TAKING A WHALE. BY ROGER STARBUCK.

Early one morning while we were cruising off the coast of Peru for sperm whales I was dozing on the maintopgallant cross-trees. Suddenly something seemed to go right through my brain. I woke to discover that it was the wild voice of Zadik, the Captain's harpooner. a fall, swarthy, straight-haired youth, half Kanaka, half English. He was very tender-hearted, but an excellent whaleman, whose power of vision was truly remarkable. Hestood on the other side of me, shricking will all the force of bis lungs:

"There blows!—there blow-ow-s! there—there—there—blows! Where away?" thundered old Capt.

Boom, glancing aloft.
'On the weather-bow, four miles on, heading to leeward!"

This answer sent an electric thrill through every vein; the old ship lurched as if she felt it too.

Up came old Boom, with spy-glass slung over his shoulder, mounting two rathines at a time. When on the cross:

trees he just gave one squint with his telescope; then his voice rung through the ship like a great saw going through "Back the main-yard-clear away the boats!" It would have done you good to see the men jump to falls and braces. The ship came up slowly, and Boom went down like lightning by means of a back-stay.

Zadik, following him, sprung like a deer into the starboard boat.

"Lower away!" growled the Captain.
Buz-z z! buz! buz z-z-z! sounded the falls, and swash! went the four boats, almost simultaneously, into the water.
The merry dogs bundled into them, and away they flew, the Captain's taking the lead.

"Snap your oars, ye griffins! Make the fire fly, my bull-dogs! Long and strong's the word! Break your backs, every mother's son of ye!" gritted the old fellow through his teeth.

In a similar manner the other officers encouraged their crews, until they had proceeded about four miles, when orders were given to stop pulling.

"Noneof your dare-devil pranks, Tom, if you get alongside a whale!" said the skipper to his son—a lad of fifteen, who belonged to the after-thwart in the first mate's boat.

Tom—the ship's favorite—smiled and shook his curly head. At the same more ment the water broke into a whirlpool a few fathoms astern. There was a hurried whispering; then the boats were forced round as a very small whale, a calf, rose to the surface. We perceived at once that the creature had been struck by some other crew, for the shank of an iron protruded from its body. It seemed very weak and in much pain, moving slowly and now and then reeling sideways with a sudden plunge. It swam in a circle as if bewildered, and the noise of its spouting somehow reminded me of the wailing of "Paddle ahead!" was the order, for every man believed that the mother of the calf—the cow whale—was not far The first mate was soon within darting distance.

g distance. "Give it to him!" he shrieked, and whiz, whiz! went the harpooner's irons, one after the other, into the animal's body. For a few moments the little whale, as if half stupefied, remained nearly motionless; then, breeching, it came down, writhing and whirling its flukes in great agony, after which it sounded. It was too weak to drag the boat very fast or very far; it soon rose about fifty yards ahead.
"Haul line!" ordered the mate, now

"Haul line!" ordered the mate, now in the boat's bow, lance in hand.

As he spoke the water on one side of the calf suddenly parted with a roar like a cataract, and an enormous leviation—the cow whale—boamed up from than-the cow whale-boomed up from the surface, beating the sea with her flukes and spouting thunder.

Round and round her offspring she swam, but soon paused, as if half paralyzed with astonishment and grief at the situation of the sufferer. A moment she remained thus, then moved ahead alowly and gently, occasionally turning as if to entice the little creature to follow. In fact the calf endeavored to do so, but was 100 badly crippled to swim; it made a few Leeble plunges toward its parent and then began to writhe and wheel in great ago ny. Perceiving that it was now in its flurry, the mate stopped hauling line, and remained watching the animal until its blood-red spout no longer rose, and it rolled over quite

Now the behavior of its mother was pitiful to witness. She seemed un-willing to believe that her young one was really dead. Round it she slowly swam, spouting with an dise something between a shriek and a gasp. Then she moved ahead as before, and like one half crazy, seemed not yet to have abandoned the hope of being followed by her offspring.

Meanwhile her enemies were rapidly but stealthily advancing. Soon the Captain, who was foremost, was near enough to dart.

"Let her have it!" he growled. Zadik raised his harpoon; at the same moment the cow gently rubbed its great head against the little whale, as if to ascertain the reason why it would not follow her.

Zadik lowered the point of his weapon; his wild eyes softened.
"That whale's just like a human mother, Captain," said he, "and I haven't the heart to strike it!"

"Dog!" hissed Boom, "what ails ye?
Dart! dart! I tell ye!" As he spoke a sudden change came over the whale, which now, half turning, saw the boat. Wrathful and wild for revenge, she breeched, the whole length of her enormous body out of water; then falling back with the din of a hundred thunderbolts, she made straight for the boat, her bristling jaw wide open, her broad flukes beating the

"Starn! starn!" gritted old Boom, and every man of his crew except Zadik turned pale.

The harpooner had changed with the leviathan. The flush of fight was now leviathan. The flush of fight was now on his cheek, and there was fire in his eye. His dark brow was wrinkled; the ends of his straight black hair bristle ends of his ends of sel to one side. Thus baffled, the monsel to one side. Thus bamed, the mon-ster dove, shaking a sayage warning with her flukes, as she disappeared. Away went the boat, swift as a whirl-wind, the line humming around the loggerhead, and the crew cheering like wild demons in answer to the cheers of those who were pulling after them, those who were pulling after them.

