TOLOGH OF YESVERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.] SENATE.—Mr. Wade (Ohio) moved that the Senate take up the bill to admit Ne-

bracks. Mr. Poland (Vt.) said that he had given notice of his intention to call up the Bank-ruptcy bill on Monday last. He had given way for the Suffrage bill. It was now proposed to take up a bill of later date than the Bankruptcy bill, and proceed to its consideration. He hoped the Bankruptcy bill would be proceeded with.

Mr. Wade regarded the Nebraska bill as of more importance than the Bankrupt bill. It involved the right of the people of Nebraska to form a State government and be represented on this floor.

Mr. Sumner said he was against the Nebrasks bill and in favor of the Bankrupt bill. The act of yesterday should not be forgotten. The Senate had voted itself in favor of human rights, and now a proposition was before it to set aside that verdict, and create a white man's government, such as the Senators on the other side had said themselves in favor of. He hoped the Senate would not imitate the example of antiquity and unweave to-day the web woven

Mr. Wade said it was not in order to discues a bill on a question of reference, but as Mr. Sumner had discussed it, and attempted to prejudice the case, he (Mr. Wade) felt compelled to say a few words.

Mr. Sumner had said there was no merit in the bill to admit Nebraska. He had undertaken to pass upon the question in advance, and to judge for the absolute Senate. In his (Mr. Sumner's) judgment it was a bill of no merit. If he (Mr. Sumner) was the sole judge he. (Mr. Wade) would have to give it up at once, and come down very quick; but Mr. Sumner was not the judge to decide for this body. Mr. Sumner had covered. elde for this body. Mr. Sumner had quoted semething about the ancients. There was another ancient sage of whom it was said that he strained at a gnat and swallowed a camel. That was what Mr. Sumner now proposed. As to the objection Mr. Sumner made to the admission of Colorado, he (Mr. Wade) could see no point in that, Mr. Sumner had voted for a constitutional amendment upon which to admit rebe States, and there was nothing in that amend ment about a colored suffrage. The Senate had admitted the rebel State of Tennessee, and now refused admission to a loyal territory as a State. Mr. Sumner—Did I vote for it?

Mr. Wade—Yes, you did.

Mr. Sumner-Oh, no. Mr. Wade-But you voted for the principle in which Tennessee was admitted.

Mr. Wade continued his remarks on the pending motion, advocating the admission of Nebraska.

Mr. Poland (Vt.) said his motion to take up the Bankrupt bill did not imply opposition to the other bill. He only thought it more important that the Bankrupt bill should be considered. Mr. Hendricks (Ind.) thought the veto of the Colorado bill ought to be considered be-fore any new proposition of that kind was introduced. It had been before the Senate a long time, and should have been considered at the last session.

Mr. Wade said the reason why the Colorado veto was not taken up last session was that he feared he had not strength enough on his side to get it through; he was not ready then to make the battle.

Mr. Buckalew (Pa.) spoke of the impropriety of delaying action on a veto so long. He thought it was a bad precedent. The Senate ought to take these subjects up in

Mr. Yates (Ill.) spoke in favor of the admission of Nebraska. She had adopted a State constitution, and asked to become one of the States of the Union. She had sent two Republican Senators here, and he did not think the objections of Mr. Sumner were good.

Mr. Saulsbury (Del.), in a few remarks, said he supposed if Nebraska had sent Democratic Senators here the argument for their admission would not be very strong, Mr. Sumner resumed the floor. Alldding to his own vote on the constitutional amendment, he asked Mr. Wade if he considered himself bound to admit the rebel States if they refused suffrage to the freedmen.

Mr. Wade said he considered himself bound to admit the rebel States if they ratified the constitutional amendment within a reasonable time. He thought that time had almost elapsed now, but if they would adopt that amendment he would feel bound to wote for their admission.

Mr. Sumner—Even with the word white in their Constitutions.

