LATER NEWS FROM HAVANA.

Maximilian's Abdication. The Tribune and the World publish the following despatch:

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 24.-Maximilian has taken the decisive step of abdication. The rupture between himself and the French Government being complete, he has left Mexico in the hands of Bazaine and Castelnau, the latter of whom is understood to have full authority from Napoleon to supersede the Marshal himself, if necessary. The late Emperor left Vera Cruz on Thursday, and may be expected at Havana on his way to Europe on Monday

The consternation of the Mexicans at finding the question of their future remitted absolutely to negotiations between France and the United States is general, and confined to no party.

I have the best authority for stating that all the preparations for embarking the French troops have been summarily sus-

From Washington.

[Special Despatch to the Bulletin.] WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 .- Notwithstanding the denials made to my despatch by ignorant correspondents, I assert that the President has indicated his willingness to forego his own convictions in regard to the issues which divide himself and Congress; provided Congress will meet him in a pro-

The more moderate Republicans are disposed to meet the President half-way for sake of harmony, but the extreme are opposed to conceding anything.

In yielding, the President does not accept the Constitutional Amendment, but favors the adoption of some other plan of adjustment which all can stand on.

From Fortress Mouroe and Norfolk. FORTRESS MONBOE, Nov. 25 .- The Methodist Episcopal Conference was opened this morning, at Norfolk, with the usual religious exercises. Bishop Pearce in the chair.

Over 120 members were present, and a fashionable audience thronged the church during the entire proceedings.

The unfinished business being called up, Bishop Early took the chair. Dr. Leroy Lee, of Norfolk, moved that the question of the change of the name of the church, during the discussion of which, yesterday, the conference adjourned, be laid on the table, which was adopted.

which was adopted.

The question of sending a committee to attend the Baltimore conference for the purpose of forming a new conference out of the territory occupied by the Virginia and Baltimore conferences respectively, was then taken up and adopted. Bishop Early appointed the following ministers of the conference on that committee: D. E. Edwards, J. C. Granberry, J. W. Langhorne, W. W. Bennet and W. D. Rowzie.

The attention of the conference was afterwards occupied in the transaction of unimportant business, which, having been con-cluded, Rev. W. A. Smith moved to take up the subject previously laid on the table, the change of the name of the church recommended by the general conference at its last session in New Orleans, from the Methodist Episcopal church South, to the Methodist Episcopal church. The motion was adopted and a lengthy and animated discussion enand a lengthy and animated discussion ensued, many of the prominent members of the conference strenuously opposing any change to be made, and others as strenuously favoring the proposed measure. Dr. W. A. Smith, a member of the General Conference when the separation took place, now arose and addressed the Conference. He said he had been a member of the convention which, in 1844, inaugurated the measures out of which grew the regular organization, called the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and that he was a member of that large committee, consisting of thirty-two members. who reported upon the name for the adopwho reported upon the name for the adoption by the Church. Unimportant as a name may be, it had received due share of the attention of the Conference, but that he then opposed it because it seemed to him as violating the idiom of our language and illegal, and therefore altogether wrong. They were never intended to be a sectional church, and the idea entertained by many of the members of the Conference that the word South was appended to distinguish them particularly as a church, was per-nicious and false. The same idea had been advanced at the General Conference in 1844, but it was entirely exploded. Slavery was but the occasion and not the cause of the separation. The occasion has been put away, but the cause still remains intact, and must so remain until the church ceases to be a political organization.

Rev. George W. Langhorne approved of the change, and was unwilling to give up the name, associated as it is with the recollections of those who "sleep the sleep of death."

Dr. Leroy McLee, pastor of the Granby street Church, Norfolk, arose and bitterly opposed the change recommended by the last General Conference. In the course of his remarks he entered into a length recapitulation of the doings of the General Conference of 1844, the action of the mother Church, and spoke of the impossibility of

He South was affixed to the name of the church simply to define that they represented Methodism south of their line, while northern Methodism represented Methodism north of that line. That they were no more sectional North, and that there was nothing political in the word South. was nothing political in the word South. He contended that a change of the name now would be a concession of the principles of the glorious platform upon which they planted themselves in 1844. He did not planted themselves in 1844. He did not want the everlasting brawlers from abroad, amongst them, but would like to have started a Missionary Society to send the Gospel among such men in the North, for they needed it. He continued in this spirit for some length, and humorously asked the members of the Conference if they wished to go where the people talked through their nostrils and said "keow" for cow.

He was succeeded by Rev. John D. Blackwell, who spoke in favor of the change of the name, and was followed by the Rev. Samuel T. Mooreman and Rev. John E. Edwards, the former opposing and the latter strongly advocating the change. Other strongly advocating the change. Other members arose and discussed the question, during the height of which the Conference adjourned without voting. It will be taken up on Monday and finally settled.

MERCANTILE BENEFICIAL ASSOCIATION. -It is scarcely necessary to remind our readers of the celebration of the public an. niversary of this most excellent and popular institution, to take place to-morrow evening at the Academy of Music, for we learn that the demand for tickets of admission has already been so great as to insure a very full house. The annual meetings of this benevolent society have heretofore invariably been a perfect success, and if we may judge from the distinguished character of the eloquent gentlemen who have generously consented to address the audience, and the deep interest manifested by our mercantile community, we cannot doubt that the occasion will be one of peculiar interest and instruction.

LATER FROM WASHINGTON.

The President's Message and the Department Reports.

From Washington. Washington, Nov. 26.—The preparation of the President's message, and the reports of the Heads of Departments, and the Chiefs of Bureaus, is in a state of greater forwardness than heretofore, previous to the session of Congress. Some of them are partly in print, and the others nearly ready for the printer. The probability is that the press will be furnished with copies in advance of delivery.

Mr. West, the popular chief clerk of the Treasury Department, has sufficiently recovered from his late severe sickness to re-
