XXXIXth CONGRESS—Second Session [GLOSE OF YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS,]

SENATE. -Mr. Pomeroy (Kansas) introduced a bill to secure the speedy construc-tion of the Union Pacific Railroad (southern to the government the use of the same for military and postal purposes. It provides for the issue of six per cent, bonds of $1,000 each, to run twenty years, on the comple-tion of each twenty consecutive miles of the road, at the rate of sixteen such bonds per non or each twenty consecutive miles of the road, at the rate of sixteen auch bonds per mile. The road is to run by way of Fort Riley and Fort Smith, the valley of the Neosho, Grand and Arkansas rivers.

Mr. Wilson (Mass.) presented the following joint resolution, authorizing the President of the United States to prevent the infliction of corporeal punishment in the States lately in rebellion:

Whereas, The practice of its flicting corporeal punishment for offences avainst laws and municipal regulations is barbarous in character and degrading in practice; and whereas, in the present untettica state of civil affairs in the states lately in rebellion, the freedmen, in their helplessness, are liable to be subjected to this barbarous and degrading punishment, which would, in the existing condition of affairs endanger social codes and all industrial interests; therefore, be it Resolved. That the President of the United States be and be is hereby authorized and directed to instruct the officers of the army and navy and of the Freedmen's Bureau to prohibit and prevent the infliction of corporeal punishment for any crimes, misdemeanors or offeces by any pretended civil authority in any state lately in rebellion until the civil government or such State shall have been reorganized, ratified and guaranteed by the Congress of the United States.)

Mr. Saulsbury (Del.) inquired if the above was introduced for consideration or for reference at this time.

was introduced for consideration or for reference at this time.

Mr. Wilson said he wished simply to have it referred. Mr. Johnson (Md.) said there is no objec-tien to its reference.

The resolution was referred to the Judiciary Committee.
Mr. Henderson (Mo.) offered a resolution, which he said was made necessary by a despatch from Gov. Fletcher, that the President patch from Gov. Fiscener, that the Fresident be requested to inform the Senate whether, since the 1st of December, 1866, he has caused troops in the service of the United States to be marched into the interior of States to be marched into the interior of Missouri for any purpose, and if so, to indicate the reasons for such orders, and whether they were issued on application of the Governor or Legislature of said State.

Mr. Henderson, by request of several Senators, read the despatch of Gov. Fletcher. It asserts that General Grant has sent troops to Lexington, Mo., and protests against such interference, unless asked for by the Governor himself, and asks Congress if the President does not withdraw the troops.

to require him to do so.

Mr. Davis (Ky.) said the President had an unquestioned right to march the troops of the United States into any State of the of the United States into any State of the Union.

Mr. Henderson said the objection was that the troops had been sent for the purpose of interfering in the enforcement of State laws. He could not state all the facts, for he had no further news on the subject than the mere announcement in the Governor's despatch. He would probably receive a letter on the subject, giving particulars, in a few days.

The resolution was adopted.

The bill to admit Nebraska was taken up. The question was upon Mr. Hendrick's

The question was upon Mr. Hendrick's motion to postpone further consideration of the bill until the seventh of January

Mr. Edmunds (Vt.) took the floor in sup-port of the amendment of Mr. Brown (Mo.), attaching the condition of impertial suf-frage upon the admission of the State. He maintained that Congress had the right to make conditions precedent to the admission of the State, and that it would be retrogra-ding from the principle of equal rights asserted in the District Suffrage bill to permit a new coming State to deny suffrage on ac-

Wade (Ohio) denied that in advocating this bill he was less the advocate of free principles than he had been in former days. He regarded this bill as a help and not a bindrance to free principles.

Mr. Edmunds asked Mr. Wade if he believed a constitution restricting to white persons was just or right.

Mr. Wade said he had always been the advocate of impartial suffrage. He believed in it now as much as ever; but he did not believe in losing the substance to grasp at a

Mr. Pomeroy gave the reasons why he should vote against Mr. Brown's amend-ment, and for the bill. He felt bound, he said, to act in good faith to that State, and could exact no conditions now that were not in the enabling act.

Mr. Howard (Mich.) replied to the speech of Mr. Edmunds, denying the right of Con-gress to attach the conditions of Mr. Brown's amendment. At 2.45 P. M., no vote having been taken on the pending bills or amendment, Mr. Grimes asked that an Executive ses-gion be held. Mr. Buckalew (Pa.), who had the floor. declined to yield, and proceeded to speak at length upon the bill and amendments, dwelling mainly upon topics already dis-cussed in the course of the debate, the smallness of population, etc.

Mr. Sprague (R. L) followed Mr. Bucka-lew in a written speech, opposing the bill.

Mr. Saulsbury (Del.), at 4 P. M., moved that the Senate adjourn, but with-drew that motion for an Executive session, which was held, and the Senate soon after adjourned to meet on Thursday, January House.—The House went into Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union, Mr. Welker (O.) in the chair, on the President's annual Message.

