NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The American News Company, N. Y., have just published, in handsome book form, "The New Gospel of Peace." This keen and amusing satire upon recent American politics, especially as they relate to the city of New York, is one of the most striking of the varied literary productions of the war. The secret of its authorship has been well kept, and is made the subject of a capital serio-comic disquisition in the preface of this edition. The Chaldaic origin of the work will scarcely be disputed, after this learned argument in its favor. The close imitation of Scriptural phraseology in this clever production will always lay it open to the charge of needless irreverence, in many minds, but its caustic wit and the powerful political influence which it has exercised. entitle it to a place in the library, amongst the other records of the rebellion. The present edition is enriched by solemn footnotes, by way, as the author says, "of exegesis, improvement and edification." It is for sale by J. B. Lippincott & Co.

"The History of a Mouthful of Bread," is the title of a book just published by the American News Company. It is the first American edition of a French work by Jean Mace, which has already passed through seventeen editions in Paris. The main purpose of this capital book, is to convey in simple language, adapted to the comprehension of the young, a clear idea of the digestive economy of the human system, and the author has displayed marked ability and ingenuity in his difficult task. The American edition is a reprint of an English edition, the errors of which have been corrected and the text restored to a closer adherence to the original. The book will be a most valuable aid in the instruction of the young and will also be a valuable aid to those of older growth whose present ideas as to the processes to which a "mouthful of Bread" is subjected, are very vague and crude. For sale by J. B. Lippincott

J. B. Lippincott & Co. have received from Lee & Shepard, Boston, "The "Way of the World," a novel by Mr. William T. Adams, better known as "Oliver Optic." Mr. Adams has made a high reputation as a writer of juvenile books, and in this, which we believe is his first essay in regular romance. he shows an ability which has produced a Leypoldt & Holt, N. Y. have just published a very pretty edition of "King René's Daughter" translated from the Danish of Henrick Hertz by Theodore Martin. This exquisite little lyrical drama, although intimately known in England, has never been published but once in this country, and then in a very common pamphlet form. The simple, peaceful story of the poem is beautifully told and the translator has evidently caught the inspiration of the original, in his free and vigorous versification. For sale by J. B. THE CHURCHES AND SERVICES.

THE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

Christmas was celebrated in this city yeserday in the usual manner, but with considerably more spirit than it has been for several years past. Monday was a very dull day. The rain fell in torrents during the morning and afternoon, and everything indicated a disagreeable Christmas. The invention and the characteristics and the characteristics of the control of the characteristics and the characteristics and the characteristics are control of the characteristics. juveniles and shop-keepers looked disappointed. The latter class had not much reason to complain, however, as all the stores where Christmas articles are to be the ware creded particles are to be had were crowded, notwithstanding the stormy weather. Towards evening the wind shifted, and the sky brightened up. The celebration of Christmas Eve commenced about six wind shifted, and the sky brightened up. The celebration of Christmas Eve commenced about six o'clock, when people began to flock to the lower part of the city. Eighth street and Chestnut street were the centre of attraction. On Eighth street, the crowd became very dense and locomotion was exceedingly slow. There was very little disorder. The order of Mayor McMichael for the prevention of pushing and pulling was carried out by a streng police force, the officers being stationed but a few feet apart on Eighth street, from Sansom to Race. During the evening thirty-nine persons were arrested for drunkenness, disorderly conduct and insulting females, and several individuals were captured for indecently assaulting women. The cases were all disposed of by Alderman Beitler, who was at his post at the Central Station. The dealers in tin horns and penny trumpets must have done a thriving business. Such a trumple and affection and that of Portugal, and he has conducted his share of the negotiations with great zeal, fidelity and ability. He has resided for some years on a farm near Charlestown, Md., only going to Washington on visits of business or State ceremony. An illness which seized him last autumn has detained him in Frooklyn ever since. In his social relations Mr. de Figaniere was everything that the true gentleman should be. His career, both professional and private, has been thoroughly honorable, and he leaves to his sorrewing family a record that they can view with pride and affection. The funeral services of the deceased gentleman will take place in the Church of St. Peter and St. Paul, Brooking, and he leaves to his sorrewing family a record that they can view with pride and affection. Such a tumult and din has not been heard for years. Nearly every person seemed to have a horn; all used their lungs lustily, and each seemed to try who could make the most noise. Fantastical clubs and small bands of masqueraders, with drums and trumpets, were more plentiful than usual. Some of the costumes were exceedingly fanny, were The crowds continued to throng the principal streets until midnight, and long after that hour the noise of the horns was kept

