Heavy Shoes for the Ladies. Winter is coming, and we desire to say a word or two to our lady readers about clothing the feet.

When the celebrated physician Abernethy died, report said, that beside a will of some interest to his heirs, in a peculiary point of view, there was found among his effects a sealed envelope, said to contain the secret of his great success in the healing art, and also a rule of living, the following of which will insure

A large price was paid for the sealed envelope. It was found to contain only these words: "To insure continued health and a ripe old age, keep the head cool, the system open, and the feet

Dry feet are warm feet, generally, if the system is healthy. To keep the system healthy, the circulation must be good. The circulation is not good without exercise, and exercise can only be really valuable when gotten up by walking. Riding in a carriage is not exercise at all; it is merely inhaling the air. This is very well as far as it goes, but the lungs are not in full play without the individual is walking. Horseback exercise is very good, and is an improvement on carriage riding, but it is not the kind of health-creating play of the muscles nature demands. It is action—action of the entire body-and walking only will will procure it. Now, the ladies of Europe, particularly those of England, understand this thing. They walk miles per day, and if any of our pale beauties desire to know how the English keep up their fine color, clear complexion and superb busts, we tell them that it is outdoor exercise, walking in the open air. filling the lungs with pure oxygen by rapid movement on a sharp October day, when the sun shines brightly and the clear blue sky is above. This is the secret of the rich blood of the English women, and their almost universally fine looks and matronly beauty at fifty, when at that age our American woman are pale, sallow and wrinkled.

To enjoy a walk thick soles are needed. Stout, well fitting, calf skin high gaiters, neatly laced, will always "set off" a pretty foot, and improve a homely one. To guard that sensitive portion of the human frame (for the sole of the foot is keenly sensitive to the changes from heat to cold or dryness to dampness), the boot sole should be thick, and as well made as human ingenuity can do it. Then even in moist weather, or in a rain storm, the foot can be protected; that insured, all is well with the lady. Ladies, walk more; take long walks;

get tired—no matter how tired—tired muscles, in any well woman eighteen to forty-eight only proven that they need to be used; flabby muscles prove that action is wanted, and such muscles also prove that the system lacks tone. They are like a violin, with the keys loose; the strings are without vibration and the instrument is dead. Buy the best of calf half boots, ladies; exercise in them till you are well enough to go out, well clad, in all weather. Wear no rubbers, if you can avoid it. They are bad for the feet. If you need to paddle in the slush and soft snow of spring, put on rubbers, for the feet must be kept warm and dry, but use them as little. and dry, but use them as little as possible. Wear, when out of doors, soiled shoes; take all the open air exercise you can by walking, and you will be, in your old age, as fine looking as you are now; be as proud of you as the young fry of old England of their stately mothers. We have seen in Hyde Park, Lon on, on a fair day, hundreds of graudmothers, fresh and nearly handsome; and scores of mothers with marriageable daughters, which, had we been in the marrying line, we should hardly have known which to have popped the question to, so dazzling was the real beauty and youth of both. Our American ladies can possess these charms and carry them into the age of three score, if they will walk more in the open air, and inhale daily the healthgiving properties which can be obtained in wearing out a couple of pairs of tip top ten dollar gaiters per year. We hold that one ten dollar pair of walking shoes will save twenty doctors' visits at five dollars each.

Lost Arts.

Take your choice, ladies.

In regard to colors we are far behind the ancients. None of the colors in the Egyptian paintings of thousands of years ago are in the least faded, except the green. The Tyrian purple of the entombed city of Pompeil is as fresh today as it was two thousand years ago. Same of the stucco, painted ages before the Christian era, broken up and mixed, reverted to its original lustre. And yet we pity the ignorance of the darkskinned children of the ancient Egypt. The colors upon the walls of Nero's festal vaults are as fresh as if painted yesterday. So is the cheek of the Egyptian prince who was contemporaneous with Solomon, and Cleopatra, at whose feet Cæsar laid the riches of his empire. And in regard to metals. The edges of the statues of the obelisks of Egypt, and of the ancient walls of Rome, are as sharp as if but hewn yesterday. And the stones still remain so closely fitted that their seams, laid with mortar, cannot be penetrated with the edge of a penknife. And their surface is excedingly hard, so hard that when the French artists engraved two lines upon the obelisk brought from Egypt, they destroyed, in the tedious task, many of the best tools which can be manufactured. And yet these monuments are traced all over with the inscriptions placed upon them in olden time. This, with other facts of a striking character, prove that they were far more skilled in metals than we are. Quite recently it is recorded that when an American vessel was on the shores of Africa, a son of that benighted region made from an iron hoop a knife superior to any on board of the vessel, and another made a sword of Damascus excellence from a piece of iron.

