The Sufferers by the Floods in France. The suffering in portions of France, by the recent terrible inundations, is terrible, and contributions for the relief of those who have lost all they possessed, are solicited. The good people of Philadelphia will, we hope, respond liberally to the appeal from the French Consul at this city, which we copy from the Ledger:

French Consulate, Philadelphia, Nov. 21, 1866. To the Editor of the Ledger: You have been kind enough in several numbers of your respected journal, and particularly in that of the 17th instant, to call the attention of your numerous readers to the disasters that have recently betallen France.

The ruin caused by inundations has, indeed, been immense, and yet, unfortunately, that has not been the only affliction.

Not long previous a vast invasion of locusts devastated a great many districts of Algiers, destroying not only the riches of the present the e, but the sources of production for many years to come.

I hastened to make known these facts to certain of my compatitots, and also to some American citizens, who formed themselves into a committee, under my direction, to receive the contributions destined to alleviate, as much as possible, the sufferings consequent upon those disasters.

Two Kentuckians Kill Each Other-A Faithless Wife Causes the Bloody Frans-

[From the Louisville Journal.] A correspondent of Fort Craig, New Mexico, whose letter was written on the 1st Mexico, whose letter was written on the lst inst., sends us the particulars of a most shocking affair that took place between two officers of the 125th U. S. C. Troops, a regiment which was recruited in Kentucky in the spring of 1865, and which was sent out to the Territory of New Mexico, last summer where it is now doing doty. One of mer, where it is now doing duty. One of the parties, First Lieutenant John F. War-ner, had been for some time suspicious that improper intimacy existed between his wife—who has been with him nearly ever wife—who has been with him nearly ever since he joined the regiment—and another First Lieutenant (Frederick Haselhurst.) He finally became so confirmed in his suspicions, and dissatisfied, that he peremptorily turned his wife away and instituted proceedings for a divorce. This was a little over two weeks ago, at Ft. Selden, New Mexico. His wife thus left to herself, appealed to the generosity of the officers at the post for a sum of money sufficient to the post for a sum of money sufficient to cover the expenses of a journey back to Kentucky. She was a native of Lexington, Kentucky, where, if we are not mistaken, she has a parent or parents. She has friends also in Louisville, and intended to make that her place of abode. She succeeded in that her place et aboue. She succeeded in raising the necessary amount of funds and left Fort Selden about two weeks ago on her way, by coach, for the States, shaking off the dust of her feet against "Johnny," and breathing parting regrets for the more favored "Fred."

No sooner had she left, however, than frequent letters began to pass between herself and Haselhurst. Warner, stung with self and Haselhurst. Warner, stung with jealousy, was on the qui vive, and Tuesday, October 23, just before the departure of the Northern mail, succeeded in getting access to the mail-bag, in which he found three letters directed to "Mrs. Julia Warner." These he opened and found to be very glowing, love-breathing missives, written by Lieut. Fred. Haselhurst. Shortly after, it being nearly dinner time, he (Warner) stationed himself at a point near which the officers usually passed on their way to the mess-room, armed with three or four officers usually passed on their way to the officers usually passed on their way to the mess-room, armed with three or four well-loaded pistols and a bowie-knife. It was not long before Haselhurst came along, when Warner confronted him with a drawn revolver and demanded—"What do you write letters to my wife for?" and thereupon immediately discharged his revolver, the charge taking effect in Haselhurst's body just helow the lower ribs. The wound was helplessly fatal, but Haselhurst, not at once disabled, retreated into the quarters of the commanding officer of the post, which were near at hand, pursued by Warner, who continued to fire at him, though it seems without effect. Two or three shots were thus fired inside the room, when Haselhurst sprang upon Warner and succeeded in wresting away one of his revolvers. Thus armed, Haselhurst took deliberate aim and shot Warner directly through the heart as the latter was standing outside the door preparing another pistol for firing. Warner staggered forward, drew his bowie knife, stuck it two or three times in the side of the adobe building, and fell dead upon the stort. mentiened the arrival of Hon. John A. Dix in Paris. The boiler used at one of the mines belonging to the Allentown Company exploded, bursting in two pieces and tearing every-thing around it. Several persons were in-jured, among them Mr. Milton Weaver, of this place, who had a leg broken. He was brought to town last evening. We saw him this morning and learned from him a few more particulars. He was going to dinner, and when within ten or twelve steps from the engine house heard a discharge like a gun, immediately feeling a brick thrown against his breast, which knocked him down senseless. Taking It Easy.—Says the Leavenworth Times—A fire broke out about 11 o'clock last night, in the poor-house buildings on Shawnee street, west of Broadway. The buildings were unoccupied, and had been declared a nuisance at the last meeting of the City Council. Its destruction is certainly no oss to the community."

Locomotive Blown Up-Engineer and Fireman Killed, and Conductor Badly Injured.

|From the Cleveland Leader of Wednesday.]
A frightful catastrophe occurred at Newburgh, on the Mahoning Branch of the Atlantic and Great Western Railway, this morning between eight and nine o'clock. Engine No. 213, while standing upon the track, exploded her boiler, instantly killing F. A. Gardner, engineer, and fr. A. Gardner, engineer, and — Green, freman. The conductor, F. J. Borden, had his leg broken, and is in a critical condition. The cause of the explosion is unknown. A few moments before it occurred the engineer remarked to the results of the condition. gineer remarked to the conductor that some gineer remarked to the conductor that some person had been tampering with his gauges, and immediately after mounted to the top of the cab to adjust some portion of the machinery. While there the explosion took place, and he was blown several yards, his head being severed from his body. The fireman was also thrown some distance, and was fearfully manufed. The engine was blown to man was also thrown some distance, and was fearfully mangled. A Desperate Gang of Robbers-A Brave Girl. [From the Nashville Despatch, Nov. 20.] From the Nashville Despatch, Nov. 20.]

