FORTRESS MONROE. July 3.—Professor Kerr. of North Carolina, has recently made and published a report of a geological survey of the State of North Carolina. The territory explored in Western North Carolina is included within eleven counties west of the Blue Ridge and Yollow connties west of the Blue Ridge and Yellow Mountains. After commenting upon the ancient character of the rocks of this region, Professor Kerr says: "And not only do they belong to the lowest geological horizon, but the entire absence of all representatives of the later formations makes it necessary to conclude that we have here an extensive tract of the oldest land on the globe; and as North America is the eldest born of the continents, so the Black Mountain is the eldest of its giant brotherhood, and was the first to emerge from the face of the unbroken sphere of waters when the command went forth, 'Let the dry land appear.'" Upon this a Raleigh paper says: "This is an imposing fact, and suggestive of the most interesting associations and reflections. It is well known, by the way, that all that was mortal Wellington and Newton, though they sleep in the venerable Abbey, which is older than William the Conqueror, have no such mausoleum. It were folly to place a monument on such a spot. In the cuunciation of his opinion, sustained as it is by the most reliable and approved scientific data, Mr. Kerr has invested the burial-place of the venerable and distinguished Professor with a the venerable and distinguished Professor with a grand historic charm, that mocks the fleeting memorials of human invention."
