The U. S. Consul-General in Canada. There was a grand collation in Montreal, after the consceration of Christ Church Cathedral, on the 18th of June, at which a great number of dignitaries, lay and clerical, were present, and many speeches were made. The Metropolitan, in a handsome speech, proposed the health of Major-General Averell, Consul-General of the United States. This was received with cheers, the band playing the Star-Spangled Banner. After the applause had subsided, General Averell spoke as follows: General Averell said—It anything could have happened to render your much loved and respected Metropolitan/more venerable in my esteem, it is that he has with his characteristic goodness availed himself of this occasion to give a shining example of obedience to the company of mandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thy mandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," and as the representative of your neighbor.

I beg that he and you will accept my profound thanks for the honor thus conferred upon the people of the United States. For the personal honor which has been so graciously bestowed upon myself by the Lord Bishop, I have no words to express my grateful appreciation.
In the awakening of religious sympathies,
and in the exaltation of their enjoyment, we are lifted above the material and political interests of individuals and of nations, and when anything is done, as has been done so kindly by His Lordship on this occasion to strengthen those sympathies, it renders it more done so kindly by His Lordship on this occasion to strengthen those sympathies, it renders it more difficult to disturb our peace, and is one step taken in that "Peace of God which passeth all understanding." I have with essed the ceremonies attending the consecration of this cathedral nies attending the consecration of this cathedral to-day with intense interest. Beside the charm of novelty which they possessed, there was to me a peculiar significance and grandeur in witnessing the efforts of noble minds, exponents of a perfected civilization, to exalt and glorify the worship of the Most High. I may be permitted to add that I have also experienced an auxiliary pleasure in observing among the dignitaries of this Church, a Reverend friend who had already rendered himself eminent by his distinguished services in the United States before he came to labor with you. His presence, and that of other eminent divines from across the border, is interesting as illustrating the cosmopolitan character esting as illustrating the cosmopolitan character of religion. Religion is one of the first necessities experienced, and the last comfort relinquished, in human life. It sprinkles us with water in the cradle, and dust in the grave. There seems to be a force developed at an early period in every hu-man life, which acts upon the mind as inevitably and universally as the force of gravity acts upon and universally as the force of gravity acts upon matter. The effect of that force is to make the soul seek the Creator. Widely scattered over the continents and islands of earth may be found relies of the worship of people who, unacquainted with God, sought among the heavenly bodies, or the mountains, rivers, trees and animals of creation, objects of devotion.

tion, objects of devotion.

Through those dead and buried ages, to the dawn of our Christian Era, and from the advent of Christ until now, what a stride humanity has made in the direction of truth! What a change in the forms and objects of worship. Here today in Montreal this consecration marks a great epoch. A forest has been ewept away, with all its wild inhabitants, and another race of men is surrounded with all the concenitants of the surrounded with all the concomitants of the highest civilization. You are assembled without fear and without reproach to receive, accept and consecrate this magnificent edifice to the practices and purposes of the Christian religion. What a sublime triumph of mind over matter! It is the surrender of the material to the spiritual; and what a grand and graceful assemblage of matter proclaims that triumph! It might be said of it what Coleridge said of an Abbey, "that it looks like a petified religion." In gathering this vast material and piling it up, you have obeyed the laws, and followed the most beautiful forms of nature, and the grand result is a pointed expression of Obedience and Faith. Here your history will be secure for centuries. When the sun shall eventually rise enturies. When the sun sain eventually reupon the accomplished destiny of this great people, I trust it may not fail to gild this spire, to illustrate your history, and show posterity that "Righteousness exalter a nation," but sin is a reproach to any people."

