connoisseurs this evening: The sale will be continued to-morrow and Friday evenings. Bierstadt's "Yo-Semite Valley."

The main ornament of the gallery of the Crosby Opera House Association, in Chestnut street, above Thirteenth, is Bierstadt's great landscape called "The Yo-Semite Valley." It constitutes the second prize offered by the Association, and is valued at twenty thousand dollars. The readers of the journals of the day are aware that the distribution takes place on the 21st prox.; that the first prize is the Chicago Opera House, and that there are innumerable other prizes, some of which are of great value. "The Yo-Semite Valley" naturally attracts a large share of attention, and by many of Mr. Bierstadt's admirers is considered his greatest work-superior to his "Storm in the Rocky Mountains." The artist spent nearly two years in California and its vicinity, and his studies probably show greater ability than those of any painter who has attempted to depict the scenery of the Pacific slope. He was for nearly a year engaged in placing on canvas the "Yo-Semite," and the work is worthy of the toil. The scene is a curved gorge, whose walls are peaks of sand stone, nearly two thousand feet in height. At the bottom runs the river, not dashing and foaming, but with a placid flow, which allows of a clear reflection of the trees on it banks, as well as the projections of the rocky walls which tower towards the skies The atmosphere of the picture is very peculiar. It includes a soft haze, almost golden, and after gazing at the picture for some time, the scene seems to glimmer and waver through the yeil of misty air. Above all shine the clouds, white and blue, crowning the glory of earth's loveliness with the splendor of the heavens, As we gaze, the beauty of the picture grows on us, and even of the most utilitarian "Peter Bell," one could scarcely say, as he looked:

"The bright blue sky did never melt Into his heart; he never felt The witchery of the soft blue sky.' The "Yo-Semite" will be on exhibition at the gallery in this city until the time of the drawing in January.

Death of Edward C. Dale.

The announcement of the sudden death of Mr. Edward C. Dale will be received by his numerous friends and acquaintances with profound regret. Mr. Dale has occupied so many positions of honor and trust in Philadelphia, and discharged the duties of all with such sterling integrity and marked ability that his decease may well be regarded as inflicting a public loss upon the community. Mr. Dale has at different periods served his fellow-citizens as Director of the Mint of the United States, Inspector of the County Prison, Prothonotary of the District Court, President of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore R. R. Co., President of the Germantown and Norristown R. R. Co., and Vice-President of the Franklin Fire Insurance Company and in each he has maintained the enviable position of a genial and high-minded gentleman, in the truest sense of the word. His sudden decease leaves a vacuum in a large circle of friends, who have highly prized his many virtues and his place in their affections and esteem will not easily be filled. Mr. Dale was the son of Commodore Richard Dale,

SEVERAL WAREHOUSES BURNED. A Man Supposed to Have Perished in the Flames.

This morning, about half-past five o'clock, a fire broke out on the first floor of a three storied brick structure, No. 227 North Broad street. The building occupied a front of 60 feet on Broad street, and extended through to Lybrand street, a distance of 100 feet. With the exception of a portion of the second floor, the whole structure was occupied by Messrs. Allen & Davis, dealers in malt and hops. The flames spread rapidly, and the whole establishment was completely gutted. Messrs. Allen & Davis had a large stock on hand. Their loss will probably reach $35,-000, upon which there is an insurance of $20,000 in New York, New England and Philadelphia Companies, A portion of the second floor of No. 227 was occupied by James Ralston, a carpet weaver. His stock was heavy, being valued at $8,000. But a small portion was saved and that was in a damaged condition. The loss is about $6,000 and is partly insured. Mr. Ralston occupied the back part of the second floor as a sleeping apartment. It was his usual habit to get up about seven o'clock and get his breakfast at a neighboring restaurant. Up to ten o'clock this merning he had not been seen in the vicinity, and the supposition is that he was burned to death.

The fire extended to No. 229 adjoining, at the North. This was also a three-storied brick building. It was nearly new, and was 20 feet front by 100 in depth. It was occupied by George L. Dervale, and was completely filled with flour, grain and pro-duce. Mr. Dervale was doing a very ex-tensive business. This building and contents were destroyed. The loss is estimated at $25.000.

at $25,000. Adjoining on the south, No. 226 was a three-story brick building 16 by 100 feet. This was occupied by S. W. Heal, who was engaged in distilling whisky. He had on hand a large quantity of mash and also a considerable quantity of whisky. The structure was completely wrecked and the contents were mostly destroyed. The loss is estimated at $10,000. Insured for $6,000 in New York and New Hayen Com-panies. The building is owned by a Mr. panies. The building is owned by a Mr. Davis, of New York, and is partly insured. No. 223 Broad street is occupied by Bush-on & Hahs, grain merchants. It is a large double building. The roof at the rear portion was damaged, and the stock suffered somewhat by water. North of the burning structures was the extensive lumber yard of John A, Davis, This was in imminent danger, and several times piles of boards took fire from sparks Through the exertions of the firemen the flames were prevented from extending to

The fire burned for upwards of two hours, and caused a bright light. There was a pretty strong wind prevailing at the time, and some of the sparks were carried a considerable distance. Several houses in the neighborhood took fire, but were not seriously damaged.

