke as he got lately from Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Iowa.

PREPARED FOR ANYTHING.

There is a striking peculiarity about the spoken and written utterances of every Johnson orator, and of every newspaper organ of the Johnson faction. We have no reference to mendacity, which is, perhaps, the most marked feature of the speeches and writings of the oracles spoken of; but we refer to a development of a conviction that they do not know what to look for next, as, judging from the past, they have a right to expect anything, however monstrous, in the future. The foolish and brutal harangue of the 22d of February was only the forerunner of worse brutality and sillier twaddle in the speeches made on the pilgrimage to Chicago; and the wholesale sweep of Federal officers who were not believers in "my policy" was only a natural sequel to the formation and vindication of that policy. Thus when it is urged that Mr. Johnson contemplates inaugurating bloody work in Baltimore, by interfering with the election there, his advocates remember New Orleans, and instead of indignantly defending him against such an imputation, they cast about them for excuses, and urge that Governor Swann is right, that the Police Commissioners are all wrong, and that if President Johnson does interfere, it will only serve the Unionists of Maryland as they deserve to be treated. Talk about the probability of the President refusing to recognize the lawful Congress of the United States, and of his acknowledging a bogus and treasonable organization, and the oracles of his party, remembering his foolish and treasonable speeches about an "illegal body hanging on the verge of the Government," are silenced. When not silent they make a pretence of doubting the carrying out of the threat; but they get an anchor out to the windward, and prepare themselves for the worst by reasoning that in the event of Mr. Johnson's pursuing such a course, the extremity would justify it. If it was publicly proclaimed that Andrew Johnson contemplated seizing all the powers of the Government and designed "running the machine" himself, his friends would not dare deny it, for he has already usurped the functions of Congress, defied the Senate of the United States, and talked complacently of the readiness with which he might make himself a dictator. They not only do not deny the existence of any such intention, but they seek for excuses for it and thus prepare themselves for the worst. If it were to be declared that Andrew Johnson would violently break up the regular course of justice and instal Lynch Law in its place, how could his friends deny it in the face of the fact that in a public speech he asked a roaring mob why they did not hang Charles Sumner and Thad. Stevens?

Andrew Johnson has no party except, first: his army of mercenaries who would swear black was white, and throw up their hats for anything, including riot and bloodshed, "swinging around the circle," mob law, dictatorships, bogus Congresses and blackguardism and foolery generally, so that thereby they could save their bread and butter. These precious patriots form one wing of the army of Andrew Johnson; the other wing is composed of men who stand by him because he is potent for mischief and for no other reason whatever. As his followers are ready to back him in everything, and as there seems to be no reasonable bounds to what he might do, they are careful not to commit themselves against any future presidential measures, let them be ever so wicked and outrageous.

COWAN.

The Senator from Pennsylvania, whose career is now happily so near its close, has been snubbed by Andrew Johnson, President of the United States. This is the unkindest cut that Cowan could have received, for nothing but Presidential favor and friendship gave him the slightest importance. The President, whose lack of discernment of character seems to be growing along with his other weaknesses, foolishly suffered himself to be advised and guided by Cowan in all Pennsylvania matters. Cowan got the distribution of the offices in this city and State, and he made the President believe that Clymer would be elected, and that the Radical Congressmen would be defeated in all the close districts. Instead of this, Clymer was defeated, and there was a clear gain of two Radical Congressmen, while a third district, contested in the present Congress, also elected a Radical. The President is at once disappointed and indignant, and he puts the blame upon Cowan for the loss of the State. It is quite true that Cowan never had any commanding influence in this State, and he has no influence now, except to damage any cause he may espouse. But the President ought to have been able to see through such a shallow character sooner, and it is cruel to turn the cold shoulder on him now. Poor Cowan!

MR. W. HEPWORTH DIXON, of the London Athenæum, was entertained last evening, at an elegant banquet, given at the Continental, under the auspices of some of the members of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. As the vindicator of Penn from the aspersions of Lord Macaulay, Mr. Dixon is held in high estimation by the Society, and the réunion of last evening afforded its members an opportunity of expressing the feelings they entertain. About fifty gentlemen sat down, Mayor McMichael presiding. Speeches were made by various gentlemen, and that of Mr. Dixon, who appreciates our country and takes a great interest in our affairs, was particularly gratifying. The company did not disperse till a late hour. Mr. Dixon returns immediately to England.
