XXXIXth CONGRESS-Second Session. [CLOSE OF YESTERDAY'S PROCREDINGS.]

SENATE.—The District of Columbia Suffrage bill was under consideration.

Mr. Frelinghuysen (N. J.) replied to the argument of Mr. Cowan that this was an ex argument of Mr. Cowan that this was an expost facto law in the punishment it provided for rebels. There was a difference between absolute rights and constitutional rights. A man's life could not be taken away without conviction for crime, but a legislature could take away the right to vote at twenty-one years and fix it at thirty. The Senate would not vote for this bill as a punishment. It would give the right to vote to a reformed rebel. The nation had a right to insist upon loyalty as a qualification for suffrage. The people of the South would be forgiven as soon as they exhibited loyalty; but the people of the loyal States were inexorably in earnest in their determination to eradicate slavery and disloyalty. Whenever the South acquiesced in terms embracing these conditions, the whole difficulty would be at an end. This law was not expost facto for there was a law in the statute book since 1790, declaring all who had given aid and comfort to the enemy to be civilly dead.
Practically, said Mr. Frelinhuysen, this is a white man's government. I would like to see the men who could point to this fact asserted in the Constitution. If the black race was inferior, it was no reason why it should be oppressed by the superior race. It was asserted that by giving the colored race the right to vote we were inducing distasteful associations between the races. This was but the echo of an old prejudice. There was no connection between the two. It did not follow that a man was socially your equal because he enjoyed with you the right to

Mr. F. contended for universal suffrage, and opposed the pending amendment. If spffrage who qualified, there would be an inducement to keep the negro from learning to read and write, so as to keep him from the ballot. If it was universal, the people would be driven to the education of the negro, to make him an intelligent voter.

The debate was continued by Messrs.
Wilson, Hendricks, Lane and Sumner.

Thequestion was then taken on Mr. Dixon's amendment, to add a proviso that no person not now entitled to vote shall be allowed to vote hereafter unless he shall be able to read The yeas and nays were demanded.

Mr. Donnelly (Minn.) introduced a bill to reorganize the Department of Agriculture.
Ordered to be printed, and referred to the Committee on Agriculture. The bill provides that within twenty days after its passage the President shall, with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint a Commissioner and Assistant Commissioner of the Agricultural Department. It also provides for a Bureau of Mines and Mining, subject to the control of the Commissioner. It regulates the purchase of seeds and plants in foreign countries, and provides that one-third of all such purchase shall be distributed equally by the members of Congress, and that the Commissioner shall annually report to Congress the amount so purchased and distributed. On motion of Mr. Pike, the President was directed to communicate all official documents, letters, papers, &c., in his possession relative to the trial, by military commission and conviction of Crawford, Keys and others for the murder of E.Smith and others; also, in regard to their transfer to Fort Delaware and subsequent release.

On motion of Mr. Taylor (Tenn.), the Secretary of War was directed to furnish any information in the War Department in reference to the New Orleans riot of the 30th of July last, including any telegraphic despatches sent or received; also, reports and testimony taken before a military commistestimony taken before a military commission in the matter.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, Mr. Cullom (III.) in the chair, and took up as the special order the Deficiency bill.

Mr. Washburne (Ill.) moved to strike out a paragraph appropriating $170,587 for deficiency for work done or being done by the corporation of Washington city in front of and across government property. He said he was not disposed to vote money for this city.

The paragraph was stricken out—yeas 56, nays 47.

Mr. Schofield (Pa.) moved to strike out the paragraph appropriating $250,000 for the State Department, and requested information about it. He had heard it said that it was to induce Surratt to come to this country and receive his pardon, as there were no pardon agencies established in Europe. Laughter. Mr. Stevens said that he had himself been indisposed at first to recommend that item to the Appropriation Committee. He had therefore requested Mr. Seward, who is a young man, [laughter] to call upon him and give him the necessary information, and Mr. Seward had done so. He would say to gentlemen that they had talked about anything except business, and Mr. Seward had convinced him that the appropriation was necessary and proper. It comprised various matters. The government had large suits pending in Europe, principally in England and France, to recover property which had belonged to the confederate government, and these suits were very expensive. The aggregate amount involved was over twenty millions, and it was supposed that a very large proportion of that amount would be recovered. The expenses in tracking Surratt all over Europe were large, and the State Department have to pay the additional expenses of the gov-ernment vessel that was conveying Surratt to this country. Then the State Depart-ment paid the expenses of the reception of Queen Emma in this country, and of her return to Honolulu. It also had to pay the expenses of the recent expedition to Mexico.