Mr. Hise (Ky.) resumed the argument against the power of Congress to territorialize the lately rebellious States. Mr. Hise having used up the second hour assigned to him, was given an additional half hour. When the hammer fell at the close of that half hour, he was about to narrate an illustrative anecdote, which had to remain un-

Mr. Lawrence (O.) followed, with an argument in support of his proposition to reduce the salaries of Senators and members of Congress. He said he had introduced and would urge the passage of two bills, one to repeal the act of July last, increasing salaries, so as to restore the salary to what it was before the increase, but leaving the mileage reduced one-half. The other to reduce the mileage still lower-to ten cents per mile. They were introduced separately so that objections to either might not be urged to defeat the other. He gave a detailed estimate of the cest and saving to the treasury, and said the Mileage bill would save an nually $125,000. With the present number of members, if Congress took large salaries it could not consistently economise in other departments, so that all all the expenses of the government were affected by this. Judge Story had declared that the most wholesome lessons to be taught in republics are that men should learn suitable economy and prudence in their private affairs. was a great question, affecting private as well as public interests and morals. The Constitution denied the English rule which gives no pay to members of parlia-ment. But large salaries were not necessary, as sometimes urged to pre-vent corruption. The corrective for this was to be found in the virtue and intel ligence of the people. Adequate talent could be secured for all offices on moderate sala-ries, and this was attested by the fact that candidates were really more numerous than offices. The true mode of compensation was by per diem wages, as the practice was for the first sixty six years of the government, except for the Fourteenth Congress. A salary had a tendency rather to induce a neglect of business, while a per diem se-cured it. But he had not sought to revive this, because he deemed it impossible now. The annual record of 1864 showed the ave-four of the States to be $2,500, and in 207 collection districts less than half the incomes collection electricts less than nation incomes assessed for taxation reached $3,000, while by far the largest number of all is much less. Official and unofficial salaries generally would prove the justice of his bill. The law of July should be repealed, because it was passed by being coupled with another provision giving bounties to soldiers. The House twice voted almost unanimously. House twice voted almost unanimously, against an increase of salaries. It was carried through in the Senate with only two Democratic votes against it, and in the House with only seven Democratic votes against it, and with only thirty-five Republican votes in its favor and forty-three against it

The Secretary of the Treasury has recommended a reduction of the greenback cur-rency, with a view to a reduction of prices. He opposed any material reduction of the He opposed any material reduction of the currency now, as it would add to our national debt, increase its burden, and diminish our means of paying it; that while this scheme was urged it was no time to be increasing salaries. The salaries of assessors, collegious and many officers were some of collectors, and many officers were, some of them now too high in comparison with the rewards of labor and employments generally. The average salaries of assessors for 1865 and 1866 were over four thousand dol lais. He would vote for no increase of expenses except only what the demanded boun-ties for all the soldiers of the republic, the hundred days' men of Ohio included.

Mr. Randall (Pa.) interrupted Mr. Lawrence, to ask whether he knew of a single member who had not taken his increased pay?

Mr, Lawrence replied that he did not. Mr. Maynard (Tenn.) felt it due to himself to say that he had not taken the increased compensation till after the matter had gone before the great body of the American people, and after he had seen a gentleman who had taken it (meaning Mr. Randall) returned with great unanimity.

Mr. Randall (Pa.) said he was glad that the gentleman (Mr. Maynard) and himself were both in accord with the American people on that particular point, [Laughter.] Mr. Cobb (Wis.) stated that he had voted against the increase of compensation, and would have defeated it if he could. He believed that it was wrong; that it was dis-honest; or, correcting himself, that it would have been dishonest if he had voted for it. Mr. Ashley (Ohio) remarked, laughingly that he had been about calling the gentle man to order.

Mr. Cobb thanked the gentleman. He repeated that he had voted against the in-creased compensation, and had drawn no part of it. He should wait a little longer than the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. Maynard) had waited, and until Congress should, by its non-action or its action, reite rate in a more deliberate manner its wish

Mr. Maynard (Tenn.) asked whether the gentleman (Mr. Cobb) appealed from the decision of the people to this body?

Mr. Cobb did not think that the people had endorsed that action of Congress. On the contrary, he had found it the greatest embarrassment against which he had to contend in the recent canvass. He asked the gen man from Ohio (Mr. Lawrence) whether he had drawn his extra compensation?

Mr. Lawrence thought that if the question of extra compensation had been the only question before the nearly asked.

only question before the people at the la canvass, the members who voted for would have been buried ten thousan fathoms deep. There never had been a bi passed increasing the compensation of members that had not been disapproved by th people. He confessed that he had receive his extra compensation.

Mr. Driggs (Mich.) inquired facetious!

Mr. Driggs (Mich.) inquired facetiously whether the gentleman had felt bad when he received it. [Laughter.]

Mr. Lawrence did not perceive the pertinency of the question. He had no doub but that the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Driggs) felt very good when he received his Mr. Driggs—I did. [Peals of laughter.]