Fiction is very old; Scott had his counterpart two thousand years ago. A story is told of a warrior who had not time to wait for the proper forging of his weapon, but seized it red hot, rode forward, but found to his surprise that the cool air had tempered his iron into an excellent steel weapon. The tempering of steel, therefore, which was new to us a century since, was old two thousand years ago. Ventilation is deemed a very modern art. But this is not the fact, for apertures, unquestionably made for the purpose of ventilation, are found in the pyramid tombs of Egypt. Yes, thousands of years ago the barbarous Pagans went so far to ventilate their tombs, while we yet scarcely know how to ventilate The Davenport Iowa Disaster—Three Persons Burned to Death.

The following details of a fire which occurred in Davenport, Iowa, on the morning of the oth instant, and by which three persons lost their lives, and a fourth was fatally burned, are gathered from the Gazette of that city.

A family named Miller, consisting of husband and wife, five children and the mother of Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Julia Ann Cahill, resided just outside the city limits, in a small one-and-a-half story rame house. About four o'clock on the morning above named, the family were aroused from their slumbers by a iscovery of fire in the loft where Mrs. Cahill and three of the children were sleeping. Mr. Miller tried to put out the fire by buckets of water, but his efforts were fruitless, and he was compelled to leave the house in his night dress. Mrs. Miller previously escaped with her two youngest children who slept with her in the lower part of the house. Going to the end of the house, where there was a window, Miller saw Mrs. Cahill and the children surrounded by flame. Instantly the window was dashed out by theoldest boy, Richard, aged 12 years, who threw himself out, falling, terribly burned and bruised, upon the frozen ground. The morning was intensely cold, and there was quite a breeze blowing, and in a few minutes the flames had spread to every portion of the building. Mrs. Miller took up her three children, the oldest boy, who had thrown himself out of the window, her little daughter and the baby, and started with them to the residence of Mr. McLaughlin, her sister's husband, who lived nearly a quarter of a mile distant and who were their nearest neighbors, carrying her three children nearly the entire distance. Arousing the family, they rendered her all the assistance and relief possible. Mr. Miller remained at the house, endeavoring to rescue the other children and their grandmother, but without avail. The neighbors arrived only in time to see the floor of the upper story fall through, carrying with it the remains of the three persons who had fallen helpless near the upper window. The members of the family who escaped were badly frostbitten, none of them having had time to dress. A messenger was dispatched for a physician, and all that could be, was done to relieve the physical suffering of the distressed family. The eldest boy, Richard, was found terribly burned, and cannot survive; he was conscious, but insensible of pain from the nature of his severe injuries. He told the doctor that he was wakened by the stifling smoke, that he called his grandmother and the children, and then jumped out of the window. The last he saw of them, the grandmother was getting the children in her arms. Mrs. Cahill, who perished in the burning building, was 70 years of age. Her grandchildren, James, aged 8, and Ed-

even having saved clothing enough to cover them. The neighbors, however, were kindly caring for them. Immigration to Louisiana.—The Opelousas Sentinel of the 8th claims that the tide is rising in that parish. It is not the tide water, but the tide of immigration. Men who have been over Texas looking for nemes, have come back by way of St. Landry, and evince a determination to buy and settle there. It thinks St. Landry will soon recover its before the war numbers, and ere long be far more populous and and ere long be far more populous and prosperous. One of the new comers from South Carolina brings twenty of his old slaves, who cling to their former master.