Christmas was ushered in by the ringing of the chimes of Christ Church; St. Peter's Church and St. Stephen's Church, The morning opened with a bright sun and a keen atmosphere. The little ones were delighted, and everybody was highly pleased at having such a fine day for the celebration the festivities. Services were held in the Roman Catholic, Protestant Episcopal, Lutheran and Moravian Churches. The interior of all the church edifices was beauti-tifully decorated with evergreens. The services were all well attended. At the Cathedral the service was grand. Hummel's Grand Mass No. 1, in E flat, Mozart's Te Deum, and the Grand Hallelujah Chorus from the Messiah were sung. The choir were assisted by the Germania Orchestra. Rt. Rev. Bishop Wood celebrated mass, and a sermon was delivered by Bishop O'Connor, of Pittsburgh. In the afternoon people turned out in the streets in large numbers. Chestnut street was a perfect jam on both sides, until dark. The noise of the horns was well kept up, but there was little or no disorder. Alderman Beitler had only ten cases of drunkenness and disorderly conduct last evening.

The poor were not forgotten yesterday.

The soup houses were all engaged in the distribution of soup. At the Bedford Street Mission House an excellent dinner was provided for the children who attend the Sabbath and day schools. The various other charitable institutions in the city also furnished a good dinner for the inmates.

The boys at the Lincoln Institution had a fine time yesterday. After attending service at the Church of the Epiphany they returned home, where they were welcomed by a large company of the ladies and gen-tlemen who are interested in this admirable institution. The boys surrounded s splendid Christmas tree, which was bending with all manner of pretty things, and sang several Christmas hymns and carols with much spirit, While thus engaged they received a visit from His Honer Mayor McMichael, who was welcomed by the boys, through the medium of their captain, Jenness Dexter, in a neat little speech, to which the Mayor replied in his usual felicitous style. He was greeted with a hearty round of cheers, followed by cheers for Mr. Superintendent Burrowes, General Meade, the ladies, and other friends of the institution. After the distribution of the presents, consisting of skates, sleds, scarfs, and all manner of appropriate toys, the boys sat down to very comfortable Christmas dinner, supplemented with no end of cakes and candles. A happier houseful of children was nowhere to be found, yesterday, than beneath the hospitable roof of the Lin-

Christmas passed off pleasantly at the Northern Home for Friendless Children, In the morning the children, numbering over three hundred, were treated to candies, cakes, etc., after which they sat down to a bountiful dinner, which the little fellows appeared to enjoy amazingly. In the after-neon, a large audience listened to the reci-tation and singing by the children. The recitations were conducted by the Misses Walk, the principal teachers, and the sing-ing by A. M. Death of the Portuguese Minister.

His Excellency the Commander J. C. de Figaniere e Morao, Minister Plenipotentiary from Pertugal, died at 1 A. M. on Monday, at his son's residence, in Brooklyn. Mr. D. Figaniere was a native of Lisbox, and was 68 years of orc. He has bon, and was 68 years of age. He has been many years in the United States, his first many years in the United States, his first official position having been as Consul at Norfolk. He was Charge d'Affaires at Washington at the time of Don Miguel's usurpation, under whom he refused to serve. After the fall of Don Miguel, Mr. de Figaniere was reappointed, and has ever since represented his native country, his rank for many years having been that of Minister Plenipotentiary and Envoy Extraordinary. By virtue of seniority, he has for a long time been Dean of the Diplomatic Corps. Many important questions have arisen during his term of office between this Government and that of Fortugal, terment in the family burial lot at Laurel From the Journal of Commerce, Dec. 25, DEATH OF COM. DE FIGANIERE.—The death of the Portuguese Minister, which occurred on the 24th inst., will be heard with regret by many readers. We have received a tribute to his worth from a distinuished member of the bar, which we gladly publish:

Joaquim Cæsar de Figaniere e Morao, Commander de Figaniere, Minister to the United States for Portugal, died at a son's residence in Williamsburg on the 24th of December instant. This gentleman—a gentleman in every sense of the word—was known for many years by the leading men of New York. Mr. de Figaniere was the sen of an admiral, and, as a youth, was a sch of an admiral, and, as a youth, was a midshipman in the British navy. In New York, he was, during a long period, the Portuguese Consul General, and his excellent conduct and large ability caused him to be promoted to the position of Minister for Portugal. Such a change, from consular o diplomatic service, is rare, and only takes place through merit. Commander de Figaniere was a thorough diplomatist—we use the word in its highest meaning. Our archives at Washington hold proofs of his great talent, in connection with grave national matters. He labored with success for the honor of his country in the important case of the General Armstrong, and his despatches, protest, and correspondence in matters connected with the wine trade throughout the world, and custom duties attaching thereto, are referred to at the present day. He was looked on as senior of the foreign ministry at Washington, and there was no equal to him among them in his knowledge of international law.