Zadik and the Captain changed places, and the "old lion;" as we called Boom, soen had his lance ready. The whale came up a quarter of an hour later, and "Haul line!" was the order. When within darting distance theskipper sent within darting distance theskipper sent his long weapon quivering into the monster's body. Enraged beyond all bounds, she came booming towards us in a cloud of whirling spray tossed by her busy flukes.

"Starn! starn!" from the "old lion!"
and every time he spoke he was either darting his lance into the whale or pulling it back. Thicker and faster flew the spray, almost hiding the animal from us, until suddenly its great head, bursting from the white foam cloud, we saw the bristling jaw within six inches of the skipper!

the skipper!

Had the nerves of Zadik failed him, the old man must have perished the next minute. But the voice of the half-breed rang like the clang of a hammer, as with ready steering oar he whirled the boat's broadside toward the monster, and then gave the order to "stern." and then gave the order to "stern."

Snap! went the monster's closing jaw, just missing the boat's bow; and whiz-z-z! went the old lion's lance again into her body alongside the hump! Now, as she dashed furiously toward us, our shipmates arrived to take part in the combat. The long-limbed first mate, who had left the calf to be towed by an extra boat's crew from the ship, attacked the monster on one flank, while the Captain and his second and third mates battled desponsibly lines the other. The and his second and third mates battled desperately upon the other. The cheers of the men, the crashing of the whale's fluke's, mingling with such wild cries as "Lay me on!" "Keep off a little!" "Now then—steady as you are!" "Starn! starn! starn!" "Pull ahead!" "Hoo, hoo! take that, old queen!" "Mind yourself at that oar!" "Now then, Mr. Spooner—there's a good sight!" "Whang! whang! whang! whang! three lances into her that time!"

whang!three lances into her that time!"
"Hooray! hooray!" etc., etc., were heard on all sides, while so thick was the spray that no man could see his neighbor distinctly. Vigorously pressed-with lance after lance piercing her body—her jaws and flanks avoided by the vigilant narpooners—the whale soon acknowledged the power of her assailants by sending into the spray cloud a light red fountain of blood! With exultant screams the lancers, still attacking, buried their weapons in her writhing body, from which the spout rose darker and lower every moment.

Suddenly, with one tremendous whirl of her flukes, she struck the first mate's boat, shivering it to atoms! Then slowly round and round she swam, the dark blood-spout now ascending scarcely six

The Captain and his third and second officers churned her with their lances when, turning over, fin out, and half lifting her flukes and head in one last spasm of ageny, she expired!

The first mate's crew, being good swimmers, had not yet been picked up; in fact, the Captain had been too busy to notice which vessel was stoven. Now, as the poor fellows were helped into his boat, he looked in vain for his son! The sad story was soon told; poor little Tom was far down under the sea, whither his frame, crushed by the whale's flukes, had been dragged by sharks. The Captain groaned and bowed his head. He did not lift it until we were alongside the ship. While we were cut-ting in the whale we looked in vain for

"He is down in the cabin," said the mate, "weeping and sobbing like a child. He will never be a happy man

"Ay, ay," said Zadik, gloomily. "I felt as if no good would come of our striking that whale! We killed her offspring, and she killed the Captain's son!"

CASTOR WHEELS. OR HEALTH AND STRENGTH USE CAPR WELL & CO.'S PATENT GLASS CASTOR

POR HEALTH AND STRENGTH USE CAPP WILL & CO.'S PATENT GLASS CASTOB WHEELS.

These wheels are designed for Pianos, Bedsteads, &c We claim that they give to Pianos a greatly increased force of sound, without detracting from the harmony and melody of the insurament, rendering every note more distinct to the ser. This is so apparent that they are now being applied by many to these valuable must alcal instruments. Dr. Valentine Mott, previous to his death, pronounced the Glass Castor Wheels an in guarded against the damp floors after undergoing the process of cleaning, or where dampness is produced from any other canes. Aside from this, Housekeepen are relieved from the dread of having their carpets cut or torn, as frequently happens from those now in use often caused by a rust, which address with gine-like jenacity. No such annoyance can possibly proceed from the Glass Castor Wheels, as we all know that glass is non-corrosive. There are no rough or unfin ished edges to the Glass wheels, such as we often find in those of iron, and the latter, though smoothly fin ished, will sook rust, from the dampness of the atmost phere, if nothing else, producing roughness on the sur face, or edge, while the former will always maintain the smoothness of glass, just as they are finished.

By sleeping upon glass wheels you retain all the elect vicity you had in your body on retiring, and you get up in the morning feeling as fresh and active as a young man, Glass being a non-conductor, the elect vicity gained while in bed cannot pass off. Ask your doctor what he thinks of the Glass Castor Wheels ask him if all diseases, with the exception of chronic diseases, are not caused from the want of electricity We have a man in our place whom the doctors produced past curring, with the inflammatory rice mailsm. The wheels cured him in less than four mailsm. The wheels cured him in less castor wheels are facts which can be proven on application at our office.