Mr; Wade—Without regard to that. Mr. Sumner-Without regard to the rights of the freedmen.

Mr. Wade—I am as much in favor of colored suffrage as anybody, but I will stand by my agreement. Mr. Sumner said he would stand by his agreement, too, but he had made no such agreement. Certain politicians and editors had undertaken to foist such an agreement upon the people, but had not succeeded. A proposition of that kind had been reported from the Reconstruction Committee, but had never been considered by the Senate. Mr. Doolittle (Wis.) said a resolution had been reported from the Reconstruction Committee to admit the rebel States on their adoption, separately, of the amendments, and its ratification by three-fourths of the States, but this resolution had been tabled in the House on the call of the year and Mr. Sumner retorted that he would yote for the admission of no State that recognized distinction in civil or political rights on ac-

The question on taking up the bill to admit Nebraska was put.

The Chair announced the vote—yeas 21, nays 11. So the bill was taken up and read.

It is in the usual language of such measures and declares Nebraska to have formed a and declares Nebraska to have formed a State government, and to be admitted as a State in the Union, with equal rights.

Mr. Brown (Mo.) opposed an amendment in the same language as that opposed by Mr. Sumner, and rejected in the Senate last session when the bill was up, viz: A proviso that this act shall take effect only upon the fundamental condition of the abolition of all distinction in civil and political rights on all distinction in civil and political rights on account of color, and the ratification of this condition by the people of Nebraska.

Mr. Wade took the floor in advocacy of the bill. He premised his speech with some remarks on reconstruction. He considered himself bound to admit the Southern States upon the acceptance and ratification of the Constitutional amendment. If, however, they should fail to accept that amendment, he was then for applying the strong arm of the military power to them, and reorganizing all the rebel governments on the basis of Mr. Kirkwood (Iowa) inquired what Mr. Wade would consider a reasonable time.

Mr. Wade replied that he would consider that reasonable time exhausted when the southern Legislatures had met and either refused to ratify the amendment or failed to consider it.

Mr. Wade spoke on the population and resources of Nebraska. The bureau of statistics showed the population to be 83,530 in April last, and at the last election a vote of 9,136 was cast. He repeated the arguments advanced by the friends of the bill when lest before the Sonote in Tally.

last before the Senate in July.

Mr. Sherman (Ohio) said he had voted for this bill when it was last before the Senate. He felt bound to vote for the admission of Nebraska whenever she complied with the conditions of the enabling act. She had complied with these conditions, and the Senate was bound in honor to admit her.
The proposition of Mr. Brown embraced additional conditions, which it was not just to impose after having, two years ago, refused to make them. On the subject of the reconstruction of the Southern States, Mr. Sherman said he voted for the constitutional amendment with the distinct understanding that they were to be the terms upon which the South was to be restored to the Union. No one could avoid the irresistible logic that, if they accepted these amendments, Congress was bound to admit their Senators and Representatives.

Mr. Sherman then resumed the immediate subject before the Senate, dwelling upon the statistics of Nebraska, to show that she had population sufficient for a State govern-

Mr. Brown (Mo.) took the floor in advocapy of his amendment. He said Congress had, in the admission of Missouri, exacted a condition that she should expunge from her constitution a provision excluding free persons of color from emigrating into that State. All he proposed to Nebraska now was a condition that she should not deny the rights of citizenship to her own citizens, Mr. Hendricks (Ind.) took the floor in opposition to the bill and pending amendment, taking the ground that the majority in favor

State government at the election in Nebraska was very small, &c. Mr. Grimes moved to suspend further consideration of the pending bill, to take up the resolution for the holiday recess.

The resolution was taken up.

After discussion the yeas and nays were demanded on the resolution to adjourn from December 30th to January 3d.

The resolution was adopted-yeas 27, Mr. Hendricks resumed the floor on the Nebraska bill, but yielded to Mr. Brown, and on whose motion it was ordered that when the Senate adjourn to-day, it be to meet on Monday next.