He was a scholar. This is proved, among ther things, by his published translation of Les Quatre Ages of Count de Segur. In all business dealings, he was most sensitively honorable. With a very handsome, intellectual countenance, there was a carriage, a grace, an amiability that gave instant assurance of goodness, charitableness and true courtesy. While many outside of his family circle will readily echo all that is here put forth, never was character more charmingly displayed than in this gentleman, when looked at as husband and father. And, as a friend, he who pens these lines can attest his beautiful sincerity. Mr. de Figaniere—it is more than thirty-five years ago was his first acquaintance on coming to this country, and it was at a time when the writer knew no one here, and wanted cheer ng and encouragement. He not only go these in the most delicate and self-sacrificing manner, but a friendship was formed which showed there was the closeness of brothers in the grasping of hands on the death-bed. "I recognize you, old friend! I recognize you, old friend! Don't leave me, old friend!" If he had failings, we never discovered them; they must have been connected with some overstraining of a virtue, and could not, in such a large heart and with true no-bility of disposition, have emanated from CHAS. EDWARDS.

Secretary Seward's Mexican Despatch of November 23.

[By the United States Associated Press.] Washington, Dec. 26.—The despatch printed in the New York Herald of yesterday morning is evidently bogus. It states that Secretary Seward's despatch of the 23d ultimo was never received by the French Government. The falseness of such barefaced wrong news is apparent when it is stated that the above despatch was received, and that Secretary Seward received an answer on the 5th of December from Napoleon, assuring the United States of the good faith of France, specifying the time when the French troops will leave Mexico, and expressing satisfaction at the Campbell and Sherman mission, and proposing the co-operation of France in re-establishing a republican form of Government in Mexico. ITALY.

The Pope has addressed the officers of the Sthregiment on their departure from Rome. He said: "Your flag left France to restore the Holy See. The flag now returns to France but many consciences will not satisfied, for a revolution will come to the States of Rome. Italy is not complete, as has been said, because this scrap of territory still remains; when this no longer remains, the flag of revolution will float ever the Italian capital. I pray for Napoleon and his tranquillity, but he also must do something. France is the eldest daughter of the Church, but it does not suffice to wear the title. The right to wear it must be proved by deeds."

New Jersey Matters.

THE JUNCTION,—Old "Jackson Station," or "the Junction," as it is now called, is growing quite a respectable village. The intersection of the Delaware and Raritan. Bay Railroad with that of the Camden and Atlantic has given an impetus to improvement in this locality, which is working a rapid change. A large building, suitable for a hotel and boarding house, together with several neat cottages, have been completed, and several more will be finished the ensuing spring. Land in the vicinity is sold very cheap, and the soil is at least equal, if not superior to that which is so successfully cultivated in the vicinity of Hammontown and Egg Harbor city.

A Business Cantre,-Cooper's Creek, from its month to some distance in Newton Township, is lined with very extensive business establishments, including rolling mills, foundries, cabinet works, woolen mills, machine works, ship yards, &c. In the space of two miles from the Delaware it is estimated that nearly three thousand workmen are employed. The amount of capital employed in these various industrial pursuits is exceedingly large. Few unacquainted with the locality can comprehend the extent of the operations on this little stream.

THE BIBLE SOCIETY.—This society, at its recent session, was reported to be in a very prosperous and efficient condition. During the past year Mr. Shinn, the agent of the society, has made a complete exploration of Camden city and county, and has supplied by sale and donation, every family with a copy of the Scriptures that was destitute of a Bible. A vast amount of work has been done, and an equal amount of good effected.

A WORK HOUSE.—For years past, in fact ever since Camden was a county, the people have felt the necessity of a suitable work-house, where those young men and boys who have been convicted of crimes can be sent instead of the Penitentiary. The matter begins to assume a tangible form, as the Board of Chosen Freeholders have taken the subject ln hand, and are taking preliminary measures to have one erected. NEW COTTON FACTORY.—The progress of manufacturing interests in South Jersey is quite rapid, various manufactories of different kinds being under way. At May's Landing some enterprising gentlemen are erecting a new cotton factory, which is sufficiently capacious to employ upwards of three hundred operatives. It will be put in operation early in the spring. operation early in the spring. JUST CAUSE OF COMPLAINT .- Many of the citizens of Camden complain, and very justly, of the wretched condition of the river road between Cooper street and Cooper's Point.