The National Transcript, in an editorial article on the speeches, refers thus to that of General

"There was nothing unusual or unnatural, then, in the Bishops who came hither to pay homage to the religious idea embalmed in the consecration of the Cathedral, charming us with their polished tributes to the high esteem with which the Church of England is cherished in the United States; but we did not expect to see a man of the sword, to whom the camp must have been more familiar than the study, striding into the arena, and snatching the wreath of laurel as the victor in the oratorical tournament. We have thus far known little of General Averell beyond fact that he was Consul-General of United States for British North America; that he belonged to the Church of England, and that he had acquired a reputation-for open-handed hospitality since he established his residence in Montreal, and that the record of his services in the army of his country describes him as a fearless and generous soldier. It was the good fortune of the Metropolitan in the choice and appropriate expressions in which he proposed the health of Major-General Averell, and his well-timed allusions to his position and influence, to call forth from the General a burst of eloquence that stamps him as one who thinks profoundly, and can reproduce his convictions in ornate, yet logical sentences. There was a frank, manly and generous tone, as became the soldier, in every phrase he uttered; the outspoken sentiments of one who had nothing concealed, who detested hypocrisy; but its chief merit was its profound recognition of an overruling Providence, its inculcation of the longing of the human heart to commune with the Creator. We are well aware that the power of speaking fluently and pertinently in public is not confined to the United States; but we were not prepared to discover in a soldier of the United States army a not unworthy rival of three American and three Canadian Bishops, besides one learned and cele-brated Metropolitan."

kalroad, in another column, it will be seen that the company will run Fourth of July excursion trains, at reduced rates, the tickets for which will be good from the 1st to the 6th inclusive: This will afford a very excellent opportunity to visit the northern portion of the State, including the beautiful Lchigh and Wyoming valleys.

Excursion tickets good from Saturday, June 29, until Monday, July 8th, will be issued by the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company. The various delightful places of resort along the line of the road will no doubt receive hundreds of visitors during the next week.

visitors during the next week. BIERSTADT'S GREAT PAINTING, "The Domes of the Great Yo-Semile," will remain on exhibition, for a short time only, in the southeast gallery of the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts. As this is the last and the best of this artist's pro-ductions, we would advise our readers to embrace this opportunity of beholding it. Admission 25

RESIGNED.-Jos. C. Fuller, Lieutenant of Police in the First District, resigned yesterday, after a service of nearly nine years. He was a faithful and energetic officer, and his district has always been one of the best managed in the city. Mr. Fuller will hereafter be connected with the asso-ciation for insurance against burglars.

ANOTHER ROPE THIEF. Daniel McBride was rrested yesterday, and taken before Alderman Allen, upon the charge of having been concerned in the larceny of rope from rafts on the Schuyl-kill. He was held in $800 ball for trial.

HOUSE ROBBERY.-The dwelling of James H. Brown, No. 1321 South Fifth street, was entered last night through the front door, which was opened by "nippers," and a watch and $60 in money were stolen from one of the bedrooms.

Young Men's Christian Association.-A regular monthly meeting was held last evening. Several new members were elected. An interesting essay was read by Rev. John Moore. His subject was "Manly Character."

PRESS CLUB. - The regular stated meeting of the Press Club of Philadelphia will be held to-mor-row afternoon. The election of officers for the ensuing year will come off.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE CHESTNUT.—On Friday evening next a benefit will be given at this theatre to the families of the firemen who were killed at the late fire in Walnut street. A large number of well-known artists have volunteered their services, and they have been cast with rare judgment in the play of Deborah, the Jewess. The performance will undoubtedly be very fine, and we ope the house will be crowded.

THE WALNUT.-Mr. Joseph Jefferson will appear again this evening in Mazeppa and Lend Me Five

THE ARON.-Mr. G. L. Fox and troupe will repeat the capital pantomime of Jack and Gill this evening.

CITY NOTICES.

AN IMPROVED HEATER-The "Baltimore Base Burning Fire-place Heater," manufactured by J. S. Clark, No. 1008 Market street. One of these sto heaters will warm several rooms at the same time. and they furnish a cheerful fire in winter, while diffusing a genial warmth. There are numerous advantages which attend their use, and which will be made more manifest by an inspection of them at the store of Mr. Clark than could be demonstrated by a column of description. They are eminently worthy the attention of housekeepers.
