The next proposition made was substan-tially as follows: That the old Police Com-The next proposition inside was substan-tially as follows: That the old Police Com-missioners appoint one Conservative judge of the three to be appointed at each of the polls; that these judges receive the votes of those who present themselves, and who are found to be upon the several registers; that two sets of ballot boxes be used, in one of which are to be deposited the votes ac-cepted, and in the other the rejected votes. The first part of this proposition was simply in accordance with the pledge made by Mr. Alexander before Governor Swann whils the charges against the commission-ers were being investigated. It was made then as a concession by the party in power to the Conservatives with the view of preserving peace; and the commissioners after the registration law was carried into effect. If at the first election held under the constitution, when the registry law did not exist, then these judges were required to administer this oath to persons offering to vote; if at any subsequent elections, when these persons may have been regis-tered, then the judges were merely autho-rized to administer this oath or not in their discretion; but in both cases if the persons be required by the judges to take this oath and decline to do so, it is declared that they ball not be allowed to yote. Again, if it be clearly proved before the judges of the election that a person whose name is registered as a qualified voter and offers to vote, has been in armed hostility to the United States, &c., unless relieved from this disqualification as provided for in the constitution, the prohibition of that instrument above quoted (that no such person "shall ever be entitled to vote at any election to be held in this State") ap-plies to him, and I am of opinion that in his case the judges of the election are not bound to receive the vote. See also the fourth section of first article. In another class of cases where the cause of dismulification arises after the projects.

section of first article. In another class of cases where the cause of disqualification arises after the registra-tion of the voter, as if he be subsequently convicted of an infamous crime and not pardoned, or if he become a lunatic or a non-resident of the State since his registra-tion as a voter, upon proof of which, before the judges of the election, they are not bound to allow such person to vote. Although there is an explicit statement in the constitution and in the registry law that none shall vote unless their names ap-pear on the register of qualified voters, yet in neither is it stated that the fact of persons being so registered shall be conclusive evi-

3 pear on the register of qualified voters, yet 3 in neither is it stated that the fact of persons 4 being so registered shall be conclusive evi-4 dence of their right to vote. On the con-4 trary, the character given to this evidence 9 in the language before quoted strongly 9 support the views here presented. 9 There is nothing that I am aware of in the 9 opinion of the judges of the Court of Ap-9 peals on the registry cases inconsistent with 1 these views. The conclusiveness of the ef-1 fect of registration of persons as qualified 1 voters on their rights, when afterwards of 1 fering to vote, was not a question before the 1 court, nor did they decide it. Their decision 1 was on the exclusive and discretionary. 1 powers of the officers of registration to re-1 gister, or not to register the names of per-1 sons a qualified voters, and deciding that 1 the officers of registration had such powers, 1 they held that mandamus could not issue to 1 compel them to insert the name of the peti-1 tioner upon the list of qualified voters. The 1 decision of the court was in relation to facts 1 taking place before and at the time of the 1 registration; what we are now considering 1 arise subsequent to the registration.