From passengers by the Memphis train of Sunday evening we learn that on Friday night a band of seven or eight men raided upon McLeod's station, about twenty miles beyond Bowling Green, on the Memphis branch road, and broke into and plundered the store of Mr. Watson. The robbers forced their way through the back door of the house, which opened into a sleeping apart. house, which opened into a sleeping apartment. On entering the room the villains discovered two men lying upon a bed and fired two shots at them, but without effect. Two fine double-barreled shot-guns that stood in the room were seized by the raiders stood in the room were seized by the raiders and broken in pieces. They then went to the front store, rified the money-drawer of sixten dollars (all it contained) and helped themselves to large quantities of groceries. In retracing their way from the store, a young lady of the house was grasped by one of the scoundrels and threatened with instant death if she did not tell them where they could find the balance of Watson's money. The undaunted girl, fast in the grip of the ruffian and a pistol at her head, steadily refused to disclose the secret. The brutish robber was so abashed by her firm deportment that he relinquished his hold and passed on through the alarmed household. But had he known that his fair captive held in her dress sleeve two or three hundred dollars of the coveted money, she would in all probability have been fearfully dealt with.

The dastardly rogues were white men disguised as negroes and while in the The dastardly rognes were white men disguised as negroes, and while in the house they called each other by the names and attempted to imitate the peculiarities of certain well known negroes living in that neighborhood; a stratagem to deceive the inmates of the store, and bring trouble upon the innocent negroes. But it failed entirely.

As soon as possible after the marauders left the house an alarm was raised, and several men of the neighborhood armed themveral men of the neighborhood armed themselves and started in pursuit. The whole surrounding country was patrolled, but without success. The next night, (Saturday) however, the robbers went back to try their hands again. On approaching the station they were met by a volley of a dozen or more shots, and they retreated ingloriously.

It is stated that the villainous party, while ransacking the store and residence of Mr. Watson, not only insulted the lady members of his family, but fired a number of shots among them. That the balls failed to produce wounds or death was not owing to the care of the amiable assailants. Their expedition was murderous as well as pilfering.

pilfering. A Nice Question.

The question of the right of colored citizens to vote is now before the Courts of New York, and will soon arise in argument before those of New Jersey. The case in this city comes up under the Registry Law, and the applicant or plaintiff is so white that the delicate taint, which in the microscope eyes of Shylock's justice marks him out for political excommunication, is so vague as to be indistinguishable. But he has it notwithstanding; his "wavy hair," somewhat crisp. we presume, is proof of it, for capillaries have for many a year been considered by the best Southern and Northern authories as good evidence of blood in buying, selling or kidnapping. A hair's breadth is the measure of the offence;

otherwise he is as white as most voters, and quite as intelligent and respectable as a good many, for he has the manhood, the sense, and the means to forward his cause and contest his rights. A Board of Registers of the Eighteenth Ward, with a delicate sense of blood, discovered, after some pains, that this gentleman was a negro, and thereupon, as in conscience bound, inflicted upon him a deprivation of political rights.

The suit pending is utterly irrespective of the property qualification in the colored franchise of this State, the plaintiff claiming that he has the same right to vote as any other man as white or blook or bind. that he has the same right to vote as any other man as white or black as himself. His counsel, Mr. Gilbert, now appeals from the decision of the Registrars, and insists that, before again suffering punishment, his client shall be tried and convicted by a jury, who shall once for all determine if massible who shall once for all determine if possible, what infinitessimal viciousness runs in his blood, and what filaments of crime cling about him in every wavy hair of his head.
Whether the judge will agree with him, or or decide the matter "on inspection," as he claims to do, is of course only in the breast of that officer; but we do not wonder that the proposition excited smiling. The only wonder is that a provision of the State Constitution, inflicting a penalty without defining or pointing out the means of determining the offence, should not long ago have sunk into desuctude amid inextinguished learning the state of the state guishable laughter. + N. Y. Tribune.

SOUTHERN THEOLOGICAL SEMINABIES. At the second day's session of the Southern Presbyterian General Assembly, at Mem-phis, Tenn., the report of the Columbia (S. C.) Theological Seminary was read. It appears that this seminary had, in 1864, before the surrender, a fund of $262,000, which, by investment in rebel bonds, has dwindled to $95,500. Rev. Henry J. Vandyke, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is recommended for the chair of Didactic Polemic Theology, and various methods of raising funds were suggested. The report of the Union Theological Seminary, in Virginia, was read: The funds of this institution amount to $98,847 51 in Virginia and North Carolina bonds. It has labored under embarrassments similar to hat at Columbia, S. C.

DREADFUL ACCIDENT.-Last evening, as the freight train on the Lebigh Valley Rall-road was leaving the Bethlehers freight station, by some mishap the locomotive and several cars were run off the track, which is on very even ground. The concussion was so great on the rear cars, that the brakes man on one of the cars fell headlong down on the track and several cars must have passed over him. He was taken up a lifeless corpse and placed in the freight house. Coroner Samuel Brunner was notified and at once proceeded to the spot A jury was empanneled and the foregoing facts were obtained from witnesses present. The un-fortunate man was Clemence Goodyear, a single man, from South Easton.—Allentown

LAKE ERIE FISHERIES.—The Lake Erie fisheries, along the peninsula, are realizing handsome profits. The Clevelaud Heratd learns from the Port Clinton Union that the steamer Clinton carries to Sandusky the yield of twenty-two pounds, amounting to from ten to fifteen tons, daily, except on Fridays. The fishing season ends on the 25th of this month, at which time the pounds
