CITY BULLETIN.

THE PIANO BUSINESS-A NEW MUSIC HALL.—A contemplated improvement upon Chestnut street, above Ninth street, by Mc. J. E. Gould, the enterprising dealer in planes and cabinet organs, suggests the extraordinary advance that has been made in this branch of business during the last dozen years. When Mr. Gould commenced business in Philadelphia, in 1853, the sale of pianos in this city probably averaged about ten or fifteen per week, of all manufacturers. The energetic and judicious system of ad-vertising adopted by Mr. Gould was soon felt by the whole trade, and the present weekly sales of planos are estimated at from fifty to sixty instruments.

With this great increase of demand there has been a corresponding improvement in quality and style, and the present genera-tion of piano-players are being furnished with instruments such as their predecessors never dreamed of. The piano is becoming a more and more elegant article of house-hold furniture, and a more charming and hold furniture, and a more charming and attractive household companion.

Mr. Gould, with this great increase of the piano trade, has found his present capacious rooms too narrow for his business, and has for some time been casting about for a more westerly locality, wherein to accommodate his great stock of pianos. Besides about two hundred rented instruments, many of which must be temporarily provided of which must be temporarily provided with store room, the variety of new pianos of the several choice makes, which constitute his regular stock in trade, demand an ampler space than the present establishment

Mr. Gould has recently purchased the fine property No. 923 Chestnut street, ad-joining the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company on the west, and intends to convert it into a Piano Establishment, which will be one of the most capacious and convenient in the country. The property is 29 feet front and 178 feet deep, which will give a fine scope for the proposed improvement. Mr. Gould does not get possession until next June, when the work of reconstruction will be at organization of the construction will be at organization. be at once commenced. The new building will contain spacious apartments for the classification of the several depart-ments of his business. Thus the Cabinet Organ Room will be appropriated exclusively to that instrument, while the Steck and Haines Pianos will each have their own separate ware-rooms. In addition to this arrangement, several commodious rooms for music teachers are to be provided, which will be placed at the disposal of such of the profession, who have occasional pupils from the rural districts. This is a capital idea, which has been carried into practical effect in Boston and New York, by the Chicker-ings and Steinways.

In thus affording himself the necessary facilities for his increasing business, Mr. Gould intends to add another very important and desirable feature to his new estables. lishment in the form of a Music Hall, Everybody knows the great dearth that now exists in Philadelphia of proper accommodations for entertainments of all kinds, and especially of such halls as the foyer of the Academy. There is a whole range of per-formances, such as musical soirées, lectures, exhibitions and other entertainments, for which a handsome hall of moderate dimensions is in constant demand. Mr. Gould's new building will partially supply this want, and in such a form and style as will render it one of the fashionable centres of amusement in Philadelphia.

FUNERAL OF A JOURNALIST.-The remains of the late Horace M. Martin were mains of the late Horace M. Martin were consigned to the tomb yesterday. The funeral service was held in St. Joseph's Catholic Church, where a solemn Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. Father Jordan, S. J., who afterwards spoke at much length on the merits of the deceased, together with his trials and afflictions, which he bore with fortitude. Mr. Newland presided at the organ, and the Requiem Mass was improvement whether the principal supports the state of the principal supports the state of the st pressively sung by the choir, the principal parts being taken by the Misses Donnelly, Mr. Meany and Mr. Harkins. At the offertory the latter gentlemen sung a dirge, with unison chorus, entitled "Deus meminerit testamenti sui.

ELEGANT CRYSTAL MEDALLIONS, Pastel pictures and oil paintings, from the American Art Gallery, New York, established for the encouragement of artists; this collection numbers 275, and the finest ever offered at public sale by this well-known gallery; the paintings are really fine, and we advise all to make a visit, they are to be sold on Friday, Saturday and Monday evenings next, in the Art Gallery, 1020 Chestnut street, by B. CANDIA. The Loss of Life at the Monastery of Arkadhi.