Mr. Hill said he had understood Mr.

had understood M Lawrence to hold that the Constitution re quired members to receive compensation that it was a part of their duty. He desired that it was a part of their duty. He desired to know whether the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Cobb), by failing to perform that duty, had subjected himself to expulsion. [Laughter.]

Mr. Lawrence replied that he was in favor of the impeachment of some officers of the Government, but would reserve his opinion as to whether a member cought to be expected. as to whether a member ought to be expelled for the reason assigned by the gentle-man from Wisconsin. Mr. Cobb could not get out of the matter by refusing to draw his extra compensation, as it stood to his credit with the seargant-at-arms, and could be drawn out, in case of death, by his administrators. The only effectual mode was to draw the money and pay it into the conscience fund.

Mr. Hill asked Mr. Lawrence, tormentingly, whether he had paid his back to the conscience fund? [Laughter.]
Mr. Lawrence replied that he had not, and did not intend to, unless required to do it by law. If a bill for that purpose were introduced and should be found practicable he would yet for it and comply cable, he would vote for it, and comply

Mr. Driggs said that the question had been made a direct issue in his district, and he had declared that he voted for it because he thought that if $3,000 compensation was right before the war; it is certainly right now, when it cost twice as much to live. His people had endorsed that view and had given him an increased majority.

Mr. Harding (Ill.) related his experience as differing from that of Mr. Driggs. He had voted against the conference report equalizing soldier's bounties, because that measure had been associated in the report with the obnoxious measure increasing the though deeply interested in favor of the increase of bounties, had indorsed his action and quadrupled his majority. It therefore appeared that the medicine acted differently appeared that the medicine account in different places. [Laughter.]

Mr. Grinhell (N. Y.) obtained the floor, and outlined the argument which he proposed to make when he should next address the committee. The committee then rose, and the Speaker esumed the Chair.

The Speaker presented Executive docu-Message from the President in reply to House resolution of December 4th, request-ing information relative to the attempts of anta Anna or Ortega to organize armed expeditions within the United States for the purpose of overthrowing the national government of the Republic of Mexico, transcitting a report from the Secretary of State. Referred to the Committee on Foreign Af-

A report from Sergeant-at-Arms Ordway, in the case of Hon. Charles V. Culver, member from the Twentieth District of Pennsylvanian and the control of Pennsylvanian an vania, stating that in compliance with the Speaker's warrant, he had taken Mr. Culver. out of the custody of the Sheriff of Venango county, and now had him unrestrained in his seat as a member of the Thirty-ninth Congress. Laid on the table.

A communication from the Secretary of the Treasury, in reply to the House resolu-tion of the 7th inst., offered by Mr. Went-worth (Ill.), in reference to a site for a marine hospital at Chicago. Referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Estimates of the post office appropriations for the year ending June 30, 1868. Referred to the Post Office Committee.

The Speaker announced that he had appointed as the Select Committee ordered to-day on Free Common Schools in the District of Columbia, Messrs. Stevens, Patterson, Welker, Boutwell, Moulton, Ashley

(Nevada), and Hubbell (N. Y.)
Mr. O'Neill presented a petition of seamen, firemen, coal-passers and marines, who en-tered the service on and after February 15, 1861, asking for a bounty of $100 per anrage salaries of the highest judges of twenty. num, or $8 33 per month for each month's services; all bountles received after July 1, 1864 to be deducted.

On motion of Mr. Julian, the Select Committee on Direct Tax and Forfeited an Abandoned Lands in the late rebel State was instructed to inquire whether the regis-ters or receivers of public and offices in any of such States had hindered or obstructed the execution of the Homestead act, and whether any person, white or colored, who was entitled to the benefit of such act, had been wrongfully prevented from availing himself thereof by any officer or agent of the government, or by any person whomsoever.

On motion of Mr. Spalding the Committee on Ways and Means was instructed to inquire into the expediency of exempting from tariff duties timber and lumber for ship building, and firewood for steamers navigating the Western lakes and rivers when imported by the party using it fo such purposes.

Mr. Hill introduced a bill for the relief of the Agricultural Society of Bartholomew county, Indiana. Read twice and referred to the Committee on Claims. Mr. Lawrence (Ohio) offered a resolution asking information in reference to advertisements for the Navy Department. Object tion being made it went over under the rule.

A motion to adjourn having been agreed to, the Speaker at 3.45 P. Mr. announced in obedience to the concurrent resolution for a recess, that the House stood adjourned till Thursday, January 3, at noon. THE POST OFFICE ESTIMATES.—The Post

THE FOST OFFICE ESTIMATES,—The Post-master General has sent estimates to the House for the service of the department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1868, the sum being $7,500,000. Total, $1,550,000.

"ANY PORT IN A STORM." -- During the late flood at Preston about twenty rats, driven by the rising water from their usual hiding places, took refuge in a hive full of bees, in a garden adjoining South Meadow Lane. There had been no "conflict" in the hive, and for several hours the "happy principle had been observed by its occurants.—English Paper.
