FRENCH PATENTS.—Commissioner Gene ral Beckwith, in a letter to the Secretary of State, dated Nov. 7, says he addressed an inquiry to the Imperial Commission some time since concerning the legal right of foreigners holding French patents for their inventions to exhibit and afterwards sell the foreign made products thus patented in France, without a forfeiture of the French patent. The Imperial Commissioner referred the inquiry to the Minister of Com-merce, and was informed that in the opinion of the Government such exhibition and sale, if duly authorized by the Minister of Commerce, would not operate a forfeiture of the patent, but that the decision of questions touching such forfeitures belonged to the courts of law. Mr. Beckwith incloses courts of law. Mr. Debawith incloses copies of the correspondence, duplicates of which he has sent to Mr. Derby, at New York, for the information of patentees whom it may concern.

THE Methodist, in this week's issue, an nounces that it has made arrangements with the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher to furwith the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher to furnish a sermon every fortnight, the first of the series to appear early in December. The sermons will be expressly reported for the Methodist, revised by Mr. Beecher himself, and protected by copy-right. The same paper is also making arrangements for the publication, during the year 1867, of sermons by the leading Methodist pulpit orators, both in America and in Europe. The Methodist has long been in the first rank of the religious journals of our country, and this new has long been in the first rank of the religious journals of our country, and this new feature cannot fail to add largely to the number of its readers and friends.—N. Blot has commenced his second course in Cincinnati. He issues stringent regulations that each pupil shall bring a note book to take down the recipes, and a "tea" spoon, if any, to taste the dishes with. It is said that this last restriction was forced upon him in consequence of the coming of the Cincinnati women with spoons of portentous calibre to sit at his feet, and their endeavors to realise what is chastely called a "square meal" from the trophics of his art. BLOT has commenced his second course in

The Star Shower in Boston. Though rather late in the day, the followapg, from the Boston Gazette's "Old Apple Man," may prove interesting, or at least amusing:

BUBBAU OF POMONA, corner of Franklin street, Nov. 23, '66.—Dear Gazette: I saw the shower of '33; indeed it is hard to find any one over twenty who did not see it, and who has not a distinct recollection as to how with some friends, holding a sort of scientific wake upon the phenomenon for two nights, as the exact time was in doubt; and as Professor Loomis said that looking out of a window wouldn't establish anything like a scientific test, I had the scuttle opened on the top of our house, which each one of us visited now and then, taking a glass each time in order to arrive at more definite contime in order to arrive at more definite conclusions. Save a movement in O'Rian, the second night, who fell down the attic stairs, there was little perceptible beyond an occasional fizzle of a reckless nebulite, that broke o'er the celestial blue, until, toward the last of the watch, by a frequent use of the glass, more stars were visible, according to the number of inhabitants, than in 1833. Indeed, all the stars seemed to be out and in a state of great excitement, oscillating in a very singular manner, and the twinkling of some of them was offensively suggestive. There was a general waltz among the juvenile stars, and as I looked into the grave eyes of one of the serious, I heard an unmistakable biccup. mistakable hiccup.

That the shower actually occurred, there That the shower actually occurred, there is no doubt, and those who said they did'nt see it, are to be pitied, as it argues an intellectual obfuscation not to be pardoned. Most of such probably looked out of their windows, contrary to the direction of Prof. Loomis, and did'nt see anything, Had they looked through the side of the house, aided by a powerful glass, the result would doubtless have been different. The question were less have been different. The question was asked, in the midst of our excitement, Why less have been different. The question was asked, in the midst of our excitement, Why thephenomenonwas like Bunker-Hill monument? The suswer was: because there is so much up stares about it. I noted this down as a coruscation. Those gentlemen who scaled Flag-shiff hill after midsight, caught heavenly views, to say nothing of the colds they caught, against which the light of a cigar was a poor protection, and the early oligrims to Bellingham and Powderhorn, in a neighboring city, whom the fire-bells called out, did what the King of France did with his fifty thousand men, marched up the hill and then marched back again, satisfied that the savaes had sold them. Imagination, we know, has much power over us when we are eagerly seeking a thing, and there were lookers at Bay View, who, when a goed-natured neighbor cent up a rocket or two, were ready to swear that they had seen the whole stellar display. I shall never forget my friend, Mr. Stearns, in his watch-tower up there in City Hall, far above the world, looking for the approach of Manager Leo and his vagrant company of stars, and he has the thanks of the community for not striking the bells, though every body was awake expecting to hear them. I see by the cable news that the English people, being further east than them. I see by the cable news that the English people, being further east than ours, had a view of it, showing how ready the English always are to take advantage of us. I shouldn't be surprised to hear that Mr. Seward had instructed Mr. Adams to order somebody to inquire about it.

This subject is so important that I do not like to let it mingle with other themes. Therefore I subscribe myself Destructive Fire at Goldsboro', N. C. On Saturday morning, the large and comnodious building known as Granger's Ho-

irst discovered rushing from the top of the building, at every point of the house, which s conclusive evidence that it was the work of an incendiary, and that the plan was well

All efforts to save the furniture in the up-per rooms, proved fruitless, and it all fell a prey to the devouring element. On the lower floors much of the furniture was saved, but in a damaged condition. The fire extended its ravages on the street running west, and destroyed all the buildings contiguous to the Hotel. The long row of buildings, running north from the hotel occupied as a barber shop and in which the Postoffice was kept, was 725 also destroyed and the flames were only arrested by tearing down the double houses used as a guard house.

Personal.

Minister Bigelow, in an official letter dated Paris, Nov. 6, says that Col. W. A. Coyle, of the United States Army, and Judge-Advocate of the State of Kentucky, who was shot through the lungs at the battle of Pag Bidgs in March 1862 died for the of Pea Ridge, in March, 1862, died from the effects of his wounds, in that city, on the 3d inst., in the 25th year of his age. He came thither two weeks previous, for medi-cal advice. cal advice.

An Interesting Murder Trial,—Addison Parkinson, a highly respected citizen of Jasper county, Ind., was recently tried and acquitted of the murder of a young man named Guthridge (his own cousin), who had seduced his daughter, a lovely girl of fifteen. When the verdict was rendered the prisoner was cordially greeted by hundreds of people that had crowded into the court house, and the scene that ensued is described as most affecting.

THE ALABANA CLAIM.—Nothing definite has, as yet, been received from the British government in relation to the claims for indemnity growing out of the depredations committed on American commerce by the Alabama and other rebel privateers. The correspondence is still in progress between the two governments. The present British Ministry, however, shows a better disposition than the former one in the consideration of the important subject.

NATIONAL bank notes were issued to the amount of $1,134,010, making the total in circulation $298,199,069. Fractional currency was received from the printing beaureau in the sum of $494,500. Shipped to assistant treasurers and national banks, $421,615; redeemed, $185,200. The Government holds recurities as follows: For circullating notes, $340.338,650; for deposits of public moneys, 379,742,600.

TOBACCO.—A Kentucky paper says that "the heaviest and best tobacco crop grown in Kentucky for the past seven years is the crop of the present season, now just beginning to move to market." CHANGE OF CAPITAL.—It is believed in Kentucky that the commission, appointed for the purpose by the legislature, will report in favor of the removal of the State capital to Louisville.