Mr. Scofield expressed himself satisfied motion. The Committee arese and reported the bill to the House. The amendment made on Mr. Washburne's motion in Committee, striking out an appropriation of $170,000 for work in public improvement of Washington City was taken up, and gave rise to considerable discussion. The amendment was agreed to and the appropriation was struck out. The bill was then passed. It makes among other appropriations the following—Public printing $80,000; paper for same $450,000; facilitating communication between the Atlantic and Pacific States by electrical telegraph $40,000; contingent expenses of foreign intercourse $250,000. The bill also increases the pay of the additional police force fif v per cent., from the first of November, 1866. The House then went into Committee of the Whole, Mr. Ashley (Ohio) in the chair, on the President's Annual Message.

Mr. Wentworth (Ill.) was entitled to the floor, but being temporarily absent, Mr. Ward (N. Y.) addressed the Com-

Mr. Stevens's Bill. [To the United States Associated Press.]

The following is the preamble of Mr. Stevens's bill, which will probably become a law: A bill to establish civil government in North Carolina, and enable it to resume its former relations as one of the constituents of the American Union. Whereas, on the 20th day of May, 1861, the citizens of North Carolina, of the United States of America, did rebel against the Government of the United States, and on the said 20th day of May and thereafter, did violently set aside and destroy the organized constitutional Government of the said State, and did engage with others in armed hostility and warfare, to maintain said action; and Whereas, after the lapse of more than four years, the United States, by force of arms, having succeeded in quelling said rebellion, and disarming such insurgent citizens, did find in said district, formerly comprising the State of North Carolina, no government organized, or officers qualified according to the requirements to the Constitution of the United States, and Whereas, the President of the United States, by virtue of his power as Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy, under the operation of martial law, for the purpose of preserving peace and order and of relieving his subtrilinate miliorder and of relieving his subordinate military officers from executing details of civil regulations in the several and widely separated localities in the district, did under forms and rules by him prescribed authorize certain citizens of the District to assume the execution of said purpose of preserving and order under the prescribed. serving peace and order under the protec-tion and sanction of the military authority, and whereas, it is the duty of the Congress of the United States to preerve the said District and the loyal citizens thereof as one of the United States, and by law cause to be organized therein a government republican in form, based upon the civil and law-making power of the nation; therefore, &c. Arrival of the Cuba. [To the New York Associated Press.] SANDY Hook, Dec. 13, 2.10 P. M.—The Cuba, from Liverpool, with dates of the 21, is passing the point and will arrive at New York city about 4 o'clock this afternoon.

These wheels are designed for Planos, Bedsteads, & We claim that they give to Planos a greatly increased force of sound, without detracting from the harmony and melody of the instrument, rendering every note more distinct to the ear. This is so apparent that they are now being applied by many to these valuable musical instruments. Dr. Valentine Mott, previous to his death, pronounced the Glass Castor Wheels an It valuable invention for bedfast invalids, who are gualded against the damp floors after undergoing the process of cleaning, or where dampness is produced from any other cause. Aside from this, Housekeeper are relieved from the dread of having their carpets corton, as frequently happens from those now in use offer caused by a rust, which adheres with glue-liketenscity. No such annoyance can possibly proceed from the Glass Castor Wheels, as we all know that tensicity. No such annoyance can possibly proceed from the Glass Castor Wheels, as we all know that in those of from, and the latter, though smoothly finished edges to the Glass Wheels, such as we often fine in those of from, and the latter, though smoothly finished, will scon rust, from the dampness of the atmosphere, if nothing eise, producing roughness on the suriace, or edge, while the former will always maintain the smoothness of glass, just as they are finished.

By sleeping upon glass wheels you retain all the electricity you had in your body-on retiring, and you get up in the morning feeling as fresh and active as a young mas. Glass being a non-conductor, the electricity gained while in bed cannot pass off. Ask your decreases are not caused from the want of electricity.