[From the Pall Mail Gazette, Dec. 11,] So extraordinary and desperate an act of peroism as that which has just ennobled the cause of the Cretan insurgents at the Mon-astery of Arkadhi should not, if possible, be allowed to pass down to posterity with any inadequacy or want of authentication about its details. There is no doubt whatever as to the fact itself, though the absurd figures with which it was at first announced from

Corfu naturally induced every one to con sign it to the same limbo as that to which we have long been accustomed to hand over all telegrams from Corfu, and notably the immediately preceding one claiming a victory with a loss of 3,000 Turks killed and 2,000 taken prisoners. It is not clear even yet whether the monastery was blown up by Koroneos springing his mine before abandoning it, or whether the monks fired the powder magazine after the monks fired the powder magazine after the Turks had stormed it and were in complete possession of it; nor is there anything like approximate certainty as to the numbers on either side who have perished. To ascertain these points is the province of history, and we may trust that the great historian who acts as the Times's correspondent at Athens will may trust that the great historian who acts as the Times's correspondent at Athens will investigate them fully, and thus fill up the necessarily brief description in outline which he has just sent us. Indeed, if he does not, we much fear that no one else will be able to do it properly, however willing. For the moment it would be almost impertinent minutely to would be almost impertinent minutely to criticise the details of so grand and tragic an act of devotion—one, however, more than once paralleled, though on a far smaller scale, in the old Greek revolution. We love to associate great deeds of this kind with the name of a single leading mind: but as yet such fails us now, as it nearly does in modern Greek history. The name of Yorghaki, of Mount Olympus, the Rumeliote captain who blew himself up in the Moldavian monastery of Seko, to which he had cut his way with much address and bravery in the open field, at the close of the premature and open field, at the close of the premature and misdirected campaign on the Danube, which preluded the true Greek insurrection of 1821, may yet remain for the representative of Greek patriotic self-devotion—as after that of Constantine Kanaris—it is likewise that of Constantine Kanaris—it is likewise the only exception to Finlay's stern sentence of judgment on the whole revolution: "No eminent man stands forward as the representative of the nation's virtues." Up to the present time, almost without exception, we have been apathetic and sparing of sentiment as regards the Cretan movement, and the Greeks have only to thank themselves for this result, brought about by the bewilderment into which their preposterous telegrams have thrown us. An event of this kind is not unlikely to stir our sympathies to some depth. But it is not likely to make us intervene, much less to make France intervene, when such intervention must of necessity adopt such intervention must of necessity adopt one or the other alternative—either of expropriating and restoring 50,000 Mussulmans, or of abandoning them to the mercies of men in hot blood who would destroy them in a week. If England or France, or both DRAMATIC.-"Griffith Gaunt," as produced at the Arch, with Mrs. John Drew as the heroine and Mr. F. Mordaunt as the hero, is superb. The reader can judge of the perfection of the cast throughout from the following distribution of minor parts: The Lord Chief Justice, G. H. Griffith; The Attorney General, Owen Marlowe; Sir George Neville, Harry Rivers; Squire Peyton, Mr. Billings; Mr. Houseman, W. H. Wallis; Ned Galton, T. A. Creese; Brother Leonard, L. L. James; Father Francis, Mr. Osborne; Tom Leicester, S. Hemple; Paul Carrick, R. H. Craig; Hays, Mr. Crosbie; Old Vint. Mr. Savage; Bowyer, Mr. Jones; Mercy Vint, the beauty of Lancashira, Miss Lizzie Price; Caroline Ryder, the jealous lady's maid, Miss Annie Ward; Jane Cross, the cook, Mrs. Thayer; Dame Vint, Mrs. Worrell; Betty, Mrs. Reeves; Meg, Miss Griffiths; Bess, a gipsey, Miss Fanny Reeves, A better cast could not be made up in any theatre in America, nor could scenery, dresses, music, &c., be better at any. This version (Daly's) differs from the Schonberg version somewhat, though the strong points are the same, of course, including the great trial scene with which the drama closes. At the Chestnut this evening Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams appear in three dashing plays and in nine characters. At the Walnuf Mr. J. S. Clarks annaers in The Lord Chief Justice, G. H. Griffith: The three dashing plays and in nine characters.

At the Walnut Mr. J. S. Clarke appears in
"Uncle Zachary" and in "The Naiad Queen" to-night, and he will have an immense and enthusiastic house, At the American "Little Red Riding Hood" will be given to-night. At the Accedemy of be given to night. At the Academy of Music we have the grand Christmas spec-tacle of "The Arabian Nights" brought out in the most gorgeous style. The Old Folks also add their attractions to the entertainment at the Academy.