The lager beer saloon of G. Antoine, Nos. 1221 and 1223 Callowhill street, had the roof somewhat injured by sparks falling upon it. The origin of the fire is not known, but will investigated by 'Fire Marshal Blackburn.

Blackburn. A man named Charles Bailey was ar-rested during the fire, for stealing. He had on the equipments of the Union Hose Com-pany of West Philadelphia, and was caught in the act of breaking open a trunk in the establishment of Allen & Davis. He was observed by Mesars, Fox and Auner, mem-bers of the Columbia Engine Company, to put a watch in his pocket. They called the attention of Sergeant Hamilton to the fact, and what was written of the father by the and Bailey was arrested. In the excitemen it is supposed that he threw the watch into the fire as it was not found on him. The prisoner had a hearing before Ald. Jones, and was held in $500 bail to answer at Court. "We consider the perfect finish and successful works ing of the Florence Sewing Machine deserves mor-than a passing notice. This machine combines all the excellencies, but none of the defects of other Sewing Machines with which we are acquainted. The great variety of work that can be accomplished by its four different stitches, the reversible feed motion, the self-adjusting tension, the rapidity and quality of the work done by it, clearly demands of us the sward of the Society's highest premium-its silver medal."

Madame Ristori.

There was a splendid audience last evening to see Mme. Ristori in Mary Stuart; but the enthusiasm of the Fatal Five Hundred for the great actress seems to have died out. for their ranks were reduced to about one hundred, and there was a fearful blank vacancy in the very best part of the house, into which the common two thousand dared not venture, and over which the woes of the hapless Queen of Scots had to be wailed before they could reach the popular heart. It was a dismal gap, which must have perplexed the Italians unacquainted with the mysteries of the stockholders' privileges.

The play was finely done, of course, and was enjoyed heartily by the people who are not stockholders. It was enjoyed, too, by Major General Meade and Secretary Stanton, who were in a proscenium box, and who, with the ladies accompanying them, were introduced to Mme. Ristori, behind the scenes, during one of the acts in which she does not appear. The interview was an agreeable one to all parties.

This evening Macbeth is to be produced. and even the Fatal Five Hundred are expected to condescend to appear to witness a play, every scene of which is probably known to a good many of them. In the sleep-walking scene, it may well be believed that Mme. Ristori is surpassingly fine. . #

On Friday evening, for Mme. Ristori's benefit, the tragedy of Pia dei Tolomei is to be produced. The story is a thrilling one, full of fine dramatic situations, and Ristori has appeared in nothing to greater advantage. She has also consented, on this occasion, to give a recitation in French, and has chosen for this purpose Les Adieux de Jeanne d'Arc, written by Schiller and translated into French by Legouvé, the author of Medea.

Mr. D'Huyvetter's Pictures. This evening the third sale of foreign paintings imported by Mr. A. D'Huyvetter from Holland, Belgium, Germany and France, will be commenced at the Art Gallery of Mr. B. Scott, Jr., No. 1020 Chestnut street. The promenaders during this fine weather have had opportunities of examining them as they hang on the walls, and it is admitted that a finer collection has rarely if ever been offered at public sale. There will undoabtedly be a large attendance of historian of the Navai Heroes of America may be truthfully applied to his son. "The character of Dale is marked by a total want of exaggeration. No man could be bolder in action, none was less boastful in victory. He was cool, prompt, never led into excesses. Modesty and ability with him went hand in hand. Never, it has been well said, has a whisper of complaint been heard against the public or private career of Richard Dale." THE SALE AT CONCERT HALL .- Mr. B. Scott, Jr., Auctioneer, commenced the sale of bronzes, &c., this morning, of Messrs.

Viti Bros., late importation from Europe, to an immense audience. The bidding was quite lively but prices generally were low in comparison to the value. The sale will be continued to-morrow morning, at which time the fine gilt clocks, which should have been in this morning's catalogue, but which did not reach here in time, will be sold. We presume the attendance at to-morrow's sale will be still greater, more particularly as it will be the last sale of the season.

The Case of the Hon. C. V. Culver. FRANKLIN, Pa., December 18.-A ser-geant-at-arms of the United States House of Representatives arrived here this morning, with authority to take Hon. C. V. Culver from the jail and proceed with him to Wash-ington, bail having been entered in the rail days ago. The only charge upon which he was held was a civil one founded upon James S. Myers's bench warrant. James S. Myers's bench warrant. The Sheriff promptly delivered Mr. Culver to the custody of the Washington officer, who requested Deputy Sheriff Mark to accompany the party to Washington. A large number of citizens accompanied Mr. Culver from the jail to the depot. The popular feeling seems strongly in his favor since the publication of his letter. It is un-derstood that the question of privilege will derstood that the question of his fetter. It is un-derstood that the question of privilege will be decided by Congress upon his arrival. James S. Myers, the plaintiff also went to Washington. It is believed here that Judge Tunkey would have discharged Mr. Culver upon his question of privilege, had he been prought before him on a witt of here. brought before him on a writ of habeas corpus on the civil case.

WANTED A HOME.-This morning early, a colored individual named Greenburg Wooley was captured in Bedford street with a blanket in his possession. He said that he had his clothing wrapped up in the blanket. An examination showed that there was no clothing there, but a nice set of harness was discovered.
